AFTER STRIFE — CALM

Reed School District Outlasts Its Troubles

By REBECCA LARSEN

In less than five years, the Reed Union School District has seen squabbles with teachers, battles over report cards, resignations of two administrators, a recall election and finally, academic tranquility.

Simultaneously, the elementary district, which includes Tiburon, Belvedere and parts of Corte Madera, seems to have left radical innovation for a middle-of-the-road style of education.

Is the peace and quiet the result of slowing down experimentation?

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello doesn't seem to think so. He said that yesterday's unrest and today's calm belong to a cycle which occurs in every school district.

"School districts are like people," says Giovanniello, who came to Reed two years ago from the position of deputy superintendent of the Novato Unified School District.

"They have times of happiness, times of stress, times of monotony, times of routine."

But Trustee Leo Souza, serving his 11th year on the Reed board, said that maybe the district was too progressive before.

"It's true to a certain extent," he said. "We were very innovative, now we're making changes more slowly. We still have them, but at a slower pace."

Recently, parents have accused other Marin School Districts, such as Mill Valley, of experimenting with education at the expense of the three R's.

But several years ago, the Reed district was so deeply into educational experimentation that it was making news nationwide. Programs now found in many schools such as open classrooms, team teaching and courses for gifted students, were launched in Reed when many parents had never heard of them.

Many innovations came under Superintendent Edward C. Pino, who was in the district from 1961 to 1966.

RALPH D. GIOVANELLO
"Schools like people"

Under Pino, the district built Granada School in Corte Madera, which featured honeycombed clusters specially designed for upgraded classes.

For several years, most district parents seemed to warm to the ideas of Pino whom Souza says was a "great public relations man."

District opinion began to sour, though, when the Board started running out of money in 1969 and 1970.

Enrollment dropped as in Marin Districts, and state aid dipped correspondingly.

In 1969 and 1970 the trustees asked voters for tax rate increases of 50 and 60 cents respectively, and both times they were defeated.

To add to the turmoil, a superintendent resigned in 1969, and in 1970 his successor also left.

Present board Chairman Charles V. Patterson said, "I was on the board when the controversy came to a head. It was primarily an economic thing. All of a sudden we didn't have all the money we wanted, and that meant we had to reevaluate our programs. Before, parents had always supported anything the district wanted. But when we went for the tax increase, a nucleus of people who were dissatisfied with the way things were going influenced others who didn't want a tax increase."

A hotly debated step was the return to old-fashioned report cards with letter grades. The district teacher's association issued a vote of "no confidence" when trustees adopted this report card system.

But a disgruntled parent with children then in Reed schools was Willis C. Bohn of Tiburon who said: "I'd ask my boy what he was doing in math and he told me he was working at his own speed. When I asked his teacher if she had a lesson plan, she said there was none. There was no guidance from the top down."

The conservative trend ended in 1971 when Trustee Gordon C. Wright, a harsh critic of district methods, was defeated in a recall election by present board member John J. Osborn.

Giovanniello was hired at about that time. Then the turmoil seemed to die down.

"There's no question but that the superintendent has been a stabilizing element," says Trustee Souza. "He has a beautiful knack of calming the waters."

Giovanniello wants to offer a little of both old-fashioned and new-fashioned educational styles. "One thing people want to be sure of is that there is stability," he says. "They want a program that provides skill building in math, reading and history, but people still want to see us keep up with the time."

Giovanniello also has helped solve district financial problems. He pointed out that the district has maintained 8 to 10 per cent of its budget as a reserve fund every year while some Marin School Districts

Russ Wheat Deal Blamed For High Cost Of Eating

Congressional Office Report Weighs Effect Of Nixon Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators today blamed the massive sale of U.S. wheat to the Soviet Union last year for the current high price of food for Americans, but excused the administration for making the deal.

The General Accounting Office (GAO), the investigative arm of Congress, said that the Agriculture Department did a poor job of arranging the sale, that large companies made excessive profits from it and that the government paid $300 million in unnecessary subsidies.

While criticizing the way the deal was handled, the GAO said it benefited the U. S. balance of payments, increased farm income, reduced surplus wheat stocks and put idle acreage back into production.

President Nixon announced the signing of the agreement July 8, 1972, to sell to the Soviet Union $750 million worth of domestic wheat over a three-year period.

The result of the Russian wheat sale, the GAO said, was that consumer costs for bread and flour-based products, beef, pork, poultry, eggs and dairy products increased sharply because of higher costs for feedgrains and transportation facilities were severely disrupted "with attendent higher costs and shortages or delays in delivering certain supplies."

The GAO repot noted that 440 million bushels of wheat worth $700 million was sold by grain dealers in the first two months after the announcement.

It said the domestic price of wheat rose by nearly 50 per cent in those first two months after the deal and nearly doubled from $1.68 a bushel in July, 1972, to $3 this past May.

Since livestock and poultry depend on feed grains for their food, the increase in the price of wheat caused a proportional increase in the cost of meat and poultry, the GAO said.

The report said that weaknesses in the Agriculture Department's management of its wheat export subsidy program caused it to pay $300 million in subsidies to wheat exporters when no subsidies need have been paid.

The investigator said that Agriculture officials knew early in 1972 that the world wheat situation would have allowed export prices higher than the $1.65 target.

"GAO expected to find a detailed analysis to support such a major policy decision," the report said, "but it seems to have been based largely on intuitive judgments made by Agriculture officials."

The report said Agriculture officials told GAO investigators there was no evidence the program had given rise to excess profits and that intense competition among exporters had controlled profit margins.

"Their assertions, however, are unsupported by studies or audit," the GAO said.

Mitchell Prepares For Stint On Watergate Witness Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell was interviewed by staff lawyers for the Senate Watergate committee today in preparation for his long-awaited public testimony starting tomorrow.

Mitchell, who was President Nixon's re-election campaign manager until two weeks after the Watergate bugging arrests June 17, 1972, appeared at midmorning at the office of Fred D. Thompson, the committee's Republican counsel.

He appeared in good spirits and chatted freely with reporters, although he said little of substance.

Asked if his wife Martha would accompany him to the hearings Tuesday, Mitchell replied, "Well, we'll have to wait and see."

Asked if his testimony would implicate the President, he replied, "My testimony is tomorrow, not today."

Informed sources said Mitchell would not implicate Nixon, his former law partner in New York and an associate and friend of the President for many years.

In meeting with the committee staff last May 10, Mitchell was said to have repeated what he had told the federal grand jury April 20 —that he attended three meetings in early 1972 at which general intelligence-gathering, including bugging, was discussed but that he rejected the plans each time.

Other developments:

A spokesman for Archibald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor, said that despite Nixon's refusal to turn over presidential documents to the Senate committee, Cox is proceeding on the assumption that he will have access to all presidential papers dealing with the case. The spokesman said that if Cox did not get what he asked, he would make a public announcement saying so.

—Columnist Jack Anderson said H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff, kept a list of Republican senators who displeased the President. Anderson said the list included Sens. Jacob K. Javits, N.Y.; Mark O. Hatfield, Ore.; Clifford Case Jr., N.J.; Charles McM. Mathias, Md.; Richard W. Schweicker, Pa.; Charles H. Percy, Ill.; Lowell P. Weicker Jr., Conn., and Charles E. Goodell, N.Y. Weicker is a member of the Senate Watergate committee.

According to a source close to the Senate Committee, Mitchell said during his May interview with staff investigators that he did not believe Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director, would have gone ahead on his own in approving the bugging plans.

The source also said that Mitchell acknowledged encouraging payment of legal fees and support money to the original

Bankers Huddle As Dollar Price Jitters

LONDON (UPI) — Failure of government central banks to take action against the dollar slide threw European currency exchanges into turmoil today. With no sign of government intervention in the markets the U.S. dollar bounced up and down in value against other currencies.

It dropped to new lows in Tokyo and Hong Kong, but the European situation was confused in the extreme. Trading was reported very light, and what there was was erratic.

The market nervousness followed weekend reports from Basel, Switzerland that world bankers may move to defend the dollar and hints the United States may intervene in the world currency markets.

"Most dealers are waiting for the opening of American banks to give them a lead," said a dealer for Chase Manhattan bank in London.

The dollar opened stronger in most European money markets. But indecision and confusion pushed it lower by mid-day nearly everywhere.

Trading which a French dealer described as "erratic" pushed the dollar down in Paris, Amsterdam, Brussels, Stockholm and London.

Its price was fixed at a record low in Frankfurt of 2.2835 marks —above Friday's closing price of 2.26 marks, but the lowest fixing price on record.

A Frankfurt dealer described trading in the vital dollar-mark market as "normal now and not hectic at all."

Gold, which usually rides the other end of the dollar seesaw, slipped back in price on London's big bullion market as the dollar climbed in Europe. Its price was fixed at $126 an ounce at the morning session, down $1 an ounce from Friday's fixed price.

Bankers from the United States, Canada, Japan and 16 other non-Communist nations met over the weekend in Basel, Switzerland, and said today they were ready with "technical arrangements" to take action that would cool the world's latest dollar fever.

This could be done either by selling gold from Fort Knox or borrowing from other countires to buy back the dollars an currency exchanges, especially West Germany which recently revalued the mark 5.5 per cent

Abernathy Quits; Cites Fund Problems

ATLANTA (AP) — Rev. Ralph David Abernathy announced today he is resigning as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, primarily because of a lack of financial support.

Abernathy headed SCLC for five years, since the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in April 1968.

He was frequently at King's side, going to jail with him 17 times.

Abernathy was the second president of SCLC. After he took over following King's death, he said, "They may kill the dreamer, but they can't kill the dream."

He had demonstrated many times his faith in the dream of equality and justice so eloquently articulated by King.

Abernathy, 47, stood willingly in the background until King was shot to death on a motel balcony in Memphis, Tenn.

Abernathy had said he had no desire to leave the movement. Calling King the symbol and the leader, he said, "I always wanted to stand with him and not ahead of him."

Since King's slaying, however, SCLC has been beset with financial troubles.

"I am resigning because of a lack of financial support," Abernathy said, but he added he was not leaving the SCLC.

RALPH ABERNATHY
A tearful conference

He said black people have "arrived" and now "occupy high positions made possible through our struggles and the struggles of other poor people but will not support the SCLC financially and make it possible for this organization to meet its obligations and commitments."

After the emotion filled news conference, Abernathy walked from the SCLC headquarters to King's grave to pray. In tears, he said, "I want to talk to Martin now."

House Seeks Off-Record Votes Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional reformers claimed today that a House move, apparently supported by the Democratic as well as Republican leadership, would cut back on a major 1970 victory in getting recorded votes on amendments to bills.

The move centered around a resolution by Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., chairman of the House Rules Committee, introduced June 28 and quickly scheduled for a hearing by Madden's panel this Wednesday.

The measure—an identical resolution was introduced the same day by Rep. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss. —would raise from 20 to 44 the number of members who must request a "recorded tellers' vote" rather than an anonymous vote by division (standing head count) or voice.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the House GOP leader, told newsmen he favors the resolution. Congressional sources said Speaker Carl Albert and Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts support the measure based on the fact that Madden, who reflects the leadership thinking in his powerful role as rules chairman, introduced the resolution.

O'Neill was one of the original sponsors of the recorded tellers' vote provision when it was written into the 1970 Legislative Reorganization Act. Albert also supported the provision and defended it at the end of 1971, the first full year of its use when it came under fire mainly from Republicans and conservatives.

The tellers' vote comes in the so-called "committee of the whole" which is the procedural situation in which the House debates and amends bills before reporting them back to the whole House.

Ehrlichman Says Nixon Didn't Offer Clemency

SEATTLE (UPI) — John Ehrlichman, former domestic affairs adviser to President Nixon, says the President discussed but dismissed the question of executive clemency for the Watergate burglars, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer reported yesterday.

In an interview with the newspaper, Ehrlichman also said the testimony of former White House counsel John W. Dean III concerning his alleged involvement in Watergate was "contrived" and "180" degrees from the truth.

"I raised the matter of clemency with the President for all the Watergate defendants in July," Ehrlichman said. "I said, 'sooner or later you're going to be confronted with a suggestion by somebody that these fellows be given clemency.'

"I said, 'The fact that you would entertain a conversation on the subject could be argued to be some kind of ratification or approval of their acts. It's an extremely dangerous subject for you to ever get into.'

"He agreed," Ehrlichman continued. "He said, 'Let's agree now this is a subject we'll never discuss.'

"I adhered to that. It was never discussed."

Dean told the Senate Watergate committee that Nixon had approved executive clemency for E. Howard Hunt, one of the convicted Watergate burglars, and that the President had told him it would be "no problem" to raise $1 million to pay the Watergate conspirators for their silence.

Ehrlichman said Dean's testimony before the Senate Watergage Committee related "was a deliberate and studied effort...to spin a web around (former White House advisor H.R.) Haldeman and me."

Because of "lack of total commitment by the FBI— Hoover had a hangup—" Ehrlichman said he "reluctantly" authorized an investigation of Daniel Ellsberg.

However, Ehrlichman said he was "shocked" when he learned that the White House "plumbers" had broken into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist and he ordered their operations suspended.

But he defended the use of the "plumbers" as necessary to halt leaks of sensitive national security information.

114 Peace Corps Volunteers Freed

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — President Idi Amin of Uganda today gave 114 American Peace Corps volunteers clearance to leave the country, apparently convinced they were really members of the Corps and not U.S. mercenaries en route to fight in an African civil war.

Amin's action in the Uganda capital of Kampala was announced here by U.S. embassy spokesman Gary Morley. U.S. diplomats and the State Department had interceded in their behalf since the mercurial Amin forced them to land in Kampala on Sunday.

"They do have clearance to leave," Morley said. "It came through around 3 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT). They are now looking for transport. They don't know where they're going and won't know until the transport is comfirmed."

The East African Airways VC10 jet which flew the volunteers to Uganda Saturday returned empty to Nairobi yesterday. They had landed in Kampala on a refueling stop en route to a Peace Corps training camp in Zaire (former Belgian Congo) when Amin forced the plane to return under threat of being shot down by his tiny air force.

Morley said the Americans probably would go either to Nairobi, where hotel rooms have been booked for them, or to their original plane transfer point in Burundi. They have been staying in a Kampala Hotel, comfortable but under armed guard.

Morley did not give details on Amin's decision to release the Americans but President Joseph Mobutu of Zaire intervened today to tell Amin they really were Peace Corps volunteers and were en route to his country as they said they were. Diplomatic sources in Kamapala said Mobutu sent a telegram today asking for their release.

"I just feel relief," William J. Verret, 22, of Welsh, La., said. "All we were told just was to go and pack, that we may be leaving.

"I wasn't really sure what was going to happen while we were here. I'd just like to get to Zaire and begin my training," he said in a telephone call to Nairobi.

Kermit Anderson, 28, of Tujunga, Calif., said, "It's good to be going but we've had a very nice stay here. The hotel is a very fine place. It's been a very interesting experience over-all.

"I've just been up in my room all day reading, waiting and enjoying the weather. Now we're all packing," he said.

American sources in Kampala said an East African Airways VC10 was scheduled to leave Nairobi at 5 p.m. (10 a.m. EDT) for Entebbe to pick up the Americans and fly them directly to Kinshasa, Zaire.

The sources said a top Zaire minister was expected in Kampala today for urgent talks with President Idi Amin on the Peace Corps situation.

Amin said he held the group, by ordering their plane to return to Uganda, when he suspected they possibly were mercenaries bound for neighboring Rwanda. He said he would free the group only when fellow African leaders assured him the volunteers were Peace Corps members.

"That assurance has now been sent," an African diplomat said. "It is now up to Amin how he responds."

Fire At American Oil Field In Libya

BEIRUT (UPI) — Part of the American-owned Al-Nafourah oil field in Libya caught fire last Friday and burned for several hours, causing an estimated $90.5 million damage before the flames were extinguished, the official Syrian Arab News Agency (SANA) reported from Tripoli.

Two engineers—one Lebanese and one British—and a Libyan driver were injured in the fire, the agency said.

HONORED — Duke Ellington has a new medal. The French government yesterday bestowed the French Legion of Honor for the musician's "outstanding contribution to the world of jazz and cultural values of today's world." The award was presented in New York.

ROME (UPI) — A new center-left coalition led by Premier Mariano Rumor took office yesterday as the 35th government of Italy since 1943, its prospects for longterm survival haunted by inflation, rising crime and a faltering economy.

Rumor, a bachelor and one-time high school teacher, said after taking the oath of office that he would seek parliament's approval of a program concentrating on dealing with economic problems, the weakness of the lira and rising rightwing violence.

A Christian Democrat who became premier for the fourth time in five years, Rumor took the oath of office from President Giovanni Leone 26 days after the collapse of a center-right coalition led by outgoing Premier Giulio Andreotti.

Rumor leads a 28-member cabinet composed of Christian Democrats, Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans. The dominant Christian Democrats received 16 cabinet posts, the Socialist six, the Social Democrats four and the Republicans two.

Among the cabinet positions was the newly-created ministry of environment.

The Socialists were returning to the government after an interruption that saw the moderately rightwing Liberals take their place in the Andreotti government.

France Takes Step In Test Direction

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The French government yesterday ordered a suspension of shipping within 66 miles of a tiny South Pacific atoll, a move that in the past has indicated France is ready to carry out atmospheric nuclear tests.

The brief announcement, carried by the Paris government's official journal, said the suspension order would go into effect at 1 a.m. Wednesday local time around the Mururoa Atoll test site in French Polynesia.

In reaction, New Zealand denounced the French decision today and said it would go ahead with plans to send a Navy ship to the test area in protest, observing only a 12-mile international limit.

In Sydney, the Australian Broadcasting Commission said that France had warned Australian aircraft to avoid the area beginnging early Thursday. The government said it would not comment on the French announcement.

In the past, the suspension of shipping in the safety zone has been a signal that tests are imminent. Nuclear blasts last summer were never officially announced before or after they took place.

Two weeks ago the International Court of Justice in the Hague asked France to suspend the tests. France said the court had no jurisdiction to rule on matters of national defense.

In Wellington, New Zealand Prime Minister Norman Kirk said the 66-mile zone was "without legal basis" and the the New Zealand protest frigate Otago would ignore it. A cabinet minister is aboard the ship.

Burglars Hit Safe Of Millionaire

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Millionaire industrialist Norton Simon reported yesterday burglars had stolen $90,000 in securities and foreign currency from his 12th floor office safe by prying the three-foot wide vault from a concrete wall.

Authorities said the burglars removed the safe to the basement of the building and broke into it.

San Juan Continues Under Guard

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Water service broke down in San Juan, sporadic power failures were reported across Puerto Rico and the government mobilized 1,000 more National Guard troops yesterday to deal with a strike by firemen and electric company workers.

Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon declared a state of emergency Friday and ordered the mobilization of National Guard troops to preserve essential services.

The new mobilization brought to 3,300 the number of National Guard troops answering fire calls and guarding the installations of the government owned electric company, a National Guard spokesman said.

In addition to sporadic power failures throughout the islands, including metropolitan San Juan, the water service in much of the metropolitan area of 750,000 persons broke down early Sunday because of a lack of power for the pumps.

Major factories, including some of the island's petrochemical complexes, reported they closed down operations because they had no electricity.

The executive director of the electric company, Julio Negroni, accused the union—whose 7,000 members went on strike Thursday night—of sabotage against the company's installations.

Juan G. Marrero, president of the union, said yesterday the mobilization of more National Guard troops was likely to produce violence.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

CBS Appeals

MIAMI (UPI) — The decision by a federal judge in Pensacola prohibiting the Columbia Broadcasting System from broadcasting courtroom sketches has been appealed by CBS.

Miami lawyer Talbot D'Alemberte said yesterday the network filed an appeal during the weekend with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, hoping to overturn a decision by U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow of Pensacola, Fla.

Arnow found CBS guilty of contempt Saturday for violating his order barring broadcast of courtroom sketches — whether drawn in court or later in private from memory—and fined the network $500.

Cosmonauts Arrive

HOUSTON (UPI) — Ten Soviet cosmonauts, including two chosen to rendezvous in space with three American astronauts in 1975, arrived today to begin work of the mission.

The cosmonauts, accompanied by 20 Soviet space scientists, left Moscow yesterday and flew to Houston.

Biblical Hearing

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Delegates to the 50th Lutheran Church Missouri Synod began a week of committee hearings today trying to solve the dispute of whether one-third of America's Lutherans should interpret the Bible literally or symbolically.

The only significant action during yesterday's session was the election of Edwin C. Weber of Fraser, Mich., as the synod's first vice president.

Mail To China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There now is parcel post delivery service between the United States and mainland China.

The U.S. Postal Service announced the start of the service yesterday.

Spokesmen said parcels mailed from the United States would be sent to Hong Kong and thence to China's Kwangchow post office. Packages mailed from China will arrive at either the Oakland or San Francisco post offices.

Air mail packages may be sent to China at a cost of $2.15 for four ounces or less and 95 cents for each additional four ounces. Surface rates—presumably the "slow boat to China" route—are cheaper, $1.30 for the first two pounds, 40 cents for each additional pound or fraction of a pound.

13 Executed

BEIRUT (UPI) — The Iraqi regime of President Ahmed Hassan Al Bakr announced today the execution of 13 more persons convicted of plotting to kill Bakr and his deputy, Saddam Hussein.

The executions, which occurred late yesterday, raised to 36 the number of persons executed in Iraq over the past two days in connection with the reported plot to assassinate Bakr.

Historic Pact

PRAGUE (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers signed a new U.S.-Czech consular agreement today that his hosts called the first step towards contacts on other matters.

Rogers also described the agreement as a "very significant step" in improving relations between the two countries.

Rogers and Foreign Minister Bohuslav Chnoupek formally signed the agreement, the first of its kind between the United States and Czechoslovakia.

Rogers arrived yesterday from Helsinki to become the highestranking American to make an official visit to Czechoslovakia since World War II.

Kidnaper Search

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesian troops, big game hunters and trackers searched heavy jungle near the Mozambique border today for African guerrillas fleeing with 13 hostages they kidnapped three days ago from a Roman Catholic missionary school.

The guerrillas originally seized 292 African students and school employees from the remote school late Thursday, but most of the hostages subsequently escaped during clashes between pursuing troops and guerrillas.

A government spokesman said troops lost contact with the guerrillas, but that they hoped to pick up the trail again today.

Sterile Protest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fourteen women's religious and population control organizations, most of them supporters of family planning and birth control, today called for an end of spending of funds for sterilizing minors.

"We deplore the recent incidents of sterilization, an irreversible operation, of teenage girls in Montgomery County, Alabama," the groups said.

IN CASE OF PRINTING ERROR, ABC MINIMUM PRICE WILL PREVAIL

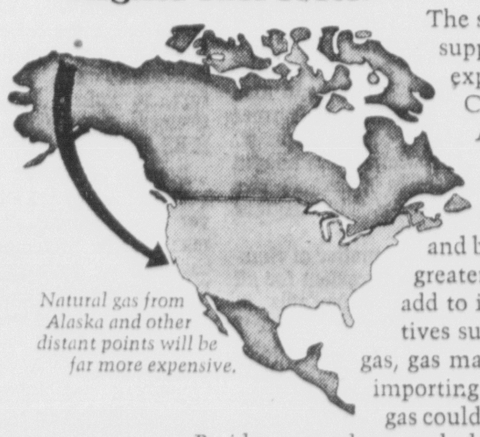

Solving the energy problem will be expensive. For you as well as for us.

More costly fuel supplies, construction schedule delays, high interest rates, inflation and the increasing costs of protecting the environment all add up to higher utility rates.

At PG&E we're doing everything we can to provide you with reliable gas and electric service and to keep rates as low as possible. But rates are higher today and they'll continue to increase.

Higher fuel costs.

Natural gas from Alaska and other distant points will be far more expensive.

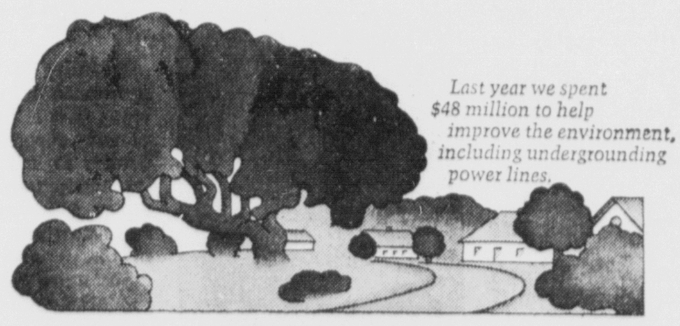

The search for new gas supplies, including exploration in Canada and the Alaskan north slope, is expensive. Such gas will cost more and bringing it from greater distances will add to its price. Alternatives such as synthetic gas, gas made from coal, and importing liquefied natural gas could cost even more.

Besides natural gas, only low-sulfur oil is acceptable as fuel in steam-electric power plants under present air pollution control standards. And we have to pay high premium prices for low-sulfur oil.

(When the costs of oil and natural gas go up, so must electric rates, because most of our steam-electric power plants are fueled by gas or oil.)

Construction schedule delays.

Regulatory procedures, involving up to 30 or more public agencies, are taking longer and longer. And new laws and regulations have established more complicated procedures for plant siting and construction. All these slow down construction schedules, and inflation alone is adding substantially to costs during these periods of delay.

Last year we spent $48 million to help improve the environment, including undergrounding power lines.

Environmental costs.

It costs more to put power lines underground, to build and landscape esthetically pleasing plants, to minimize stack emissions and to cool the water discharged from power plants. During the period 1973-76, PG&E's environmental expenditures will exceed $300 million.

Higher interest rates.

Interest rates have almost doubled during the last ten years.

Utilities are "capital intensive" industries. That means money to build new facilities must be raised—in vast sums. Our construction program this year will exceed $600 million. And interest rates have risen from about 4½% in 1965 to about 7¾% today, which adds more millions to the cost of gas and electric service.

All these things, plus the inflationary pressures which affect every business, add up to higher costs for us and higher rates for our customers.

The era of plentiful energy at bargain rates is ending. Our job is to hold down costs wherever possible, without sacrificing the environment or the quality and reliability of your service. We're working hard to meet that challenge.

You can help—by not wasting gas and electricity.

TELLS IT TO LET GO

The little Dutch boy who stuck his finger in the dike was honored, but this little Seattle girl who stuck her arm in a fire hydrant was worried — when she couldn't get it out. Her plight, yesterday, prompted a call to the Seattle Fire Department, but before firemen arrived, a police sergeant freed her with liquid soap. She wasn't hurt and she lost her curiosity about fire hydrants.

Viet Cong Admit Holding Two Canadians; Charges Swapped

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong admitted today it is holding two Canadian officers who disappeared 10 days ago, and the Canadian truce delegation said "we will not be satisfied until they are returned to us."

A press officer for the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG, the formal name for the Viet Cong) said Capts. Ian Patten of Toronto and Fletcher Thomson are alive and well.

The PRG accused the South Vietnamese government of ordering all-day artillery fire on areas where the two Canadians were being searched for. Officials in Saigon termed this a slander.

But the painstaking 10-day negotiations over the release of the two officers appeared to be about to succeed.

Canadians concerned for the safety of the two officers have been close-mouthed about the delicate negotiations with the PRG.

The agonizing slowness of the release negotiations, as correspondents have pieced the story together since June 28 when Patten and Thomson disappeared, seemed to be caused by:

Disagreement over who was responsible. Canadian authorities have maintained the two officers were simply touring their area of responsibility; the Viet Cong communique said today the two "went along with two Vietnamese, infiltrating into the liberated area without a PRG liaison officer...(and without) advance notification."

Some concern by the PRG officers on the spot that the Canadians, on a previous visit to the area where they were captured, had inadvertently disclosed the location of the Viet Cong unit they visited, since their visit was followed by a heavy government attack.

Bui Bao Truc, a spokesman for the South Vietnamese government, told the daily press briefing, "The Viet Cong delegation charged that our forces launched an operation into the region where the two Canadians are believed to be located. This is unfounded.

"There is no government ground operation in this area. The statement slandered us. The statement also showed that Viet Cong forces did kidnap these men and is still keeping them.

"The Viet Cong is trying to blackmail the Canadian delegation ...and discouraging all other countries from being approached as possible replacement for the Canadians." (Canada is withdrawing from the ICCS as of the end of this month.)

Michel Gauvin, chief of the Canadian ICCS delegation, urged at today's ICCS meeting that the meetings be suspended until the officers are released. The Hungarian chairman, Ference Estergalyos, took note of Gauvin's request and adjourned the meeting until Wednesday.

In other developments, the Saigon command Sunday reported a sharp rise in cease-fire violations, as compared with the day before.

A command spokesman reported 62 violations in the 24 hours ending at noon Sunday, compared with 47 Saturday, the lowest since the cease-fire.

The two missing members of the Canadian team disappeared June 27. They drove southward from the provincial capital of Xuan Loc, 38 miles east of Saigon, and vanished in a rubber plantation area.

Tanaka's Party Wins In Tokyo

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka overcame a crucial test of his popularity and power today by leading the Liberal Democratic party to victory in Tokyo city elections.

The election weekend came amid widespread criticism of his government and coincided with Tanaka's preparations for talks in Washington with President Nixon late this month.

Fashion Shift In Men's Hair

"The hippie-type look is definitely on the way out," Mr. Eckhard said yesterday.

Eckert who operates barber shops in two large San Francisco hotels added that "We're getting more and more calls for less and less hair."

Fernando Feliciano, a barber who wore long hair himself until a week ago, said it just became a "bore and a bother" after five years.

Vidal Sassoon, who owns shops here and in London, said that long hair no longer is a sign of dissent.

FCC Enforcement Standards Lax, Charges Outgoing Leader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has been lax in enforcing minimum programming and employment standards among some television stations, outgoing FCC Commissioner Nicholas Johnson said in a report issued today.

The 264-page study, which took six months to prepare, was conducted by Johnson's FCC staff and a Georgetown University law seminar, which he teaches. It covers hiring patterns and broadcast performance in the country's top 50 broadcast markets.

An FCC spokesman, however, said Johnson's report was independent and did not speak for the entire commission.

According to the report, station KPIX in San Francisco was "the best network affiliate" based on the variety of programming and employment criteria, including news and public affairs, commercialization, local programming and minority hiring. It listed WCCB in Charlotte, N.C., at the bottom of the overall rankings.

In overall employment of women and minorities, stations listed among the best were KABC and KNBC of Los Angeles; KENS and KSAT of San Antonio, Tex.; WTEV and WPRI of Providence, R.I.; WCAU of Philadelphia; WMAL and WTOP of Washington; WNYS of Syracuse, N.Y.; WBZ of Boston; and WSAZ of Charleston-Huntington, W.Va.

But stations WKZO and WOTV of Kalamazoo-Grand Rapids, Mich.; KTVI of St. Louis; WAPI of Birmingham, Ala.; KUTV and KSL of Salt Lake City; and KMSP of Minneapolis-St. Paul, were among the worst, the study said.

Johnson, whose seven-year term on the FCC has expired, observed that in 1960 the FCC issued formal rules forbidding employment discrimination by radio and television stations based upon race, color, national origin or sex. It also reguired stations to regularly advise the FCC on its hiring practices.

"Nevertheless," the study said, "it has become clear in that very short time that neither the broadcast bureau nor a majority of the commissioners have any intention of improving the questionable employment practices that data has revealed in a large percentage of the licensees.

"The commission has failed to demonstrate any positive concern for effectively dealing with discrimination."

All the ratings were based on information in current FCC files supplied by the broadcasters themselves since 1970.

Freak Accident Fatal To San Rafael Man

A 75-year-old San Rafael man, hospitalized last Monday after being pinned between two parked cars rammed by a third vehicle, died Saturday in Marin General Hospital.

Edward E. McElroy of 314 Glen Park Avenue had been in a coma since the accident at Grand and Belle avenues in San Rafael, according to a hospital spokesman.

He was the eighteenth traffic fatality in Marin thus far this year, compared to 14 by this date last year.

McElroy, walking between two parked cars, was trapped when one of the cars was rammed by a car said to have been driven by Dorothy Jean Sample, 47, of 10 Pilgrim Way. Police said the accident was the last in a series of three collisions involving the woman's car.

San Rafael police said today a new charge of manslaughter will be lodged against Mrs. Sample. She was booked at the time on suspicion of hit and run driving, driving under the influence of a nonnarcotic drug and battery on a police officer.

Funeral for McElroy was held today in San Rafael. Burial will be private.

He was a native of California and a member of the Operating Engineers and International Machinists Union.

He is survived by a brother, Bernard J. McElroy of San Rafael, and a stepdaughter, Hazel Pringle of Sacramento.

Work Begins On College In Novato

To the sound of Spanish guitars, guests took hayrides around the 330 acres of the Pacheco Ranch after groundbreaking ceremonies for the Indian Valley colleges.

Approximately 500 people then had barbecued chicken with all the trimmings.

State Senator Peter H. Behr, R-Tiburon, trustees Elizabeth Deedy and Theodore H. Wellman, Supervisor Arnold Baptiste, Novato Mayor Fred F. Ruegg, Supt. Dr. John Grasham, Ernest H. Berg, head of Indian Valley Colleges, and others yielded eight shovels in the symbolic ceremony starting the first phase of the $4.5 million project at the end of Ignacio Boulevard in Novato.

The first phase of the colleges is scheduled for completion in 1975 when enrollment is expected to reach 2,000. The entire building program now planned is scheduled for completion in 1978.

State Hits County For Test Mixup

A state veterinarian in Petaluma said today his laboratory followed standard procedures in dissecting a rabid stallion's brain six weeks ago — procedures that should not have hampered subsequent county tests for rabies.

Dr. Richard Hull of the state's poultry and livestock laboratory in Petaluma said half the brain was kept by his office and half sent to Marin for rabies testing after the horse, owned by Mario and Eva Ghilotti of Nicasio, was destroyed May 21.

As previously reported by the Independent-Journal, the county health lab failed to diagnose rabies in the horse's brain, resulting in a six-week delay in antirabies treatment for several persons.

State lab men in Berkeley discovered the error last week, six weeks after the county test. The county said Friday that its failure to diagnose rabies was due to working with poor specimens supplied it by the state lab in Petaluma.

According to veterinarian John E. Zimmerman of Point Reyes Station, the Ghilotti's prized stallion was destroyed May 21 and its head sent intact to the Petaluma lab.

Dr. Hull said his lab, trained in the dissection of animals, removed the stallion's brain, cut it into quarters and sent two quarters to Marin for rabies testing.

When the county reported a negative finding to Point Reyes Station veterinarian Donald E. Hansen, Dr. Hull said, his office began studying its half of the brain for traces of other diseases.

It was not until late last month, when a second Ghilotti horse died of rabies in Willits, that the stallion's brain was retested showing it did in fact have rabies.

The Ghilottis, and Drs. Zimmerman and Hansen began rabies treatment last Sunday.

BUGGING

seven Watergate defendants in order to secure their silence.

Ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III testified before the committee two weeks ago that Richard Moore, a White House aide, went to New York in February to try to get Mitchell's help in raising hush money. But the source said Mitchell told the committee staff that Moore merely asked him for help in establishing contact with the committee.

Members of both parties have called on Nixon to disclose, at a news conference or before the Senate committee, his knowledge of the bugging scandal.

The list of prominent politicans—both Republicans and Democrats—calling for a presidential statement on the subject was increased Sunday by Sens. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga. and Edward Gurney, R-Fla., members of the Watergate Committee; Sen. Robert D. Byrd of West Virginia, the assistant Democratic leader and Gov. Daniel Evans of Washington, a Republican who is chairman of the executive committee of the National Governors Conference.

In New York Mitchell, on the eve of his Watergate teatimony, requested today his conspiracy and perjury indictments be dismissed on grounds of government improprieties and prejudice.

In motions filed in Manhattan Federal Court, Mitchell, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans and two other defendants alleged that the U.S. attorney's office coerced the grand jury into indicting them.

Two Youths Arrested On Car Theft

Two 17-year-old youths were arrested today on suspicion of burglary and car theft after they allegedly were caught driving a stolen car containing a cash box and $224 in cash, police said.

Officers reported that the youths were pulled over by a California Highway Patrolman at 2:50 a.m. on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Larkspur for a traffic violation.

Their names were not released on standing order of Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

The cash box and money were found in the car and a subsequent check revealed that the auto, a Volkswagen sedan, had been reported stolen from Menzio's Mobile Station, 630 East Blithedale Avenue, about 10 minutes before, officers reported.

Inmate Treated In Life Attempt

A Mill Valley man in Marin County Jail awaiting trial on burglary charges was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for apparently self-inflicted slashes on the left wrist and neck.

Mark Bennett Keithley, 19, was sewn up by a doctor and returned to jail. He is awaiting trial July 30.

Sheriff's deputies said Keithley was found in a small pool of blood on his cell floor at 1:30 p.m. by another inmate. The slashes appeared to have been made by a razor, deputies reported.

Fire Jump Victims Off Critical List

Two women, injured Friday in an apartment fire in Mill Valley, have been removed from the critical list and are now in satisfactory condition, a spokesman for Marin General Hospital reported today.

Stephanie Miller, 27, of 20 Shelley Drive in Mill Valley, and Suzanne V. Berns, 31, of Los Angeles, were injured while jumping from a third-story window to escape the flames.

can reserve only around 2 per cent.

One sign of today's calm in the district is that when trustees decide to close small Tiburon School next fall, there was almost no parental opposition. Before, the idea has been loudly debated and finally shelved.

Not everyone is happy, though,. When critic Bohn was asked if he thinks the district has settled down, he said, "No way." His junior-high-age daughter attends private school.

"I wouldn't want to say that people are 1000 per cent satisfied," says Trustee Souza. "But they don't want to go through another recall election. They just want to educate their children in the best way possible.

upward to try to halt the dollar selling.

The United States has refrained from any commitment to intervene in support of the dollar and West German bank sources said John Coombs of the Federal Reserve Bank rejected the idea yesterday. However reports persisted the United States may have to intervene —possibly in conjunction with other governments — to halt the dollar slide.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at 254 yen today, the first time ever it had been below 260 yen. The closing price was eight yen below Friday's close. The dollar also dropped in Hong Kong and Singapore.

VIRGINIA WALTON

Virginia S. Walton of 30 Island Drive, San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 58.

A native of Winona, Minn., Mrs. Walton had lived most of her life in the Midwest. She had lived with her family for some time in Mill Valley and San Anselmo, then moved, to spend 10 years in New York.

She returned to Marin County two years ago.

She is survived by her husband, Philip, a son, Victor, and daughter Nona, all of the family home in San Rafael, and by another daughter, Deborah Lioy of North Troy, N.Y. She also is survived by two brothers, Rob Schreiber of Rochester, Minn., and Will Schreiber of LaCrosse, Wisc., and a sister, Betty Johnson of Minneapolis, Minn.

Funeral will be Wednesday, when a Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Rosary will be recited tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

GLENN RICHARDS

Funeral for Glenn E. Richards, 74, father of James A. Richards of Rohnert Park, was held today in Sebastopol.

Richards died Friday at a Sebastopol Convalescent Hospital after a lengthy illness. He was a native of Wabash, Ind. and had lived in California for 23 years.

Richards had worked many years as a painter for the Alameda School District and moved to Sonoma County 10 years ago.

He is also survived by his wife, Mable M. Richards; another son, Glenn E. Richards Jr. of Slorissant, Miss.; four daughters, Mrs. Walter Jessen of Placerville, Barbara Combs of Monte Rio, Mrs. Leonard Dobbert of Livermore and Mrs. Jack Dahl of Fremont; a sister, Frances Ditton of Fort Wayne, Ind.; four brothers, Jess Richards of Carlton, Mich., LeRoy, Bruce and Clifford Richards of Wabash, Ind.; 24 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Burial was at Sebastopol Cemetery.

FREDERICK TANGEMAN

A Nebraska man collapsed and died Saturday while visiting his son in San Anselmo, according to the Marin county coroner's office.

Cort Frederick Tangeman, 81, a former automobile salesman, was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital, despite fire department resuscitator assistance.

His wife, Mayme, told the coroner that he complained of sharp chest pains Friday, while staying at his son Stewart E. Tangeman's home at 175 Ridge Road, San Anselmo.

Funeral will be held in Omaha.

VIRGINIA SCOTT

Private service for Virginia F. Scott, 57, of San Rafael, wife of David R. Scott, was held today.

Mrs. Scott of 2239 Fifth Avenue died Saturday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was a native of Indiana and had been a resident of San Rafael since 1944.

Her husband is superintendent of Roto-Rooter Sewer Service.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a daughter, Jean Snider of Nevada; two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Burial was private.

HAMILTON BROWN

Funeral for Hamilton Brown, son of Florence Brown of Greenbrae, has been held in Carmel. He died on the Fourth of July at age 65.

Brown, an architect, was born in Alameda and was educated at the University of California at Berkeley, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he received a bachelor's degree in architecture.

He began his architecture practice in Houston in 1937, and served in the Navy as a lieutenant commander during World War II. He continued his Houston practice until his retirement in 1968, when he moved to Carmel.

Brown was a member of the Society of Architectural Historians, the National Trust for Historical Preservation, and Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

He was a fellow of the American Institute of Architects and vice president of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Survivors include his wife, Lise; two sons, Peter H. Brown of Philadelphia and Christopher J. Brown of Houston; two sisters, Francis Doud of Carmel and Florence Hart of Darien, Conn., and a brother, William B. Brown of Carmel.

PHYLLIS SMITH

Gasoline Rationing Plans Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said emphatically today the administration has ruled out any possibility of gasoline rationing to meet the current shortage.

Simon's statement, his strongest on the subject, came amid reports that President Nixon's Phase IV economic may include a rollback in prices for gasoline and other petroleum products.

Asked about persistent rumors that the administration is considering a program of gasoline rationing, Simon said "absolutely not."

"I absolutely do not consider rationing even possible," he said. "We have a voluntary allocation system in place now that I believe is doing the job."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Congress must take a "very hard look" at the possibility of breaking up functions of big oil companies.

Jackson made the statement at a news conference following disclosure of a government report suggesting that the structure of the industry had a major role in creating the gasoline shortage. Jackson said a two-year study by the staff of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) "indicates clearly that vertical integration, concentration and market control had an important role in creating the shortage.

"The report also says that the major oil companies are indeed using the shortage to eliminate competition and to increase their relative shares in all three sectors of the industry —production, refining and marketing."

The FTC delivered the report to Jackson late last week at his request. The FTC did not, however, provide him with a legal section of the report which reportedly recommends anti-trust action be taken by the FTC against the eight biggest oil companies.

Jackson said he was launching his own investigation into the situation. "The FTC report provides a strong case for divorcement of oil transportation from production and refining. Congress must take a new and very hard look at this question."

The report, Jackson said, marks the first time that an agency of the executive branch "has formally concluded that time honored and, until now, almost sacrosanct federal oil policies have benefited the major oil companies while working hardship on the average American and the independent small businessman."

Simon was interviewed on the NBC-TV Today Show.

Simon's office denied reports last week that the government already had printed rationing cards. At that time, a spokesman for Simon indicated that the administration still was considering a program of mandatory allocation to refuse gasoline firms and dealers to "share" in the shortage.

Sources said yesterday that administration officials also were considering the price rollback on gasoline as they draft the economic program that will follow the current price freeze. Nixon imposed the freeze June 13 for no longer than 60 days.

Should the rollback be ordered, it would drop the price of gasoline at service stations in many parts of the country. It also would cover such products as home heating, diesel and aviation fuels.

The gasoline price rollback is among a number of options being considered by the administration as it puts together Phase IV, said a Treasury Department official close to the government energy policy planning.

Like other prices, gasoline prices are frozen at the level of the first week in June. A rollback would force companies to reduce prices below current levels and, if a freeze is added, hold them there.

The Washington Star-News reported Sunday that a new freeze on petroleum products would be established at the prices that prevailed on May 15. Administration officials, however, termed this date "very speculative."

The administration sources said the oil and food industries, where prices have been rising the fastest in the economy, would be the first industries singled out for Phase IV coverage.

"There will be a number of announcements in the next 10 days or two weeks," one official said.

Bahama Islands' Independence Arrives With Hopes, Worries

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — The Bahama Islands will become an independent state of the British Commonwealth at one minute after midnight tonight, and Prime minister Lynden O. Pindling says the Bahamas are "The happiest, most congenial, most peaceful place in the western hemisphere."

The flag raising ceremony symbolizing Bahamian independence will be attended by Prince Charles, U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers P. Morton, and dignitaries from 40 nations —not including the Soviet Union, China and Cuba.

Pindling, wearing a blue and white print shirt of African inspiration, called a dashiki, told foreign newsmen at a Sunday news conference:

"We make an attempt to minimize our problems, but we do have the atmosphere to find solutions and to resolve the problems and no one can ask for anything more".

Problems faced by the new nation of 200,000 inhabitants scattered over 700 islands will include rising unemployment, a pull-out of offshore investment firms, a tourism decline, and some lingering racial tensions.

The short, muscular prime minister said "comfortable" best described his mental attitude at the prospect of independence.

"Peace and calm prevail throughout the islands", he said.

"The ecumenical religious service of this morning symbolized to me the nations's unity in the thrust toward nationhood as the independence countdown begins".

He said the secessionist effort by the white minority on the Abaco islands group was finished.

The Abacans, descendants of loyalists, who fled the American colonies after the declaration of U.S. independence, had petitioned the crown to remain a British colony.

"It will be a little while before the white community of Abaco is as enthusiastic about independence as others might be," Pindling said. "They had a special leash. They began as loyalists and they saw themselves ending that way."

Burn Victim Of Belfast Unrest Dies

BELFAST (UPI) — A woman who was badly burned when hijackers set fire to a Belfast bus last week died in a hospital today, police said.

The death of Mrs. Dorothy Lynn, 47, raised the fatality toll in almost four years of violence among Northern Ireland's majority Protestants, minority Roman Catholics and security forces to 843.

Street mobs hijacked and set afire seven buses in Catholic neighborhoods of Belfast last Wednesday night. In one of the hijackings gunmen kept the passengers in their seats until the fire was well under way and seven passengers suffered burns, Mrs. Lynn among them, police said.

Military and police chiefs of Northern Ireland have been conferring to devise new ways of combating Protestant assassination squads in Belfast, political sources said today.

Guerrilla attackers bombed a bank in Strabane on the Irish Republic border today but shouted a warning that prevented casualties.

Lawmakers View Route Of Pipeline

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Six congressmen viewed mountains of 48-inch pipe, talked with oilmen on a three-day tour, and then flew back to Washington yesterday ready to proceed with a bill authorizing a trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

But in Rapid City, S.D., Gov. William G. Milliken urged the federal government to delay a final decision on the trans-Alaskan oil pipeline in favor of the trans-Canadian pipeline. Milliken said the oil is needed most—"east of the Rockies."

The lawmakers on tour in Alaska, members of the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, made stops along the 800-mile route of the planned pipeline and gathered information for legislation intended to remove obstacles that have delayed construction of the pipeline for three years.

At the proposed pipeline's south terminus at the Port of Valdez, the congressmen saw 420 miles of pipe, stacked three years ago before the project was stalled with court suits and criticism from environmentalists.

Rep. John Dellenback, ROre., said the tour answered most of the congressmen's questions about the project and he expected some action on the proposed bill in a few weeks.

Pipeline proponents hovered over the lawmakers at each stop, beginning with a breakfast indoctrination by the Alaska Pipeline Education Committee in Anchorage, where Gov. William A. Egan and other state officials argued for the pipeline.

Over 30 Years Experience In Nutrition

HERE'S HEALTH!

By JUNE EMBURY

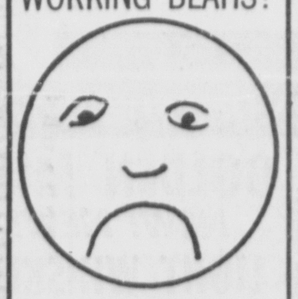

THESE DENTISTS ARE REALLY INTO NUTRITION!

A "Prevention Convention" is in session right now in San Francisco, sponsored by the American Society for Preventive Dentistry (ASPD). The member dentists and technicians believe that good nutrition is essential for dental and general health. They're outspoken about refined sugar's contribution to tooth decay and challenge advertising claims that sugar is "good food." The Society supports legislation to eliminate candy and soda pop from school lunches.

RALPH NADER is the featured speaker tonight. Tomorrow morning, Professor EMANUEL CHERASKIN will be on a panel with Harvard's Dr. F.J. STARE, apologist for the sugar industry and processed foods. Dr. Cheraskin, with degrees in both medicine and dentistry, emphasizes the need for vitamin and dietary supplements and wholesome foods. This should be a fascinating debate. Some of our staff will attend, by special invitation.

Officials Delayed Report On Rabies

The case of rabid horses in Nicasio, which was revealed last Tuesday about six weeks after the first horse had been stricken, points up once again the need for quick and full disclosure of any and all information that might affect public health.

Because of possible litigation involving the county, Marin officials failed to act with the frankness and dispatch required when lives are at stake.

FROM INFORMATION revealed thus far, this was the sequence of events: A prized stallion owned by Mario and Eva Ghilotti at the Mar-Ghi Arabian Ranch in Nicasio became ill in mid-May. With rabies under suspicion, the animal was destroyed and its brain sent to the county's public health laboratory on May 21 for testing. When the county test proved negative, the Ghilottis and veterinarians who had treated the horse dispensed with the long and painful anti-rabies treatment.

About the end of June, another mare owned by the Ghilottis became ill at a Willits ranch where the mare had been taken for breeding. State tests showed the mare to be rabid. This resulted in a re-test of the stallion's brain by state officials, who found that the stallion too had rabies.

The Ghilottis and the two veterinarians who had handled the stallion immediately underwent anti-rabies treatment, which they would have started six weeks earlier had the county test revealed rabies.

WHEN NEWSMEN and members of the public, understandably disturbed by the alarming turn of events, tried to get information from county officials, they faced an information blackout ordered by County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney. He explained he ordered health officials not to make public comments because of possible legal action against the county.

Trespassers who might have passed through the ranch or come into casual contact with the horses or their owners were thus kept in the dark.

WE CAN UNDERSTAND the county counsel's concern over a possible damage suit and his attempt to keep the county's culpability to a minimum. But both he and the health officer, or at least one of them, should have realized that the county has an even greater duty to protect the public from unnecessarily exposing themselves to health hazards — hazards known to the health officials but deliberately concealed.

Marin officials were informed of the state findings on Saturday, June 30. The least they could have done was to issue a public warning on Saturday to reach radio and television by Sunday, July 1, and for newspapers to spread the word on Monday, July 2.

Monday and most of Tuesday passed without a word of warning from the health officer. It was only after an Independent-Journal reporter began inquiring that the health officer issued a skimpy "press release" late Tuesday. Even then, county officials refused to identify those who had been exposed to the rabid animals.

IF MALONEY AND the health officer were so concerned about litigation, they could have limited the information to naming the ranches where the rabid animals had been kept and the persons who had been exposed. They could have declined comment on the rabies test on grounds of possible litigation.

In their haste to protect the county from money damage, the county officials neglected an even greater duty of protecting the public from a contagious and killing disease.

State Refuses Funds For New Coastal Commissions

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Gov. Ronald Reagan and six legislators have subverted the clear will of the public in killing an appropriation desperately needed by the new coastal commissions.

A strong majority of Californians voted last November for Proposition 20 to protect the state's threatened coast, but this did not faze these hardened politicans.

THE CITIZENS who got the proposition on the ballot, overriding years of stalling by the Legislature and opposition by the governor, had assumed the state commission and its six regional commissioners would get some $3 million from the federal government. This was to be in addition to the $5 million allocated in state funds for the four-year life of the commissions while they drew long-range plans to protect the coast.

Congress, however, failed to fund the nationwide coastal protective program, so the California commission found itself facing a deep deficit. The staff of the coast commission cut hard into the budget, paring the deficit to $2 million.

The state commission thus prudently asked the state to budget $500,000 more a year, starting this fiscal year.

BUT BY THE TIME the legislators and governor got through with it, the appropriation was eliminated. Not one dime.

First, the six legislators on the two-house conference committee that drew the final budget in secret cut the appropriation in half. Since they function under a rock, they don't explain their actions.

THEN THE GOVERNOR got hold the remaining $250,000 and vetoed it. Existing funds were "sufficient to meet the needs of the commission" during the coming year, he said.

The governor, of course, defined "needs" from the vantage of one who campaigned against Proposition 20.

He added the commission's budget should be reviewed next fiscal year. The result is the commission must budget this year on the assumption it will have to limp through the four years without additional funds. It cannot risk financing work needed this year and ending up shy of funds in later years.

ONLY A SHOCK WAVE of pressure from the citizens who voted for Proposition 20 can change the minds of the seven men who are out to cripple the coastal commissions.

Keep in mind this is the same Legislature and governor who brought you the extra penny on the sales tax at a time when the state has a surplus approaching $900 million. There was enough of the green stuff squeezed out of the taxpayers to pay for all the private deals worked out in the secret conference committee, but not enough to carry out the public's will.

How long can "our leaders" in Sacramento count on the public's apathy to defend them from a real scrubbing?

Not all food price news is bad. In Africa there's a surplus of hippopotamuses. Considering their size, just one hippo seems like a surplus to us.

Hippo meat tastes like prime beefsteak and it retails at just 25 cents a pound in Uganda. Without trading stamps.

African businessmen, who see 2000 cans of hippo burgers in every hippopotamus they look at, plan to export the meat as a gourmet item.

Please pass the hippopotamus.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Proper Tax On Land Would Ease Problem

The current controversy, that of conservation versus development, surrounding the recent Marin Water District moratorium, ignores one of the basic causes of the current water (and other urban) problems.

The Marin ban does not affect more than 1800 vacant lots already served by water lines. Building on these lots would certainly provide plenty of jobs and plenty of housing, but land speculation prevents that while owners hold out for higher profits, forcing developers to leapfrog and the urban/suburban areas to sprawl.

Only an adequate tax on this underassessed, close-in land, coupled with lower building and improvement taxes can slow down the sprawl, while pressuring our vital housing industry. In addition, it would be a tremendous stimulus in revitalizing slum areas without mass displacement of residents and the mass burden of federal taxes.

Red Cross Grateful For Public Support

As chairman of the Marin Red Cross Chapter, may I thank your readers for their generous support of our special emergency disaster appeal. Our disaster relief quota of $6,107, assigned to Marin County by the American National Red Cross, was announced May 10.

As of July 4, donations in response to our announcement and from sponsors of entrants in our "Swim-A-Thon" for disaster relief, total $5,405, leaving the Marin Chapter just $702 short of its goal.

Through such public support the Red Cross has been able to respond to the immediate needs of victims of catrastrophe since 1882. Your donations enable the Red Cross to continue to provide food, clothing and shelter to homeless and hungry victims of floods, tornadoes and other disaster throughout the United States and Puerto Rico.

Tighter Control On Campaign Financing

Among other things, Watergate shows that we urgently need to end the present dependence of candidates for public office upon large contributions to get elected.

Doubtless a combination of methods will be needed, including the following: Allotment of free TV time and providing specified sums from the public treasury to candidates (requiring a large number of signatures of registered voters for each candidate to get on the primary ballot — thus to keep the number of candidates down to a reasonable number); strict limits on the size of any individual's gift, perhaps $250 for a congressional candidate and $500 for a presidential; an overall limit for each candidate's spending in any given campaign; and the creation of a non-partisan agency to oversee and enforce compliance with campaign laws.

Senator Hart has introduced a bill, S. 1103, the Congressional Election Finance Act, which covers many of the above points, but which applies only to Congressional campaigns. Representatives John Anderson (Rep.-Ill.) and Morris Udall (Dem.-Ariz.) have introduced H.R. 7612, the Clean Elections Act, which includes a strong independent elections commission, a ceiling on contributions by individuals, and a mix of public and private funds.

Common Cause urges us all to write our Senators and Congressmen to push for new and tighter campaign controls. It is time that we all wrote.

Widows Eligible For Pension From City

Is it possible that you could print the enclosed notice in "letters to the editor" or elsewhere in your paper for the benefit of widows of deceased retired employees of the City and County of San Francisco.

To inform you, most of these widows are receiving a pension, one of several plans selected by the employee at the time of his retirement, but just recently it was enacted that all widows would receive one-half the amount the husband would have received had he selected the "unmodified" plan which paid a larger pension, but only while the husband lived.

Some of these widows could be living in Marin County or a reader might know one. Thank you for whatever you can do.

Readers Grateful To Newspaperboy

We believe that our paper boy, Wesley Willoughby, 43 Laurel, Ross, should be commended most highly for his neighborly and most appreciated effort in our behalf recently.

We were vacationing a few weeks ago-elderly neighbors had promised to pick up our morning and evening papers and then forgot. This youngster after the third day took it upon himself to gather up all newspapers lying around and disposed of them. He was so aware as we all are of the picture that tells for potential break ins -

We feel a lot safer knowing of this now that we have this kind of "citizen" watching over us in our midst.

Deeply appreciative subscribers -

One-Way Street Was Giant Error

When are the powers-that-be going to recognize and deal with the fact that in the three months since A, B, C, and D Streets were made one way, traffic has never been worse in San Rafael? Hopefully, they will admit that it was a gigantic (and expensive) error and do something about it before we perish of old age stalled in traffic on Second or Third St. or from being hit head-on on A, B, C, or D.

Consensus Is That President Will Ride Out Second Term

What will be the fate of President Nixon because of Watergate? At a small private gathering of 15 knowledgeable, politically experienced persons of diverse ideology representing law, teaching, journalism, business and government, three questions produced these answers:

Four believe the President will resign.

Two believe impeachment proceedings will be started.

Nine believe President Nixon will ride it out for the rest of his second term.

This poll was taken after John Dean had offered all the evidence he could and before the President's side was presented by other witnesses before the Senate Watergate committee.

WHAT IS Mr. Nixon's own state of mind? My best information is that the President has never contemplated resigning, has no intention of resigning and does not expect any circumstances to develop that would cause him to do so.

The most revealing illustration of the President's attitude was his decision to veto the massive defense appropriation bill with its rider cutting off all funds for bombing in Southeast Asia.

HIS VETO SHOWED that Mr. Nixon was conducting himself as though there were no Watergate.

Some have suggested that he accepted the fixed date of Aug. 15 for stopping all bombing because the Watergate scandal forced him to do so. The evidence is the other way. Both sides compromised responsibly and the Aug. 15 cutoff gave Mr. Nixon nearly all the time he thought he would need.

If I understand Richard Nixon, resignation would be totally out of character.

WHOSE SUPREME court is this? Is it President Nixon's supreme court? Are its decisions pretty much in the image and likeness of the President? Now that the court has been operating long enough with four Nixon appointees, the answers to these questions become evident.

The central answer is that while there is a new majority on the court, there is no significant repealing of the pioneer decisions of the Earl Warren period.

HERE ARE SOME of the court's major actions:

It insisted that school desegregation be carried out as fully in the North as in the South.

It upheld a limited right of abortion which President Nixon opposed.

It denied the use of public funds for secular education, thus killing a Nixon program to aid church-related schools.

It struck down the death penalty which the President favored.

IT RESTRICTED the ways in which the government can use electronic bugging.

On what is deemed the more conservative side, the court is leaning toward helping the police, not helping criminal suspects.

This court is not as pioneering as the Warren Court, but it is also not a pioneering "Nixon court."

A President finds that his appointees to the court quickly become their own men after appointment.

FOREIGN EVENTS in the making. A reshuffle in the top level of Chinese leadership is expected soon. Premier Chou En-lai remains secure. The Soviet Union is trying to bring off a peace treaty with Japan ahead of China. It would be patterned after the Indian-Russian friendship treaty of 1971. Moscow is worried lest Peking succeed in turning its improved relations with Japan into an instrument of anti-Soviet policy.

REPUBLICAN POLITICAL barometer. John Connally's prospects of getting the GOP presidential nomination are weakened by his recent in-and-out role in the White House. Former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird becomes a significant contender. He will have strong support from the congressional wing of the party.

QUESTION FOR readers to answer: Do you think the Senate Watergate committee should have taken a 10-day recess or should it have kept steadily at its work?

Friction Is Developing Between Laird, Ziegler

By EUGENE V. RISHER

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — With the swearing-in earlier this week of James R. Schlesinger as secretary of defense, the Nixon post-Watergate cabinet is now in place.

William E. Colby, named to succeed Schlesinger as director of the Central Intelligence Agency, is the only high-level administration member who has not already received Senate confirmation and his is expected soon.

FOR THE MOST part, the new cabinet is made up of old faces in new places. Elliot R. Richardson and Schlesinger rate top billing as utility men.

Richardson started out as undersecretary of the State Department, moved to head Health, Education and Welfare when Nixon was forced to remove his old friend Robert Finch from the job, then shifted to the Defense Department to take over from Melvin R. Laird at the beginning of the second Nixon administration and finally was moved to Justice to lend his substantial prestige to that scandal-stained department.

SCHLESINGER HAS moved almost as much. He joined the Nixon administration in its infancy as the deputy budget director, was made chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission two years later, switched to the CIA at the beginning of the second term and then moved to the Pentagon to take over from Richardson.

Now, after a brief retirement, Mel Laird is back in the White House as the President's chief domestic counselor, a post formerly held by the Watergate-retired John D. Ehrlichman. And Bryce Harlow, a savvy political operative, has been coaxed from the corporate opulence of Proctor & Gamble to return as a White House adviser.

OBSERVERS OF the Nixon administration are looking at the staff shake-up both inside and outside the White House to see whether the highly centralized operation of the Ehrlichman-Haldeman team has changed.

Certainly, the additions of Laird and Harlow have added some political seasoning to the Nixon entourage that previously did not exist. Both are highly regarded on Capitol Hill and should help in improving badly frayed relations between Nixon and the Congress.

AS DOMESTIC counsellor, Laird has shown no intention of rigidly controlling the flow of proposals to the President in the fashion of his predecessor. He is expected to engage more in the broad-scale advice of the type furnished by Harlow and Daniel P. Moynihan—the Harvard urbanist who now is Nixon's ambassador to Europe —during the first two years of the Nixon presidency.

Colorado Gov. John A. Love, recently taken on as an assistant with a special mandate in the energy field, is a man of independent political stature who can be counted on to bring divergent views into the White House.

BUT ALREADY there are indications of some conflicts between the new arrivals and remaining Ehrlichman and Haldeman loyalists.

The most visible is between Laird and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, a Haldeman protege for virtually all of his professional life.

Laird last week voiced the opinion in an interview with Washington Post columnist David Broder that Ziegler's credibility had been so eroded by his months of denying that anybody in the White House had anything to do with the Watergate scandal that he should leave his post as the President's chief spokesman.

THE NEXT DAY, Ziegler told newsmen he had received the personal assurances of the President that he would remain in his job.

Later in the day, he brought Laird into the San Clemente press room for a "coffee session" with newsmen. With Ziegler looking over his shoulder, Laird shrugged off the incident and smilingly accused Ziegler of "over-reacting."

But he pointedly said that he had no quarrel with Broder's account of the interview and one has the feeling more is to be heard from this conflict.

MELVIN MADDOCKS

Professor Became Dishwasher To Rid The Midcareer Blahs

The midcareer blahs will get you if you don't watch out. Just when you think you've risen — at last — to the level you deserve, just when you can paint on your office door in gold letters I've Made It, under that office door creep the blahs.

The midcareer blahs are thoroughly nasty sorts. They scribble red-crayon graffiti around those gold letters, like: "So what?" Or: "Is this what you really want?"

THE CHIEF SYMPTOM of the midcareer blahs is an awful sense of more-of-the-same. One has arrived at this certain, trifling competence. But all it seems to bring is this terrible feeling of leveling off. One has no horizon, no future. One feels like the conductor on a very short commuter line, singing out the same stations day after day: Paddington! East Lynne! Cucamunga! And every day the same people get on, the same people get off.

Walter Mitty was a victim of the mid-career blahs, old-style. That is, he kept on keeping-on. He sublimated the problem by means of fantasy: Walter Mitty, flying ace, and so forth. He wrote a whole library of boy's comic books in his head while outwardly playing the game: the ever-more-boring game.

TODAY ONE DOES not sublimate one's restlessness. One is expected to Do Something About It — this crisis that finds men with 15 or 20 years of the same thing behind them and 15 or 20 years of the same thing ahead of them. Economists with a turn to compassion, like Peter Drucker, have suggested that victims of the midcareer blahs should go back to school and retool for a new career, a fresh start in their 40's or at least the illusion of a fresh start. That's one idea.

John R. Coleman may have another. Dr. Coleman, president of Haverford College, feels no wall-climbing urge to switch careers. But, like Mitty, he shares the need to escape life's main role now and then. Unlike Mitty, Dr. Coleman's escapes are not fantasies. Furthermore, they are downward-mobile rather than upward-mobile. Dr. Coleman, a labor economist by specialization, took advantage of a semester sabbatical to play the unskilled laborer. He worked as a farmhand in Ontario, a ditch digger in Atlanta, Ga., a garbage collector in College Park, Md.

DR. COLEMAN'S two-month saga, which might be titled "Down and Out in the U.S. and Canada," reached a sort of climax when he was fired from a South Boston cafeteria a matter of hours after he had been hired as porter-dishwasher. For three days the successful college president, failed dishwasher walked the streets, unemployed. "I was demoralized," he has been quoted as saying. Then he made a comeback, as a sandwich and salad man.

Dr. Coleman had his real job, to say nothing of his real bank account to fall back upon. Wiseacres — particularly those who have done less — are free to put down Dr. Coleman's escapade as slumming or blue-collar dilettantism. But if the midcareer blahs are the desperate signal for a new perspective, the Coleman therapy should not be dismissed. Could a trip to Europe or, say, a change of profession promise a sharper shake to the old kaleidoscope?

TO WORK WITH your hands, just as a hobbyist or weekend fixer, is to become a different self in a different world. To work with your hands, even briefly, as a vocation is to open yourself to all sorts of variant identities, some of them humbling, a few of them shattering, but all of them, to say the least, educational.

People who don't work with their hands, day after day, shouldn't sentimentalize "manual labor." People who don't work with paper, day after day, shouldn't romanticize "desk jobs." Both can become ghastly dead ends. But another observer of all sorts of blahs pointed out a profounder problem, perhaps the ultimate midcareer problem. A professional identity, worn like a uniform, keeps man from seeing his primary child-like relationship to God, Pascal suggested. Garbage collectors, Dr. Coleman suggests, don't have that problem at least.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By BILL ROBERTS

65% Of Traffic Fatalities Are Young People Under 25

For a decade or more our country sweltered under rhetoric concerning the Vietnam War and the most frequently heard statements centered on the slaughter of young life, referring to the deaths of so many American and foreign soldiers under 25 years old.

Perhaps it is time to cast a careful eye at an area of incomprehensible slaughter which also seems to involve youth.

HIGHWAY FATALITIES have been a common occurrence since the first cars surpassed speeds at which human life became endangered by twisting metal, breaking glass and immovable objects.

And the daily review of accident reports at the California Highway Patrol office in Corte Madera can only cause more reflection on why greater numbers of accident victims are not killed.

BUT A STARTLING pattern may be emerging from the list of highway fatalities, and that is where the emphasis on youth comes to the front.

Three of the last fatalities in Marin County were 25, 18 and 21 years old. In total, 11 of the first 17 deaths on Marin's highways this year were youngsters under 25.

An overemphasis on statistics is always dangerous, and pure numbers cannot explain the personal agony of family and friends when a serviceman dies in a motorcycle crash far from home or two local teen-agers die and five others are hurt in a car accident.

THIS OF COURSE is not to say that the death of an individual over 25 is not felt just as deeply. But the taking of life at such a young age deprives all society of a potentially useful and productive individual.

The highway patrolmen who daily bring in reports on fatals, injury and noninjury accidents deal with individual cases. And the reader may often have a difficult time relating one accident to another. But whereas the under-25 deaths made up only 42 per cent of all fatalities for 1969 through 1972, they are 65 per cent of this year's highway deaths.

It is easiest to relate to pure numbers after a weekend of holiday deaths in which large totals can hammer home points to those who survived the countless hazards and traps created by drivers who drink, don't think or are just plain careless.

But the isolated instances of a joy ride which ends in disaster, the teen-age party from which a youth never returns or the senseless act of seeing how fast a souped-up car will go all can add an equally abominable statistic to death totals.

OBVIOUSLY THE problem does not lend itself to a simple solution, and reporters will continue to recount the circumstances surrounding a death on the highway.

But if America could be concerned with the loss of life during a decade or more of war, it should be an easy transformation to work to allow the youth of America to reach their 25th birthday and beyond without having life snuffed out on a strip of asphalt.

Steel Executive, Wife Are Slain

CORTLAND, Ohio (UPI) — An elderly steel company executive and his wife were found shot to death at their home in this northeastern Ohio community yesterday.

Killed were C. Walter Holmquist, 78, and his wife, Dorothy, also in her 70s.

Holmquist was former president of Copperweld Steel Corp. and served on its board of directors.

The Trumbull County sheriff's department said the two were found in the basement recreation room and had been hit by rounds fired from a shotgun at very close range.

Maine Hopeful

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — George J. Mitchell, a long-time advisor to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, announced yesterday he will seek the Democratic nomination for governor of Maine.

Economic Pie Will Be Sliced Tomorrow

Marin County supervisors, meeting at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Civic Center, will slice the county's "economic development" pie among local civic and cultural organizations.

About $82,500 is in this year's economic development fund which annually is divided among the groups, 24 of which have applied this year.

Half of the funds are derived from the hotel-motel tax revenues which are then matched with county general fund money.

Last year, the fund totalled $65,000, of which the county chamber of commerce was given $30,000 and the remainder divided among 10 other groups such as Marin Music Chest, Shakespeare Festival, Sonoma-Marin Fair and Redwood Empire Association.

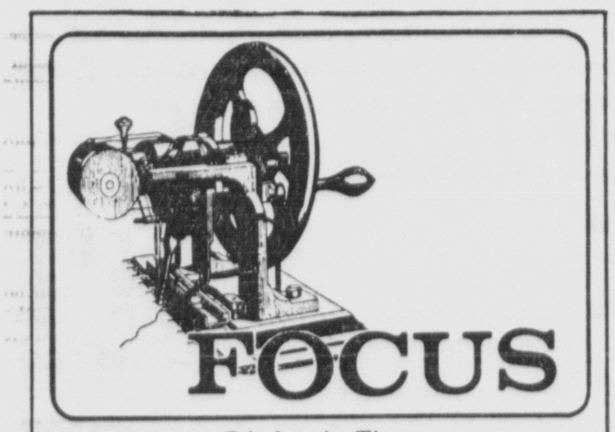

The 24 groups this year are requesting a total of about $97,000.

The board of supervisors also will meet at 8:30 a.m. as the board of directors of the regional park district to consider the district's first purchase of open space land.

According to Pierre W. Joske, district general manager, the proposed acquisition is for about 10 acres on the ridge dividing San Rafael and Sleepy Hollow.

The purchase price for the land, overlooking Terra Linda, is $60,000 Joske said. It is owned by the Daughters of the Holy Spirit of Fairfax Inc., a Catholic order.

Supervisors also will meet as directors of the county transit district at 8:45 a.m. to discuss increased costs of local bus service supplied by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Stitches in Time

Elias Howe thought he had the market all sewed up with this machine. Although not the first person to invent the sewing machine, Howe received the first U.S. patent in 1846. Finding no interest in America, Howe went to England, where he sold the English rights to a corset maker. Returning to the U.S. in 1849, he found others marketing sewing machines. Howe felt his patent rights had been violated; years of disappointment and legal action followed. His patent rights were finally established in 1854 and until they expired in 1867, Howe received royalities on every sewing machine made in the U.S. Howe was born on this date in 1819; he died a millionaire in 1867.

DO YOU KNOW — When did the first electric home sewing machine go on the market?

12 Burglaries In Marin, S. Sonoma

Twelve residential burglaries were reported by Marin and Southern Sonoma law enforcement agencies last week including the theft of personal possessions valued between $800 and $900 from a San Rafael home.

Residential burglaries reported in incorporated cities were:

BELVEDERE

MILL VALLEY

(Mill Valley reports are incomplete because the city council has ordered police to withhold the name and address of burglary victims.)

Friday — Personal possessions of unknown value taken Wednesday from a residence in the 100 block of Ethel Avenue.

NOVATO

PETALUMA

Brooke Recommends Return Of Sihanouk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., recommended yesterday that Peking-backed Prince Norodom Sihanouk be returned to power in Cambodia.

In a 143-page report on his 18-day visit to Japan, Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam last April on behalf of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Brooke appeared ready to accept as inevitable a Cambodian government run by the Communist-backed insurgents who have encircled the capital, Pnohm Penh.

He depicted American bombing in Cambodia as the "crutch" which has probably prevented the collapse of Gen. Lon Nol's beleaguered army. Nonetheless, he said, the conflict should end. He called it inhumane, costly and ineffective.

His report was written before President Nixon signed into law the congressional compromise which will force an end to the bombing on Aug. 15.

Brooke urged the administration to press for negotiations which would lead to the return

American Pays Price At Pamplona

PAMPLONA, Spain (UPI) — James Glass relived the drama of a Hemingway novel Sunday, running with the bulls at Pamplona's traditional festival of drinking, dancing and bullfighting.

The price was a nine-inch gash from the horns of a 1,000-pound bull.

"I was watching a runner in front of me and not paying attention," Glass said. "I thought the bulls had gone in a straight line across the ring and into the corrals."

Glass, 24, of Chatanooga, Tenn., said he had successfully negotiated the narrow, cobbled half-mile course ahead of six fighting bulls.

But as he crossed the sand of the bull ring he was suddenly hit from behind and gored in the left leg.

"He was trying too hard to gore me and only drove his horns into the sand," said Glass, a computer programmer in the U.S. civil service. "When he moved on I got up, and then I discovered I was wounded."

Glass, who came to Pamplona for the fiesta from his job in Heidelburg, West Germany, was rushed to the provincial hospital along with three injured Spanish runners. Doctors took 16 stitches in a half-inch deep gash that ran nine inches along his left thigh.

"But luckily no nerves or tendons were affected," he said. Doctors classified the wound as "slight" but said Glass would probably stay in the hospital for a few more days.

"I guess it's my last run with the bulls," he said. "At least for this year."

Arizona Blast Toll Climbs To 8

KINGMAN, Ariz. (UPI) — The death toll rose to eight yesterday from a fireball that mushroomed through the center of town from a burning railroad gas tanker.

Richard Lee Williams, 47, a school principal who suffered second and third degree burns over 65 per cent of his body, died at Good Samaritan Hospital in Phoenix, Ariz.

Bill Casson, 52, was buried Sunday in the first funeral of a disaster victim. Of the 70 persons injured, six were listed in critical condition at hospitals in Phoenix and Las Vegas, Nev.

State and federal investigators were reassembling the wreckage of the tank car, parts of which were hurled for a quarter of a mile. Authorities said a faulty safety valve may have played an important part in the disaster.

Brown, Moscone Level Blasts At Mansion Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Two Democratic gubernatorial contenders have denounced plans to build a $1.3 million governor's mansion in a prosperous suburb rather than near the Capitol.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Senate Democratic floor leader George Moscone of San Francisco were both sharply critical of the proposal to construct the mansion on the site of an ancient Maidu Indian burial ground.

Brown also attacked the "unnecessary luxury" and the expense of building the mansion on a site in Carmichael overlooking the American River.

Describing the proposed structure as a "virtual Taj Mahal," Brown declared:

"Our governor should be provided with an adequate home, but it is highly improper to house him in the fashion of a king or emperor, far from the people in suburban seclusion."

Moscone said building on the burial ground would "further divide" Californians.

The men, both contenders for the 1974 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, made their comments in separate statements released during the weekend and Friday.

Reagan last month signed a $110,000 bill providing for an archaeological study of the Maidu burial site.

Victim Slain By Holdup Duo

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A hamburger stand cashier was shot and killed yesterday during a holdup which netted two young robbers a small amount of money, Edward Westbrook, 19, died from a chest wound, police said.

Police later picked up two suspects in a car.

A Huge Balloon Breaks Loose

LINCKLAEN, N.Y. (UPI) — A balloon nine stories tall being prepared for a trans-Atlantic flight broke loose from its moorings and descended to earth 80 miles away yesterday in the hilly terrain of western New York state.

Operators of the balloon were filling it with helium for a test flight Saturday when four lines disconnected accidentally, sending the 500-pound nylon bag skyward. The gondola was not connected, so no passengers were launched.

The balloon, the "Yankee Zephyr," was spotted by Elizabeth Waldron of Linckaen, who told sheriff's deputies it came down about quarter mile from her home.

CAUSES GRADUAL BLINDNESS

Marin Women United By Rare Eye Ailment

By JOAN LISETOR

Diane Tarrant was watching Joey Bishop on television one night last year and heard him refer to retinitis pigmentosa. Her ears perked up because she is a victim of the eye disease, which causes a gradual loss of sight.

"I wrote to him because he mentioned something about a Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation," she said. "The letter was answered, telling me where to contact the foundation and at about the same time the foundation contacted my ophthalmologist."

It was the first hopeful news she had heard about the disease, the 28-year-old San Rafael woman said.

Joan Tollefson of Kentfield felt like she was the only person in the world with RP, although she knew there were an estimated 100,000 victims in the United States, she said. Then a mutual friend told her about Diane.

The women got together with Mrs. Tarrant's mother, Helen Bullock, and have established a local chapter of the foundation.

THE PURPOSE of the local chapter is to carry out the foundation's objectives of providing information about RP, educating the public about the disease, establishing a confidential national registry, coordinating research and raising funds, Mrs. Bullock said.

Money is being raised nationally for the establishment of a new laboratory in the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston. The planned laboratory will be the first research center in the world devoted exclusively to the study of RP, despite the fact one out of every 80 persons carries the gene for the disease.

Mrs. Tarrant has two uncles who are blind from RP, but, although she had problems with her vision as she was growing up, she never gave a thought to having it herself.

"In high school I found I couldn't play sports well, and I didn't know why because I had been athletic when I was younger. People said I was a snob because I didn't say hello. Now I understand why," she said.

She married at 18 and during her first pregnancy found her vision getting worse, and then a doctor diagnosed her condition as RP. She knew then she would gradually lose her sight, she said, but being stubborn decided to have another child two years later. Again her vision took a marked turn for the worse. Wanting a third child, she said, she realized then the danger and the possibility of passing RP on to another child, so she and her husband, Edward, decided to adopt. The Tarrant children are now 9, 7 and 5 years old.

In the past year her vision has deteriorated rapidly, and Mrs. Tarrant now carries a white cane. She was forced to stop driving and also lost the ability to read, she said.

"LAST SUMMER I was so depressed. My world was crumbling and I met Jewel McGinnis, a counselor and teacher for the state rehabilitation service. She herself is visually handicapped, and she has taught me so much and given me confidence and inspiration with her positive attitude," Mrs. Tarrant said.

Mrs. Tarrant runs a house with aids such as a braille timer, "how else can I bake cake?" she asks.

Talking books make her feel lazy, she said, but she enjoys them, although she gets more out of braille.

Her children are very understanding, she said, and also curious about what it looks like when you are blind.

"I was worried how they would react when I got the white cane," she said, "but they accepted it. When I went out alone for the first time my oldest son told me he was very proud of me. My little girl does things like pick up a pill if I drop it, and one of the boys was crossing the street with me when a boy on a bicycle almost alsmot ran me down and he shouted, 'Mommy, Mommy dont' go.'

"They do get upset sometimes that I can't do what other mothers do like drive a car or be a yard monitor at school"

Most of the vision she has left is peripheral and she sees outlines.

"I realize now I am losing my vision, when I remember that a few years ago I could see the freckles on my child's face," she said.

She is enrolling in the fall at the College of Marin and will take courses in child psychology and speech. She hopes to get a degree in sociology and work as a counselor for the department of rehabilitation. She is taking speech, she said, because she would like to go out as a speaker for the RP foundation, she said.

MRS. TOLLEFSON was 20 when her condition was diagnosed as RP and she thought she had only 10 years of vision left. She considers herself fortunate to have some vision left at 45.

"I haven't the courage to use a white cane," she said. "But when I go out I either have to qualify myself and explain my condition or play the fool tripping over things. I am more comfortable being with friends who know."

The Tollefsons' children are 9 and 19, and Mrs. Tollefson is concerned about the possibility that they might have inherited RP. She has a niece who has.

Mrs. Tollefson rides a bicycle, but recently has been forced to limit her activities.

"I want to be outside as much as I can. I guess it is because I want to see all there is to see while I can," she said.

Women Seek Jobs In Mines

By ED TOWNSEND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Women — as coal miners?

Under United States federal law, yes; women have equal employment opportunities. They can apply for jobs in the mines.

But, according to the United Mine Workers' Journal, no; they will not be welcome — even though miner shortages exist in some areas.

The question is not entirely academic.

Four women, fed up with $15 to $20 a day pay and with working conditions in the textile industry in southwest Virginia, applied last August for jobs as miners in the Pittston Coal Company's Clinchfield mines at Dante Va. They said they were the "lead group" of disgruntled women from textile mills able and willing to work beside men in the mines.

THE CIVIL Rights Act of 1964 bars a company from discriminating in hiring because of sex or a union from sex bias in its membership.

The mines have only been hiring men previously laid off. So far, the union says, there has been no opportunity for the women to be considered.

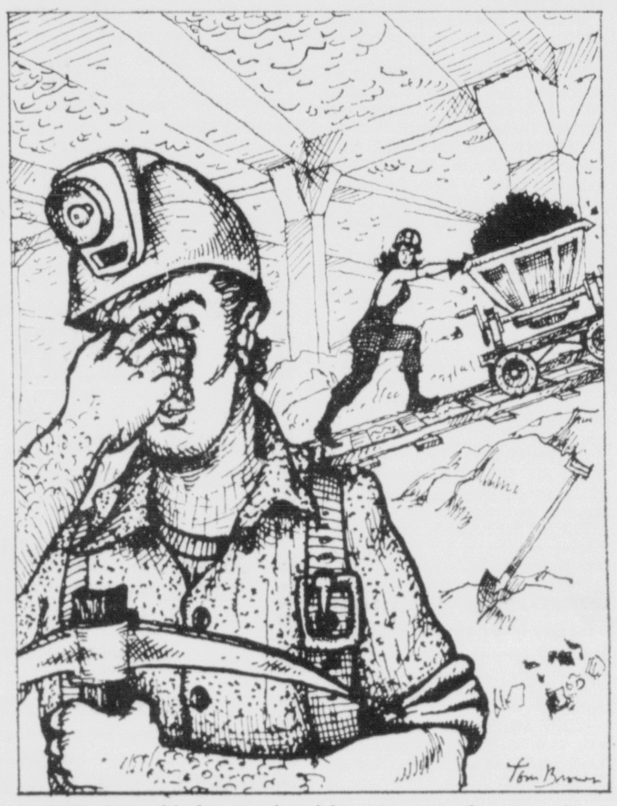

Only a small minority of local miners questioned favor giving the women a chance, according to the union. The consensus of others seemed to be that women can and should stick to factory jobs or other work above ground.

The unanswered question is whether the women will be willing to — or will go to court if their applications are ever turned down.

Other women have won jobs under the law — on ships, for instance, in posts formerly limited to men. Some "seamen" on United States freighters are not "men" at all today.

That breakthrough began when a woman was assigned temporarily to cabin duty aboard a cruise ship, was transferred to a man's job while at sea (he had jumped ship in the Caribbean), and then claimed the job when a crew was being signed on in New York for the next voyage.

She sued the ship line and the National Maritime Union under the Equal Employment Act when she was passed over.

FED UP with low paying jobs, a group of women in southwest Virginia have applied for jobs as miners. They are bucking not only sex discrimination, but also an old superstition among coal miners that women are unlucky in a mine. Christian Science Monitor sketch by Tom Brown

IN THE CASE of the mines, women are bidding for jobs they never held before in this country, although they say there are precedents in mines in Russia and Eastern Europe.

The women who applied at the Clinchfield office have not heard anything officially about their applications after eight months, even though they had heard that the mines were hiring only miners laid off in Clinchfield cutbacks of operations over the past few years.

The mines were expected to employ, first, experienced miners laid off from other mines in the area. Inexperienced people will be hired only after that.

The women say they are disappointed. They deny that their applications were a women's movement gesture. One, Mrs. Catherina Tompa, is quoted by the United Mine Workers as saying, "We want these jobs for one reason: money. We work hard now, and we expect to be given the same jobs as the men have. If we can't do the work, we'll admit we're wrong."

Another, Mrs. Katie Alderson, is the wife of a disabled coal miner, one who worked 28 years in the coalfields. Her motive, too, is the money in coal mining, $40 to $50 a day.

The other two applicants were Miss Helen Miller and Mrs. Patty Osborne, whose husband has a low-paying job in a rock quarry. Mrs. Tompa, speaking for all, says, "All we're asking is, just give us a chance to see if we can do the work or not."

IT IS NOT that easy. There is an old coal-mining superstition that women are unlucky in mines. They generally are barred even as visitors in the most modern, sanitized mines.

When the UMW interviewed Clinchfield miners about their willingness to see women take mine jobs, many said they wouldn't enter a mine if a woman went down into it.

And many raised a question that probably irked them most, after the worry about women being unlucky in mines. If women succeeded in getting miners' jobs, would they not be likely to get special work assignments—the easiest, cleanest jobs.

Party Is Given For Jennie Raffi

By MOLLY MARIN

A surprise party was given in honor of Mrs. Jennie Raffi's 80th birthday Saturday attended by 65 friends and relatives.

Mrs. Raffi has lived in Kentfield since her arrival from Italy in 1923. The party was held in the home of her son, Louis Raffi of Santa Venetia. Hostesses for the champagne and buffet dinner were her daughter Mrs. Marie Brignolo of San Mateo and her daughter-in-law Mrs. Ellen Raffi.

Grandchildren attending the party were Dave, Karen and Sandra Raffi of San Rafael, Marilou McIntosh of San Mateo and Larry and Becky Del Santo of San Marino. Seven of her 11 great-grandchildren attended including Lisa and Angela Raffi and Michael, Mary Claire, Teresa, John and Katie Del Santo. Warning On Sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home economists warn that while end-of-the-season sales offer many real bargains, the shopper should be aware that some items may be on sale merely because they are going out of style.

MONEY MATTERS

Inheritances, Trusts Explained

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Here are some questions and answers about inheritance and trusts:

I have only one daughter and everything I own is in her name, too. When I pass on, does it automatically go to her without having to go to court?

H.S.P.
Grand Island, Neb.

Yes, if it is owned jointly "with the right of survivorship." (See, also, reply to following letter)

With regard to the use of "and," "and or," and "and or with the right of survivorship" in legal documents for joint real-estate ownership, how about using simply "or"?

If the first three alternatives were used, is it true that the property involved must go through probate when either the husband or wife passes on? If only "or" is used in the deed, must the property be probated when one member is deceased?

If "or" alone is not legal as a means of avoiding probate settlement, is it not better then that there be no joint ownership?

A Reader
Orono, Maine

The use of "and," "and or," and "and or with the right of survivorship" is not recommended in connection with title to real estate. It is preferable to take title as "joint tenants with right of survivorship" and not as tenants in common.

In the case of husband and wife, the preferable method is to take title as "tenants by the entireties." In case of "joint tenants with right of survivorship" and "tenants of the entireties," on the death of one, the survivor owns complete title to the real estate. In neither event are probate proceedings necessary, as title goes immediately to the survivor on the death of one tenant.

In the case of "tenants in common," each owns an individual interest in the real estate that must be sold as part of the estate of the deceased tenant and would require that the interest of the deceased be probated.

It is always advisable to consult a local lawyer in a situation of this kind to check on state laws, if any, which might apply.

When using a revocable living trust, will a trustee make a charge for managing the estate as long as we are capable of managing it ourselves? What is a reasonable charge for managing the estate when we are no longer capable of managing it ourselves? What should be the trustee fee for distributing the assets of our estate?

What should a lawyer charge for making out a revocable living trust?

O.H.L.
Detroit, Mich.

If you create a revocable living trust the trustee does make a charge for the management of the estate. The usual purpose in making such a trust is to turn the problems of management of the estate over to someone else.

But in a revocable living trust, you have the right to revoke or change this agreement at any time.

The general fee charged by a bank or other professional manager is based on the size of the trust. For instance some banks charge $5 per $1,000 on the first $200,000 in the estate, $3.00 per $1,000 on the next $800,000. Most banks have a minimum of around $300 per year.

The usual fee for distributing the assets of any estate would be 5 per cent on the principal disbursed. As to your last question, the fee would depend on the size of the trust.

I would like to know what the inheritance tax is in this state (California); that is, what amount is free of such tax and remains the property of the family member, and at what point the inheritance tax is applied, according to law.

Sonoma, Calif.

For the information you seek, you should communicate with the State Comptroller, State Capitol, Sacramento.

Some time ago you had an article on "Funerals needn't cost so much." I am wondering if you could give me some information on the state of New Jersey in regard to cremation and its cost.

E.M.S.
Rahway, N.J.

To quote from my column, which appeared on July 11, 1972: "Cremation involves the crematory charge, which is about $125. In addition the funeral home adds its charge for services in obtaining the required documents, such as death certificate and other necessary papers from city, medical, and health authorities.

"This charge varies according to the rates of the funeral home with which you may deal. One home in this area (Washington) which advertises its low rates, charges $235 covering all costs of cremation. If an urn is desired this would add $50. A memorial service in the funeral home would be $100, making a total of $385 . . ."

This seemed to be the minimum, according to my re-

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Togetherness Not Their Answer To Having Happy Married Life

DEAR HELEN:

My wife and I have a great marriage. The reason? We are together no more than three evenings a week, thus we don't get tired of each other.

We both work, are both involved in many activities. I don't expect Candice to tag along when she would be bored, and she pays me the same favor. We trust each other, we come back to each other. That's enough.

We don't feel that we must appear as a couple, just for the sake of proving we are. She often attends parties alone or with another escort. I do the same, although we each have first right of refusal. When we go places together it's because we are both equally interested in the events so neither feels self-sacrificing or "used."

Our evenings together are often spent at home, getting to know each other again. We do not plan to have children It's like a long, close, undemanding friendship — with love.

I might add our outside friendships are just that — we remain true to each other sexually, perhaps because we don't feel constrained to do so.

The trouble with most marriages is that they become "two against the world,," and who ever heard of "cellmates" remaining friendly?

DEAR TIALI:

"Open marriages" are great only if you are lucky enough to choose the right (equally open) partner. You have! Congratulations. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Several books have been written about the benefits of young men choosing older women as their mates. An older woman is less demanding, more experienced, more stable and understanding and, besides, she's grateful.

On the other hand, young girls do better with more mature mates who can act as father-figures and take care of them, until they mature mentally.

So . . . this suggestion: In our brave new world of the future, it should be mandatory that young men marry women nearing 50, and young girls marry men who have reached the meridian — the first time around. After they stay with these mates for no more than five to ten years, they'd be ready to choose mates near their own ages, with whom to have children. Then, when the children are grown, they could divorce again, and start a new cycle of marrying people younger than themselves, while the divorced older people, nearing retirement age would whoop it up at golden age villas.

This was brought up for discussion around the pool (at our singles complex) and I present it for your readers' consideration — J.A.

DEAR J.:

Poolside Skinnerisms leave me a bit cold, but maybe a few of my readers will warm up to your suggestions. (But don't hold your breath!) — H.

Kentfield Woman Is Elected President Of Mills Alumnae

Kathryn B. Goldsmith of Kentfield will lead the Mills College Alumnae Club of Marin this year.

Mrs. Goldsmith, the wife of Robert H. Goldsmith, has been a member of the organization for one year. The club, she said, promotes the interests of Mills College and introduces the college to Marin County. It also tries to interest members in branch activities and raise money for the scholarship fund, she said.

Activities for the year will include a branch fund raising project for the scholarship fund, a dinner with a speaker from the Mills College faculty and a spring luncheon.

The alumnae organization is open to any former student who was an undergraduate at Mills for at least one semester or any former student who attended Mills College Graduate School for at least one semester.

Mrs. Goldsmith is also a member of the Planned Parenthood Auxiliary of Marin, the Kentfield Guild of the Boyd Marin Museum of Science Alpha Omicron Pi Alumnae Club and the Marin Art & Garden Center.

Officers to serve with Mrs. Goldsmith include Mmes. Helen Drake Sanford, vice president; Leonard Isaacson, secretary; John McLaughlin, treasurer; Richard Verling, publicity chairman; Gary Gulbransen, student referral chairman; Richard Tait, alumnae council representative, and Janet Wright, membership chairman.

Milk Production Going Down

Milk production for all of 1973 will probably be at least one per cent less than in 1972, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The prediction was revised because dairy farmers continue to cull dairy cows heavily as feed and operating costs are increasing. Milk production for May, as an example, was two percent below last May. In California, production of both market milk and manufacturing milk for butter and cheese use is on a downward trend.

Gadget Helps To Pull Elastic

A new gadget to pull elastic through a tubular seam is said, by Women's Wear Daily, to be more efficient than the safety pin, which is usually used for this purpose.

The device is a pincher with a sliding ring that clamps the serrated teeth firmly shut. Because of the flat ends, the ribbon or elastic won't twist as it is threaded through the garment, and the rounded head prevents catching on any internal seams. It is designed to help those who sew at home.

GOLDEN HINDE TO SET SAIL

A full scale replica of the Golden Hinde, the three-masted ship in which Sir Francis Drake circumnavigated the globe between 1577 and 1580, waits final checks in Appledore, England, before going on sea trials. Built by a Marin County syndicate, the $1 million replica will sail to London soon for an eight-week stay before sailing the Atlantic in October. It's destined to become a tourist attraction at Fishermen's Wharf in San Francisco. (UPI Telephoto)

THE 234TH TIME

A Happy Birthday; He Was Arrested

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State police gave feisty Robert H. Simpson, dean of the state Capitol protesters, just what he wanted for his 93rd birthday.

They arrested him for the 234th time yesterday.

"Give me a scrap and I'll be happy forever," said Simpson, who makes it a point to be arrested for picketing in the Capitol.

The arrests have occurred so often that a Capitol policeman once said, "It's like taking the cat out at night. It's something that has to be done."

To Simpson, his job is to protect the people's right to complain.

"Complaining is the first of your rights and you should preserve it. When you can't complain, you're lost," he said.

Simpson has prowled Capitol corridors since 1966 with his portable walking chair, provoking the legislature to pass a law banning his activities.

The red-lettered signs of the native of Ireland—a former amateur boxer, Methodist minister and Salvation Army major — denounce officials from President Nixon on down.

"Impeach Reagan," reads one of the old man's signs.

And in a letter to Reagan, Simpson has offered himself as "missionary-at-large to the heathen in control of the state of California."

For Simpson's birthday party, Dr. John Summers of Sacramento provided a cake decorated with the inscription—"Happy Birthday R. H. Simpson, Fighter for Freedom."

Mrs. Van Dyke, who happened along as the festivities began, cut the cake and gave slices to curious tourists.

Some warily eyed the wispy old man, but Simpson didn't care.

"I never stop because of what people think. I just do my job," he said.

Simpson's 234 arrests, by his own count, have become nearly ritualized. He is taken into custody, escorted to jail and then released.

Once Simpson was brought to trial and sentenced to 60 days in jail. The sentence has never been carried out.

During the trial, public defender Kenneth Wells said, "There's something very, very American about this little old man ... daring to prick the consciences of people who are very big people.

"He is fighting against all the power of the state. And that power is directed at silencing Mr. Simpson."

A move is underway in the legislature to repeal what is now known as the "Simpson Law" which bans him and other picketers from the Capitol.

Yokohamans Arrive In San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A contingent of 62 visitors from Yokohama, Japan, arrived last night for an official visit to their sister city.

They are members of the Yokohama-San Diego Friendship Committee. It was the first official visit of Yokohamans to San Diego in four years.

The delegation was led by Councilman Nagayuki Suzuki, who said, "The Yokohama delegation and I express our most sincere appreciation for your enthusiastic welcome for us."

Among the others, who included 27 women, were City Manager Tomitaro Koizumi, Councilman Shinzaburo Yamamoto, Nihon Photo News vice president Susumu Hara and opera star Hamako Watanabe.

The visitors were to tour the San Vasqual Wild Animal Park today and be welcomed officially tonight at a reception at the Royal Inn at the wharf.

The contingent left Yokohama July 4 and stopped at Mexico City and Los Angeles before arriving here. They were to leave Tuesday for San Francisco and Honolulu before returning home.

Economist Predicts Rationing Food To Help Exports, Dollar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An expert on world food production believes Americans soon may be forced to ration the food they eat in order to maintain exports and the value of the dollar abroad.

Lester R. Brown, an economist for the nonprofit Overseas development Council, said yesterday domestic food rationing would be a better alternative to President Nixon's proposed controls on exports.

Brown, who directed international agriculture development for the Agriculture Department from 1966 to 1969, described the export controls as a "serious mistake."

He also predicted that domestic food prices will never return to the low levels of the 1960s. He said food would be in short supply around the world for the next year.

"Beyond that, we may be faced with chronic global food scarcity for the foreseeable future," he said.

Brown made his comments in an interview published by U.S. News and World Report magazine.

He was critical of Nixon's order limiting soybean exports and the President's request to Congress for authority to impose broad controls on other U.S. farm exports.

"Those exports are keeping this nation economically afloat in a very real sense," Brown said. "A limit on U.S. farm exports would further weaken the dollar.

"It would certainly limit our ability to import the vast quantities of petroleum that we must have from abroad to keep U.S. business and industry going."

He said that as a result it may be necessary to ration food in the United States "in one form or another."

"We can't hold down farm exports without endangering the dollar or triggering serious energy shortages," Brown said. "In such circumstances, it may very well be that Americans will have to limit the intake of certain types of food, as some other countries are doing, in order to export agricultural commodities."

Brown said the administration should not impose price ceilings on beef, pork, poultry or eggs under Phase IV of the economic program. He said retail price ceilings coupled with the high price of feed would force many producers out of business.

"We run the risk of empty meat counters at various times and places in the months ahead," Brown said. "The imposition of ceiling prices treats the symptoms but ignores the causal factors— namely burgeoning world demand fueled by both rapid population growth and rising affluence."

In Rapid City, S.D., 15 Midwestern governors met to discuss the effects of the fuel shortage and price freeze on the food supply. The conference chairman, Gov. Robert Ray, a Republican from Iowa, said he would not ask for any resolutions on farm problems. "I shy away from resolutions at such meetings as this because too often the participants act too hastily without the proper background," he said.

A SAD HOMECOMING

While American warplanes completed their 124th consecutive day of heavy bombing in Cambodia yesterday, this woman and her son returned to their home after government troops cleared the area 16 miles from Phnom Penh. She found her village almost destroyed, and her feelings of helplessness are evident. Fierce fighting near the capital prompted the American bombing. The concussions were so strong, according to United Press International, that windows rattled in the city's center. (UPI Telephoto)

Larkspur Sets Budget Final

The Larkspur City Council will hold a special meeting Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at city hall for a final session on the city's proposed 1973-74 $1,540,066 budget.

Under discussion will be capital outlay proposals, including $80,000 for sewer work, $50,000 to buy a site for the long-wanted new library, and $118,500 for improvements, development and tennis courts at Piper Park.

Asst. City Mgr. Harlan Barry said a total of $475,000 in capital outlay projects will be considered by city councilmen, who have already approved the salaries and materials and supplies sections of the budget.

If the last budget sections are approved Wednesday, said Barry, the council would adopt the final budget at a public hearing in August, setting a tax rate of approximately $1.98 per $100 assessed valuation, the same as this year's.

Hearing Set On Shelter Ridge Issue

The Mill Valley City Council will decide tomorrow night whether or not the Shelter Ridge development overlooking Highway 101 should be exempt from a city development moratorium imposed in June.

The council will hear an appeal by the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association of a use permit granted a few weeks ago by the city planning commission. The permit allows Shelter Ridge to be excluded from the building ban.

Should the council uphold the use permit, it will go on to consider the Shelter Ridge master plan, already approved by the planning commission. The master plan calls for development of 130 apartments and 23 single family and duplex units and 72 units of low and moderate income housing known as Shelter Hill.

If the use permit is revoked, the master plan will not be considered.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The intruders broke in through three doors, said police, and stole $600 cash.

Three Arrested In Belvedere Drug Raid

Three Belvedere men were arrested yesterday on suspicion of narcotics violations after police confiscated "a large quantity of suspected marijuana, cocaine, hashish oil and heroin in their home.

Held in county jail in lieu of $7,500 bail were William Mansfield Graham, 21, of 777 Tiburon Boulevard, and Donald D. Fannin, 25, of the same address. Both were to appear today in Marin Municipal Court. John Ralph Fannin, also known as John Hightower, 30, of the same address, posted $7,500 bail and is to appear Friday in municipal court.

Graham and John Fannin were booked on suspicion of possession of heroin, possession of marijuana and possession of marijuana for sale, possession of dangerous drugs and possession of narcotics paraphernalia. Douglas Fannin was booked on suspicion of possession of marijuana for sale and possession of dangerous drugs, plus being in a place where narcotics were being used.

Police said they went to the men's home at about 11:30 a.m. yesterday to investigate the theft of automobile parts stolen from a house on Beach Road the night before. Officers said the men had been seen in the vicinity of the home when the theft occurred.

Officers said that after being let in, they found a large quantity of suspected marijuana on a living room table. The three men were then taken into custody. A juvenile, also in the home at the time of the arrests, was not held.

Armed with a search warrant, investigators from the Belvedere and Tiburon police departments returned to the home at 4 p.m. and found what were described as large quantities of the rest of the suspected drugs, more than $1,000 in cash plus scales and other narcotics paraphernalia, officers reported.

Police said they had not yet computed the amounts or the street value of the suspected narcotics confiscated in the search.

Motorcycle Crash Victim Improved

Larry F. Pryor, 32, of Petaluma, critically injured June 10 in a motorcycle accident, was reported improved today at Santa Rosa Memorial Hospital.

Pryor, of 50 Jess Avenue, was reported now in satisfactory condition. He had been thrown from his motorcycle while riding in a field west of Payran Street, Petaluma.

More Pressure On Vietnam: Legion

COVINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The national commander of the American Legion says the United States should apply military pressure to North Vietnam if necessary to get information on Americans still missing in action.

"If necessary, military pressure should be brought to bear to force the North Vietnamese to let our investigation teams go in there (North Vietnam)," said Joe Matthews of Fort Worth, Tex. "They need to go back into the interior and check around all back there.

Dog Shot For Rabies Didn't Have Disease

A dog shot in Bolinas last week because it showed symptoms of rabies did not have the disease, the Marin County Health Department reported today.

The brain of the St. Bernard and German Shepherd mix, shot by a sheriff's sergeant on July Fourth, showed no sign of rabies when tested by the state health department, according to the Marin Department.

The dog belonging to Joy Bowdy was shot by Sgt. William F. Naber, who said it was staggering along Bolinas Road, frothering at the mouth and apparently without muscular control.

Miss Bowdy, who lives in Bolinas, said the dog had showed the same symptoms on June 30 when someone gave it beer. She called the shooting "an honest mistake."

Budget Review Will Continue

The Marin County Board of Education will continue review of the proposed 1973-74 budget at its meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the county office in Corte Madera.

The board last month considered a budget of $5,063,728 which would require a tax rate of 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation for a slight increase over the current rate of 19.82 cents.

The board also will elect new officers for 1973-74.

Senator Challenges Drug Firms' Pricing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said today he finds unsatisfactory the drug industry's "glib explanations" as to why it sells some drugs overseas for half the price charged Americans.

Nelson said his view is supported by a decision by U.S. District Court Judge Sylvester E. Ryan finding the practice of the drug firms in enforcing its two-price system a violation of the antitrust laws.

As chairman of the Monopoly subcommittee of the Senate Select Committee on Small Business, Nelson has conducted hearings on drug pricing practices over a period of five years.

When on Sept. 29, 1972, he attacked the two-price system, he said, Eli Lilly & Co., issued a statement which cited variations in "wage rates, distribution costs, price and wage controls, taxes, import duties, revaluations of currency and sources of raw materials" as justifying different prices "from one marketplace to another."

But that explanation does not hold up in light of a Justice Department study, Nelson said.

It found that "many American drug companies sell drugs to domestic wholesalers at different prices depending on where the drug is to be used," he said. "If the domestic wholesaler states that the drug will be shipped overseas, his price may be a third to a half lower than if he were to sell it to domestic users."

Shedrick Williams' Sensitive Eye Gives Rewarding Display

By ADA GARFINKEL

The immense variety of life — its fanciful world of childhood, some of its esthetic and utilitarian qualities and some of its truths and changes — are recorded with dramatic insight and clarity in the photography of Shedrick Williams.

In his exhibit of black and white photos at the Social Security Gallery in Northgate, the drama of a select moment, place, or object, becomes a focal point for the viewer to experience a new reality of vision.

A blonde and dimpled Shirley Temple doll, a Baroque carousel of prancing horses and a billowy-Peter Max-type wall mural are vivid examples of Williams's fairyland footholds on time.

And the silky sheen of a silvery-blonde nude or of a sparse stand of slender firs reflected in mirror-still the bubbling, murky craters in a shallow, midnight tidepool, and the sculptural contours of a bowl of fruit in close-up are also treasured moments.

Williams, who works with a variety of seven different cameras, states, "Each time I photograph, I find a new world through the lens of my camers."

One of these worlds is that of the work-a-day, industrial scene where Williams finds order and form in an interior shot in a melange of wheeled dollies, bunched-up tarpaulins and other workshop paraphernalia.

Sometimes there is an oblique comparison of forms. To wit: the roundness of the checkerboard pattern of oil drums with a shot in which the sharp, diagonal thrust of a rack of folded metal chairs is enhanced by a gleaming, lightening-like highlight.

Several of Williams's photos are recordings of former elegance — the arched portico of a Renaissance structure, a young man slouching against its peeling columns, and another of the broken windows of a wooden building bearing the year 1896 in blocky figures, now awaiting demolition, also speak of the passage of time.

And his dignified approach to people is seen in a range of allegorical studio poses as well as in studies of poverty areas.

This exhibit will continue through Aug. 3, and may be seen weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 549 Northgate Drive, San Rafael.

Nixon Advised To Speak On Watergate

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI) — The energy crisis, problems of food production and shades of the Watergate affair confronted the 12th Annual Midwest Governors' Conference today.

Washington Gov. Daniel Evans, chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Governor's Conference, yesterday called upon President Nixon to hold a news conference to outline his version of the Watergate incident.

Evans, here for a meeting of the Executive Committee held in conjunction with the Midwestern Governors' Conference, said he felt a news conference would provide the best forum for a presidential appearance.

The Republican governor said, however, that he felt the President should wait until more major witnesses have testified before the Senate Watergate Committee before making a statement on the matter.

"I don't think that, until such a conference is held, can full confidence of the people in the President be restored," Evans said. "He should clarify his role and let national attention move back to the major issues before us."

"Watergate is not the first instance of misuse of campaign funds. Anything we can do to open up the matter of contributions is to the good," he said.

Evans said governors also are concerned with the growing energy crisis and are in the process of creating state energy councils as a "useful adjunct" to the Federal Trade Commission. He said states ultimately may face the necessity of allocating fuel to various elements within the state.

Earlier yesterday, Iowa Gov. Robert D. Ray, chairmen of the Midwest conference, said that farm problems are immediate and growing by the minute. But he said he would refrain from asking for resotutions on farm problems, including what he called "a meat crisis."

"I shy away from resolutions at such meetings as this because too often the participants act too hastily without the pro

Supreme Court Decision Spurns Obscenity Raids

BY U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Authorities across the country are raiding blue movies, confiscating hard-core sex books, and passing new antipornography laws in response to the Supreme Court's ruling letting states set their own guidelines on obscenity.

A UPI survey Saturday showed that for purveyors of pornography, the heat is on. Adult bookstores in many areas may soon carry only "soft" porn and the near total nudity in girlie magazines could disappear.

Playboy magazine, which already has been taken from the stands in many towns, has said it will make "editorial adjustments," especially in the photography in future issues, as a result of the ruling.

The high court ruled last month that cities and states could decide what should be banned as obscene based on "average persons applying community standards." The new decision threw out the older "rule-of-thumb" that material must be "utterly without redeeming social value" to be judged obscene.

Some communities took the ruling as a go-ahead to impose tougher measures against pornography and flush out blue merchandise.

In some states such as Texas and Colorado, existing laws, made in accordance with the old "social value" rule, rendered crackdowns impossible pending a change in the laws. Because of the vagueness of the "community standards" ruling, many authorities were cracking down on obvious hard-core pornography but were hestitant to move against borderline cases.

MUSIC REVIEWS

Chamber Music Concert Applauded At College

By R. LEE CARLSON

The Music Department of Dominican College presented a unique program of 19th Century chamber music yesterday at Forest Meadows, drawing an enthusiastic response from the small audience for these rarely performed works.

The program began with Vincent d'Indy's Piano Trio in B flat Major, Opus 29. I found this trio to be the most interesting work of the afternoon. It was written in 1888 and while it often relates strongly to the writing of Cesar Franck, d'Indy's teacher, it possesses a rhythmic vitality which is fresh and a clear use of instrumental color. The piece, indeed, represents a mature example of the composer and of French Romanticism.

Tom Rose on clarinet played d'Indy extremely well. His phrasing was consistently clear and the instrument had a good sound. There are considerable technical demands for the piano which Betty Woo handled, generally, with ease. The long lines were planned and well built, but would have beeen better sometimes on a less grand scale. This adjustment would have perhaps heightened the sound of the cello and afforded the ensemble an easier flow, especially in the rather charming second movement. An excellent balance was achieved during the finale and a very refined lyric cello was played by Gretchen Elliott.

Although d'Indy is considered to have a special talent for larger instrumental forms, yesterday's program makes one eager to hear more of his chamber works.

The Sonata in G Major for Bassoon and Piano, Opus 168 by Camille Saint-Saens represented a pleasant contrast in the program. Chuck Ullery on bassoon sustained long expressive lines in the first movement with fine control and rich sound.

The humor of the second movement was a delight, and the molto adagio was particularly beautiful. Here Miss Woo gave good piano sound. The playing was absolutely clean and highly polished.

Soprano Anna Carol Dudley projects a special air of enjoying her art. There is an ease about her manner of singing which makes the audience feel very secure and receptive.

At first the six songs, Opus 103 (Book VII), by Ludwig Spohr seemed rather dull. There was a great monotony of rhythm and a rather low keyed song-melody type of theme. But they were performed with such care and beauty, that as the group progressed the pieces became more interesting. Number five, especially, allowed the singer a greater area of expressive possibilities. Also the clarinet and vocal lines, while often technically resourceful, seemed more spontaneous.

The program ended with an early work of Mikhail Ivanovich Glinka, Trio Pathetique in D Minor for clarinet, bassoon and piano. The first movement, folklike in quality, expressed an unpretentious idea which Glinka felt at the age of 23. The piece then shifted to a rather operatic pace ending with a genuine finale, chords and all.

The performance level was extremely high and the audience left the meadows having experienced works of the period which are not only historically important, but mostly, individually and quite interesting.

Band Enlivens Campus On Summer Afternoon

By VERA M. OLMSTED

Summer was pleasantly ushered in yesterday afternoon by the first of two outdoor concerts by the College of Marin Community Band, directed by John H. Myers.

The setting recalled an earlier day, when Sunday afternoons were spent around the bandstand in the city park. The large casually-dressed audience was seated under huge trees in the College's center Mall and spilled over onto the grassy area nearby.

This summer marks the 12th year of the band's outdoor concert series, and this group of musicians has built up a regular body of fans who enjoy both the music and the ambiance.

The summer band is composed of college students, members of the community, and high school students, all drawn together by the desire to perform under knowledgeable leadership and to have a good time.

The program opened with a stirring regimental march by John Philip Sousa, without which a real band concert couldn't properly begin. Myers got a fine sound from the band, and it snapped out the rhythms as convincingly as if it were marching itself.

Other works presented ranged from traditional and contemporary band pieces, to some infrequently heard works arranged especially for band.

One of the more enjoyable works was the "Lustspiel Overture" by the Hungarian composer Keler-Bela, and arranged by Charles J. Roberts. Reminiscent of a Strauss waltz, this lighthearted piece was immensely popular in its day. The band followed Myers' direction closely, effectively bringing out the dynamic variations.

Another interesting work was "A Walking Tune" by Clare Grundman, an original band piece by a writer well-known for his band compositions. This melodious piece, written in a popular idiom, changes back and forth from a "walking" rhythm to a run, and the band here changed tempos very cleanly. The music builds up to a climax which brought a bright clear sound from the whole ensemble.

A capricious wind came up during the "Imperial Russian Festival Suite" and caused Myers' score to flutter in the breeze and skip a few pages, but he and the band kept on without missing a beat until he could wrestle the pages back under control. Other numbers heard included several marches, both traditional and contemporary, a Mancini medley, an arrangement of a Gershwin Prelude, and an original composition, "Irish Folk Song Suite" by Frank Erickson.

The receptive audience clapped loudly after each selection, and was rewarded by two encores at the end of the program.

The next summer concert will be held July 22 at 4 p.m.

Joe E. Brown Last Rites Held

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Comedian Joe E. Brown, who died Friday, succumbed to pneumonia and heart failure due to hardening of the arteries, an autopsy disclosed Sunday.

Brown, who was 81, had appeared in 55 movies.

A funeral mass was said at St. Martin of Tours Catholic Church yesterday and burial was to be today at Forest Lawn in Glendale.

Piccola Heard by 6,000 At Spoleto

SPOLETO, Italy (UPI) — The Orchestra Piccola of Marin ended a successful tour of Italy yesterday with a performance of Benjamin Britten's War Requiem before an estimated 6,000 persons.

The teen-age orchestra —the first amateur group to perform at Spoleto—joined other orchestras and the Westminster choir for the closing performance of Italy's Festival of Two Worlds.

"It was a fabulous experience, we all wanted to do well and I think we did," said viola player Judy Hobbs, 16.

"The audience liked us and that is the best part because we really wanted to do well," said violinist Patty Bottis, 18.

About 6,000 persons crowded the Piazza Duomo, Spoleto's main square, to hear the requiem, the fifth concert that the 27-member string orchestra has performed in at Spoleto, orchestra adviser Audrey Jarach said.

The group replaced the Italian National Orchestra Association in a Mozart marathon Friday night after less than a day's rehearsal.

"Every time they played they got a standing ovation. It was a wonderful night," Mrs. Jarach said.

There were too many orchestras and choirs performing for one of them to win a separate review, but Italian newspapers in Rome were unanimous in praising Benjamin Britten's "War Requiem."

Milan's il Giorno praised what it called "The moving eloquence and musical refinement of this war requiem where the ancient text of Christian prayer flows superimposed on the text of our drama of human violence."

It called conductor Christopher Keene, 27, of Berkeley, Calif., "a tall, blond, dashing and capable conductor whom Spoleto had already put in the spotlight in past years, and who seems to express very well the bold efficiency of the new generation and its punctual professional precision."

Il Giorno estimated the audience at nearly 10,000 and said the atmosphere in the piazza was one of "happy concentration and farewell."

Turin's Stampa Sera said the lines by British poet Wilfred Owen, which Britten used in his work, "fell on the 10,000 spectators, heavy like the warning of a god ready to unleash apocalypse." It said the crowd was enthusiastic over Keene's conducting.

World In A Money Crisis

By HARRY B. ELLIS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Since 1970, declares a noted European banker, the "international monetary system has been through an ordeal by holocaust," with inflation a chief culprit.

Otmar Emminger, deputy governor of the Deutsche Bundesbank, discounts "distrust in parities and disorderly capital flows" as the root cause of the latest bouts of monetary unrest.

Dr. Emminger developed his current views on the international monetary scene in the annual Per Jacobson lecture given at the end of last month in Basel, Switzerland.

He notes that, despite the breakdown of the Bretton Woods monetary system, world trade continues "to expand by leaps and bounds," and international investment is "flourishing."

Massive flights from the dollar into stronger currencies, in other words, which have forced the world into an interim period of floating exchange rates, have not curtailed trade and investment.

These speculative flows did, however, cause the monetary system itself to break down, because the "limit of tolerance for the inflationary effect of such currency inflows had been reached."

The West German Bundesbank, for example, could not indefinitely support the U.S. currency by buying billions of dollars for marks without feeding internal German inflation. The same was true for Japan, Holland, Switzerland, and other lands with strong moneys.

But where did this inflationary pressure originate? The German banker notes the complaint, made "again and again," that Europe was "importing inflation from the United States" by accepting and holding its dollars.

Dr. Emminger finds, however, that "in the 20 years from 1953 to 1973, U.S. prices increased less than those of all other major industrial countries, even apart from changes in relative currency values."

European inflation was higher than that of the United States. How, then, could Europe import inflation from the U.S.?

Or, putting it another way, why did not the lower U.S. inflation rate act as a brake on worldwide inflation?

Demonstrably it did not, for the "average weighted price increase" per year among OECD (Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development) countries has risen from 2.4 per cent in the late 1950's to more than 6 per cent today.

Excluding the U.S. the current inflation rate among the other 22-nation membership of the OECD runs from 7 to 9 per cent.

Even as Dr. Emminger spoke, the nine-nation European Community (EC, or Common Market) reported that its "biggest (economic) worry is the continued general inflation."

The EC ascribes these inflationary pressures partly to the "rising cost of imported raw materials and semimanufactures." Europe, like America, is having to pay more for its Arab oil and other basic commodities.

Without discounting this factor, Dr. Emminger points out that the postwar Bretton Woods system, based on the dollar as the central reserve currency, generated inflation on its own, as time went on.

Dollar outflows from the U.S., beginning with defense, Marshall Plan, and foreign-aid contributions, swelled enormously as American corporations built hundreds of branches overseas and as investment capital flowed from the United States to Europe.

Gradually the U.S. tilted from surplus to deficit in its balance of payments, chalking up a $30 billion payments shortfall in 1971 and $10 billion last year.

As the Japanese and European economies became competitive with that of the U.S., the American trade balance — always in surplus until 1971 — fell into deficit.

The "overhang" of Eurodollars, held outside the United States and available for massive investment or speculation, mounted to its present estimated total of about $80 billion.

Under the fixed-parities system of Bretton Woods, foreign central banks intervened to support the dollar, and hence the fixed parities of their own currencies.

Thus the system itself, not domestic American inflation, fed inflation, fed inflation by allowing "a large structural imbalance to build up in the world economy, with the further consequences of imported inflation and excessive liquidity creation."

As the dollar profressively weakened, notes Dr. Emminger, the fixed-parities system was perverted "from being an instrument of discipline on deficit countries to one forcing monetary debauchery on surplus countries."

Now the world, operating on floating exchange rates, stands between collapsed Bretton Woods and a reformed monetary system toward which the 125 members of the International Monetary Fund are groping.

IMF experts, including Dr. Emminger, believe the the "vast supply of volatile liquid funds" — in short, the Eurocurrency pool — must "be somehow reduced or brought under control" if the new system is not to be inflationary as well.

There is, warns the German bank official, "no panacea in sight." For the time being the world must live with the "monster" of the Eurocurrency "overhang," which Dr. Emminger estimates at more than $100 billion, most of it in dollars.

"We will have to find out by trial and error," he declares, "what combination of monetary-policy coordination, more elastic exchange rates, and defensive capital controls will yield the best results — and do the least damage — in taming destabilizing capital flows."

The "decisive precondition for a more stable system," he stresses, "will be the rehabilitation of the dollar." So long as the dollar "is under a cloud, the potential for disturbing flows will be very great."

Subdivision Review Slated

The Corte Madera Planning Commission will review its approval of a subdivision which the town attorney has said may contain illegal lots at 7:30 p.m. today in the town hall.

Attorney Albert Bianchi told the town council last month that some lots in Hidden Valley Unit 6, above the end of Sausalito Street, may not be large enough to satisfy the town code.

The commission approved the subdivision plan in March.

In other business, the commission will consider proposed amendments to the town's redevelopment plan and design for a commercial building at 13 San Clemente Drive.

Fairfax Will Discuss Budget

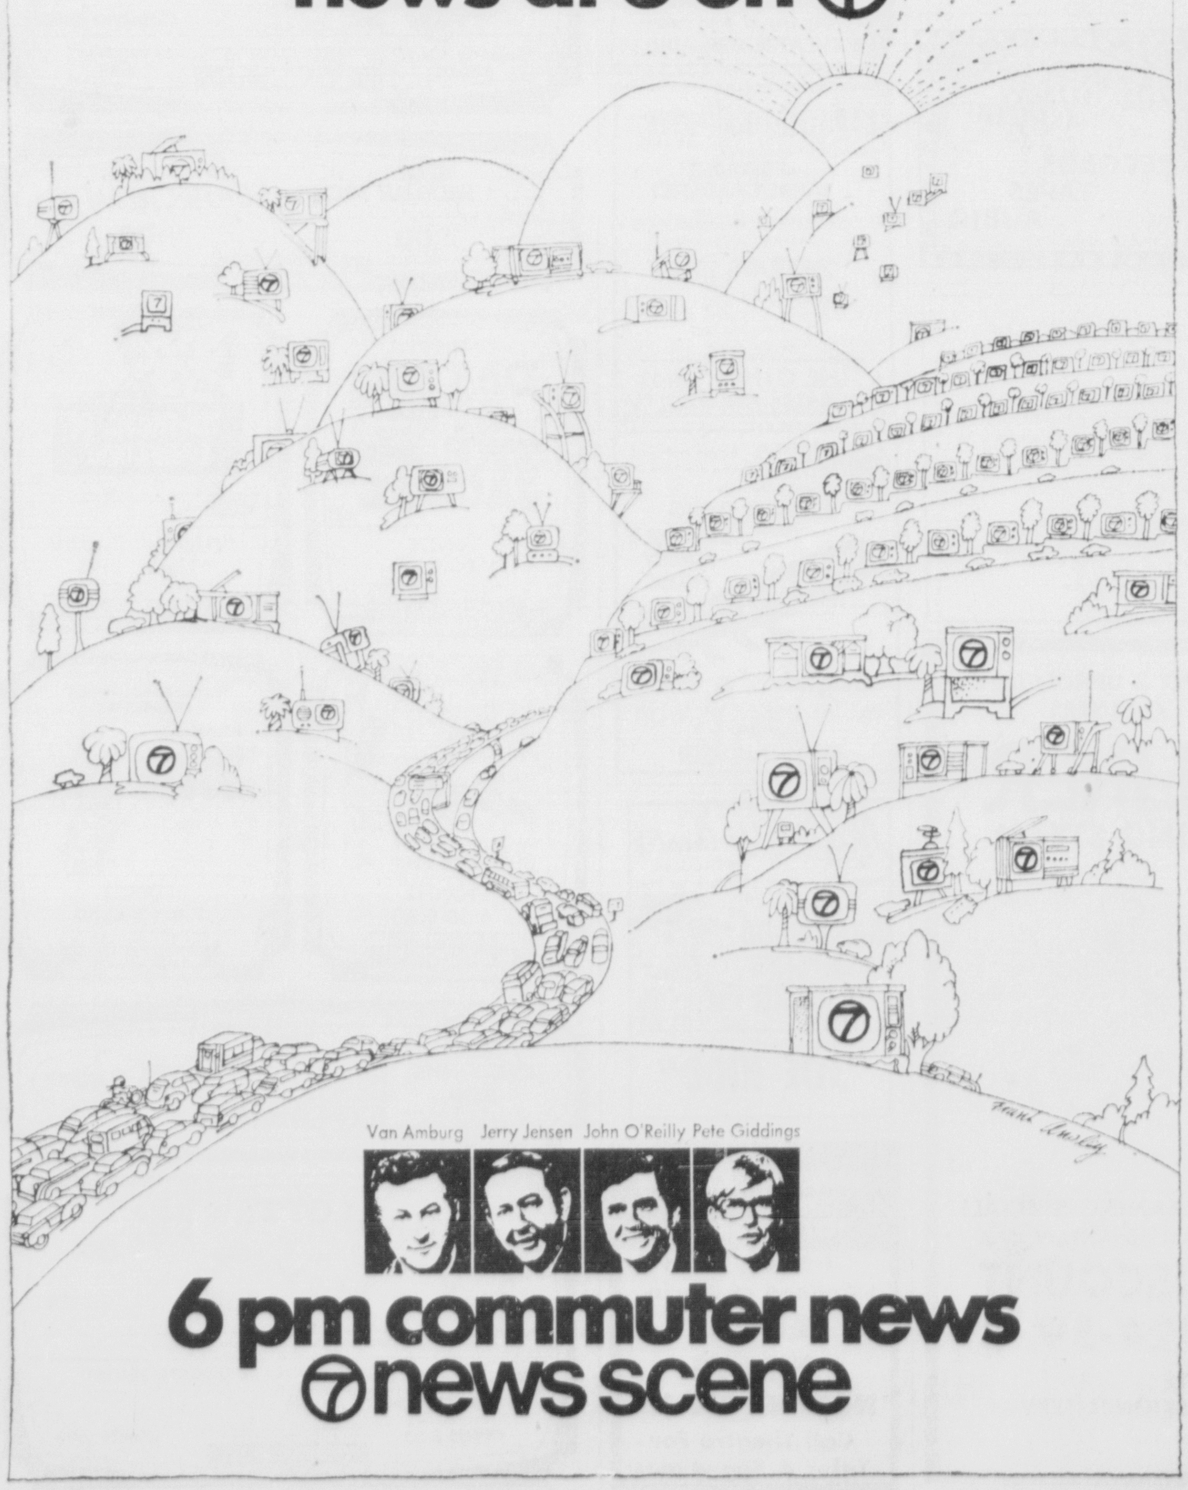

The Fairfax Town Council will consider adoption of the 1973-74 budget at its meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Women's Club.

The council last week granted salary increases to some employees, but did not reach agreement with the town police officers.

Officers have charged that councilmen have been unwilling to compromise and have not negotiated in good faith.

Harsh, blah or smooth taste.

What makes the difference?

Generally, two things make your cigarette taste the way it does.

The tobacco and the filter.

And often, the difference between harsh, blah and smooth tasting cigarettes can be traced to their filters.

The beauty of the Kent Micronite filter is the way it smooths the quality tobaccos we use in Kent. Not too much, so that the taste turns blah. Or too little, so that the taste turns harsh.

It's done with a special process (so special it's patented) by which the Micronite filter actually chooses which tastes to hold back and which to let pass.

What it lets pass is the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

HIGH POINT OF SUMMER

Brothers Await Scout Jamboree

By PAUL CANE

A trio of Greenbrae brothers will be among a Marin contingent of approximately 220 youths attending the 1973 National Boy Scout Jamboree in Farragut State Park in Idaho, Aug. 1-7.

Peter, Steve and Mark Molinari, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Peter E. Molinari of 57 Corte Gracitas, are heading for the Lake Pend Oreille region of Idaho along with about 30,000 other Boy Scouts from around the United States.

The three Molinari boys are reaching the end of their scouting careers — 17-year-old Peter has already reached the eagle rank, and his two younger brothers will soon follow him to the highest rating in scouting achievement.

All see the upcoming scout assemblage as the high point of their years in scouting.

What is a jamboree?

Scout officials say the word was coined in 1920 by scouting's founder, Lord Baden-Powell, who hit upon the term because all the boys in the gathering "would be jammed together."

The jamming together, according to the Molinari boys is what makes the jamboree such an unusual experience.

For the first time in its 33-year history, the quadrennial jamboree is opening its doors to all scouts, regardless of rank. This enables whole troops of scouts, like the Molinari's Troop 59 of Greenbrae, to make the excursion.

The 1973 jamboree will be divided into two widely-separated locations to better handle the throngs of young scouts that plan to attend.

Most West Coast boys will attend the Jamboree-West at Farragut, while eastern scouts will head for Moraine State Park in Pennsylvania.

In all, a record 70,000 young men will participate in the program this summer.

According to scout leaders, the jamboree will feature competitions in baseball pitching, hitting and throwing, track races and football skills contests. Recreational activities will abound, using Lake Pend Oreille as a boating, fishing, and swimming center.

The traditional scout skill contests also will be featured, with exhibitions in everything from log-rolling to Hawaiian pig-roasting to folk dancing to water bronco riding.

Evenings will feature professional entertainment and fireworks displays.

The 220-member delegation from the Marin and Sonoma-Mendocino Area councils will bring patches and emblems of their organizations to trade with members of other groups, much in the same way that Olympic athletes trade their team insignias with those of foreign competitors.

Peter, a junior assistant scoutmaster, stressed that social interaction, more than the formal activities, was the real point of the jamboree.

He said meeting people from other areas was what made the national jamboree so much better than similarly-structured local camporees and scout-o-rama affairs.

The Molinari boys, all former Independent-Journal newspaper carriers, bring 12 years of combined scouting experience to the jamboree. Steve, 15, and 14-year-old Mark are in the process of completing work on their final merit badges for their eagle rating.

Peter, who will take time out when returning from the jamboree to look at his possible future college choice, the College of Idaho at Moscow, spoke of the benefits of scouting.

"You learn a lot of good stuff starting as a tenderfoot and working through to eagle," he said.

Mark, a troop quartermaster still striving to reach his goal of eagle, agreed that it was not easy to continue on one endeavor for such a long period of time, but said, "We're hacking it OK."

Steve, a senior patrol leader, succinctly expressed the consensus that the boy scout program was beneficial to youth. "No scout is an ideal person, but scouting helps you set standards for yourself, something to work toward."

Scout units from Marin attending the jamboree will be Troop 38, sponsored by St. Luke's Presbyterian Church, Peacock Gap; Troop 39, Marin County Deputy Sheriff's Association; Troop 57, San Rafael Kiwanis Club; Troop 59, Greenbrae Property Owners Association; Troop 61, Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, Santa Venetia.

Troop 72, Aldersgate Methodist Church, Terra Linda; Troop 74, Lucas Valley Community Church; Troop 77, Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church, Mill Valley; Troop 80, Corte Madera Optimist Club; Troop 87, Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints, San Rafael Ward; and Troop 88, Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints, Greenbrae Ward.

Southern Sonoma County units attending will be Troop 18, sponsored by the Coast Guard Training Center, Two Rock; Troop 3, Penngrove Community Church and United Church of Christ, Cotati; Troop 4, Cotati Lions Club; Troop 8, Petaluma Rotary Club, and Troop 23, Troop 23 Parents Club, Rohnert Park.

GETTING READY — The three Molinari brothers of Greenbrae, (from left) Steve, Peter, and Mark, prepare their gear for the 1973 National Boy Scout Jamboree, to be held Aug. 1-7 at Farragut State Park in Idaho. Peter, an eagle scout, is a senior at Redwood High School. Mark and Steve are both students at Marin Catholic High School. The brothers are members of Troop 59 of Greenbrae. Inverness Survey Is Completed

Nearly 800 planning questionnaires out of some 1,400 circulated among residents and property owners in the "Inverness pocket" have been filled out and returned to the survey committee, Donald M. Patterson Jr., survey chairman, announced Saturday.

Patterson told an audience of more than 40 persons at a community meeting at Inverness School that the next step was to organize a planning group, with representatives from all parts of the area, to use questionnaire results in drawing up a local plan. A show of hands indicated approximately 30 of those present were willing to work on the plan.

The group named Patterson interim chairman until the group's next meeting, at a date to be announced.

Patterson defined the Inverness pocket as including all privately owned land on the west shore of Tomales Bay between Sea Haven to the north, and Silver Hills to the south, including the communities of Inverness, Paradise Estates, and Inverness Park.

Ellis Gans, a long-range planner on the Marin County planning staff, told the audience the planning group's job will be to draw up a detailed local plan in conformance with the broader outline of the county-wide general plan.

A paper bag passed around for donations to meet initial expenses of the group netted $82.56 in cash and $25 in pledges.

Septuagenarian Collapses, Dies After Dancing

A 72-year-old El Sobrante man died Friday night at Rancho Nicasio shortly after dancing while a guest there.

According to the Marin County coroner's office, Norman O. Dynn, a retired Southern Pacific Railroad Co. employee, had just finished two dances, when he collapsed at his table at 10:17 p.m. Efforts of the Marin County Fire Department to revive him were to no avail and he was pronounced dead on arrival shortly afterward at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael.

The coroner's office said, Dynn had a history of hypertension and had suffered a heart attack about five years ago.

A widower, he leaves a stepson in Pinole and two daughters, one in Seattle, the other in Alaska. Funeral arrangements were pending today at Wilson and Kratzer Mortuary in Richmond.

Fire Prevention Meeting Scheduled

A fire prevention meeting for homeowners and children of Terra Linda will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Santa Margarita Valley Park, a spokesman for the Santa Margarita Homeowners Association said today.

San Rafael firemen will give lectures and demonstrations at the meeting, according to Charlotte Schmid, association secretary.

Cotati Police Chief Denies Seeking City Manager's Post

Cotati Police Chief Thomas Gray today denied reports that he will become Cotati's next city manager.

City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen resigned under fire last week and said he believes Gray had already been selected to replace him.

"At no time has the possibility of my serving as city manager even on an interim basis ever been discussed with any of the council members," Gray said. "I have not applied for the position of city manager nor do I intend to.

"Since late February, a widening rift has developed between the city manager's office and the police department. Mr. Salfen's statements have suddenly made the reasons for this rift all too clear."

The police chief said Salfen may have got the impression he was earmarked for the city manager's job because of his close association with the council and because he is studying for a master's degree in public administration.

Salfen resigned effective Aug. 15. The young council majority had planned to fire him this week, charging he has been uncooperative and has worked against their efforts to improve Cotati.

Plans to fire Salfen in turn sparked a recall movement against Mayor Geoffrey Dunham and Councilmen Annette Lombardi and Stephen Laughlin. The recall election will be held Sept. 4.

Annual Rabies Clinic For Dogs To Begin

The Marin County Public Health Department will begin its annual series of rabies vaccination clinics for dogs tomorrow from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Marion School in Novato.

The clinics, 12 in all, come during a resurgence of rabies in the county, which has had about 21 reported rabid animals since October.

State law requires that all dogs more than 4 months old be vaccinated against rabies and licensed. The chick-embryo (modified live virus) vaccine, which is good for two years, will be used at all clincs and costs $2.50 per dog.

The clinics will be cosponsored by the Marin County Veterinary Medical Association and dog liceses will be sold by the Humane Society at places near most of the clinics.

The schedule for clinics is:

Tomorrow — 6 to 8 p.m. at Marion School, 1705 Marion Avenue, Novato.

Thursday — 6 to 8 p.m. at the city school administration building, Third and E streets, San Rafael.

Saturday — 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the corporation yard, Sycamore and Camino Alto, Mill Valley.

July 17 — 6 to 8 p.m. at the county fire station, end of Railroad Avenue, Woodacre.

July 19 — 6 to 8 p.m. at the town safety building, Tamalpais and Pixley avenues, Corte Madera. No licenses available.

July 24 — 6 to 8 p.m. at the city corporation yard at the end of San Francisco Boulevard, San Anselmo. No licenses available.

July 26 — 6 to 8 p.m. at the city school administration building, Third and E Streets, San Rafael.

July 31 — 6 to 8 p.m. at the Ross School, Lagunitas Road, Ross.

Aug. 2 — 6 to 8 p.m. at the county fire station, Second and A streets, Point Reyes station.

Aug. 4 — 6 to 8 p.m. at the corporation yard, Sycamore and Camino Alto, Mill Valley.

Aug. 11 — 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the city school administration building, Third and E streets, San Rafael.

Residents Want Report Thrown Out

Tiburon residents known as the friends of Ring Mountain will ask the city council tonight to throw out as unacceptable an environmental impact report for a single family home development called Paradise Estates.

According to Richard G. Arjo, Director of Community Development, the group contends that the report, already accepted by the city planning commission, does not cover all points required by state law.

Pacific Land Projects plans to build 19 homes in the development on Paradise Drive near Ring Mountain.

Also tonight, the council will have the second reading of an ordinance allowing architect Neill Smith to rezone 102 acres of land from a single family residential zone to an agricultural zone.

Half of Smith's land on the Paradise Drive side of the Tiburon Peninsula lies outside the city limits. He has said he will joint this land to the city.

Paradise Drive residents have contested the rezoning on the grounds that Smith is planning dangerous experiments with sewage.

Touring Choir Robbed, Aided

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A thief posing as a janitor stole $1,880 from a Norwegian girls choir, taking all the singers' personal spending money while they were giving a recital at a church. The church members came to the rescue.

"Many were so saddened they just stood and cried. Some of the girls had worked so long to save their money," said soprano Grete Helen Stang, a member of the 83-voice Sandefjord Girls Choir, made up of girls between 10 and 22 from Sandefjord, a town of 32,000.

The girls are on a 21-day tour of California which ends Wednesday in San Francisco.

Pact Averts Clerk Strike At Macy's

A three-year, 91-cent-per-hour wage increase offer was accepted by the local retail clerks union, ending nearly four months of negotiations between the workers and Macy's of San Rafael.

Wages will be increased 31 cents per hour in 1973-74, and 30 cents per hour in each of the next two years, according to Billie Birchard, business agent for the union. She said that the settlement also provided for more than 20 new fringe benefits.

The union had threatened to strike Macy's, beginning today, if a wage settlement was not reached, she said.

Local 1119, speaking for the retail clerks of Macy's local store, had asked for pay equality with employees of the San Francisco branch. Currently, a San Francisco journeyman's base pay is 54 cents per hour more than a San Rafael employee's salary.

Sonoma Plane Crash Kills Two

A plane piloted by Dr. Tony Cohen, 40, a San Francisco psychiatrist, crashed into the rose garden of a rural home and killed his wife, Dr. Lynn Cohen, 36, and her daughter, Stefanie.

The pilot was reported in serious condition yesterday at Sonoma Valley Hospital.

Dr. Marvin Simmons, a Fresno physician ,who was piloting the other plane, was able to land despite the collision without injury to himself or his daughter.

Both planes were making approaches to the Sonoma Sky Park when the accident happened.

Lanes To Close

The state Division of Highways announced today that traffic will be reduced to one lane east and westbound from the west gate of San Quentin Prison to the Larkspur City limits tomorrow from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. to permit widening and realignment of the roadway.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Secrets of the ages! Yes, nobody is going to tell you how old they are today. But you can find out by using our magic formulas.

A. Samuel Eliot Morrison is very old by the calendar. But in spirit, health, brain power, and sheer productivity, he outshines people half his age. Today he is at his desk in his century-old seaside home in Northeast Harbor, Maine, writing another history book. His age today? Add 60 to D's age (below).

B. Albert C. Wedemeyer is in World War II history books. But don't let his advanced age fool you. Lately he has been active as a director of National Airlines. Born in Omaha, Neb., he was graduated from West Point, rising from lieutenant to general.

C. Edward Heath is 10 years older than Queen Elizabeth II of England. He serves her and his country as Britain's prime minister, leader of the Conservative Party. His age? Subtract 19 from B's age (above).

D. O. J. Simpson is 26 today. It's no secret that this young man was a sensational running back for the University of Southern California a few years ago. Now playing pro ball for the Buffalo Bills he is fast becoming one of the top rushers in the American Football Conference.

Answers:

A - Samuel Eliot Morrison, 86 txday;

B - Albert C. Wedemeyer, 76 today.

C - Edward Heath, 57 today.

D - O. J. Simpson (60 years younger than A).

FIRST TRICKS

South took the first two tricks with the ace and king of trumps, led a spade to dummy's ace and returned the jack of spades.

East properly played low, and South discarded a diamond. West won with the king of spades and returned a low club.

Declarer took the club in dummy with the ace and led the ten of spades. When East casually played a low spade, South could discard another diamond, relying on East to have the queen of spades. Or, instead, South could trump the ten of spades and later rely on East to have the ace of diamonds.

The contract depended on this choice. Did East have the queen of spades or did he have the ace of diamonds?

VITAL CLUES

The vital clues came from what West had not done.

West had not led the king of spades to begin with. He might have done so if his spades were headed by king-queen.

West had not opened a diamond. Moreover, West had not shifted to diamonds even after South discarded a diamond on the jack of spades. Surely West would have shifted to diamonds unless that lead looked very dangerous to him. West's failure to lead a diamond was very strong evidence that he had the ace of diamonds.

SOUTH SAFE

South therefore decided to throw a diamond on the ten of spades. The trick held, and South was safe. He could now give up a club and ruff his last club in dummy to assure the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you open with one heart, and partner raises to two hearts. The opponents pass throughout, and it is up to you again.

You hold:
♠ - 7.
♥ - A K 10 9 4 2
♦ - K 4 3
♣ - 9 7 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have a minimum opening bid, and your partner's response is weak.

Library Association Sets Another Sale

The San Rafael Library Association, which raised $166 at a recent used book sale, will have another sale on the library lawn Sept. 8 for the benefit of the library.

The hours haven't yet been set, according to Clarice J. Kraemer, membership chairman. Anyone who wishes to donate books in good condition to the sale can leave them at the library, Mrs. Kraemer said.

'Rental Show'

A collection of works in various media on a wide variety of subjects can be seen in the "Midsummer Rental Show," at the Terra Linda Art Association Gallery, 4172 Redwood Highway, San Rafael. The showing can be seen from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Saturday and all paintings are available for three-month rental.

ORDINANCE NO. 1111
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL AMENDING TITLE 5, TRAFFIC REGULATIONS, CHAPTER 5.60, PARKING METERS, BY ADDING TO AND DELETING THEREFROM CERTAIN AREAS OF PARKING, AND SECTION 5.60.068, ENTITLED "TEN HOUR PARKING METER ZONES".

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1. Title 5, Chapter 5.60, Section 5.60.010, is hereby amended by deleting therefrom the following: The two paragraphs following the words "described as follows:", which start with the words "Beginning at a point", and end with the words "office of Marin County".

DIVISION 2. Title 5, Chapter 5.60, Section 5.60.010, is hereby further amended by adding thereto the following:

Parcel 22, Block 263, County Assessor's Map Book 11 as revised in 1972, being the upper and lower decks of a City Parking Lot in the vicinity of the southwest corner of Third Street and Lootens Place.

DIVISION 3. Title 5, Chapter 5.60, is hereby amended by adding thereto Section 5.60.068, entitled "Ten hour parking meter zones", which shall read as follows:

"5.60.068. Ten hour parking meter zones. The parking limits upon Parcel 22, Block 263, County Assessor's Map Book 11 as revised in 1972, being the upper deck of a City Parking Lot in the vicinity of the southwest corner of Third Street and Lootens Place, shall be and are hereby fixed at the period of ten consecutive hours.

"Parking meters, when installed upon the upper deck of said parking lot, shall be so adjusted as to show in addition to the matters set forth in Section 5.60.060, legal parking for an additional nine (9) consecutive hours or fraction thereof, upon and after the deposit of United States coins in the amount of a five cent coin or from one to five additional United States one cent coins for parking upon said portions of said parking lot for each additional consecutive hour or portion thereof."

DIVISION 4. This ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage, in Independent-Journal, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael, and shall be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after its final passage.

/s/ JOHN A. MISKIMEN
Acting Mayor

/s/ MARION A. GRADY
City Clerk

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 1111 was read and introduced at a regular meeting of the City Council of the City of San Rafael, held on the 2nd day of July, 1973, and was ordered passed to print by the following vote, to wit:

AYES: Councilmen: Jensen, Mulryan, Nixon and Acting Mayor Miskimen

NOES: Councilmen: None

ABSENT: Councilmen: Mayor Bettini

and will come up for adoption as an Ordinance of the City of San Rafael at a meeting of the Council to be held on the 16th day of July, 1973.

MARION A. GRADY
City Clerk

No. 1058 July 9, 1973

LEGAL NOTICE
NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Board of Supervisors will hold a public hearing to consider an amendment to Title 22 (Zoning) of the Marin County Code by reclassifying the following properties within Assessor's Parcel Book #164 from the present zoning to A-60 (Agricultural and Conservation District - one unit per 60 acres), as set forth in Chapter 22.10 of the Marin County Code:

Assessor's Parcels
#164-320-01, 02

NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that said public hearing will be held at the hour of 3:00 p.m. on the 24th day of July, 1973, in the Board of Supervisors Chambers, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, at which time and place any and all persons interested therein may appear and be heard thereon.

GEO. H. GNOSS
County Clerk of the Board

No. 1063 July 9, 1973

NOTICE OF COMPLETION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT for the JEFFREY COURT REZONING has been completed and is available for public review. Copies of the Draft E.I.R. are available for review at the Novato Branch of the Marin County Library and the Planning Department at City Hall.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this is a residential project containing 17 lots. The approximately 3.5 acre site is located west of Simmons Lane and south of Leese Lane.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the Planning Commission will hold a public forum on the Draft E.I.R. at 8:00 p.m. on Monday, July 23, 1973, in the Novato Community Building to receive public comment on the Draft E.I.R.

LOVE SEAT IN A LAUNDRY

The light's an unromantic fluorescent glare, and the only thing to watch is the towels whirling in the tubs, but a little cuddly communication takes the boredom out of waiting for this couple waiting for the wash to be done in an all-night automatic laundry in Riverside. The "Free" sign above them is part of a sign reading "Free . . . Try."

By By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Monday, July 9, the 190th day of 1973 with 175 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Elias Howe, inventor of the sewing machine, was born July 9, 1819.

On this day in history:

In 1900, Australia entered the federal British commonwealth.

In 1943, American, Canadian and British forces invaded Sicily during World War II.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev threatened the United States with rockets if American forces attempted to oust the Castro Communist regime in Cuba.

In 1970, Maj. Gen. George Casey and six others were killed in a helicopter crash. Casey was the seventh American general to be killed in Vietnam.

A thought for the day: German poet Friederich Wilhelm Nietzsche said, "Distrust all those in whom the impulse to punish is powerful."

Lebanese Government Is Changed

BEIRUT (UPI) — Premier Takieddin Solh announced the formation of a new 22-man Lebanese government today dedicated to solving problems arising from clashes in May between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas.

The 64-year-old Solh, a former diplomat who habitually wears the red Moslem fez, required 18 days of political bargaining to form what Beirut newspapers called a "government of all Lebanon."

The main issue, political sources said, centered on who should become interior minister —the "law and order" post most directly concerned with future handling of the guerrillas.

The post was demanded by Kamal Jumblat, a member of the Druze Mohammedan sect and leader of the leftwing Progressive Socialist party. He favored freedom of action for the guerrillas and demanded basic reforms in the country in favor of Moslems.

But Christian rightwing leaders, including former President Camille Chamoun, refused to let their factions join the government if Jumblat became interior minister. They supported President Suleiman Franjieh's insistence that the guerrillas, like all Lebanese, adhere strictly to the law.

In his cabinet, Solh adopted a compromise, appointing to the interior post Bahij Takieddin, a follower of Jumblat who is highly respected in rightist circles.

Khalil Abu Hamad, who served as foreign minister for the past three years, was dropped and replaced by Fuad Naffah, a former finance minister.

The new government also faced the task of patching up relations with Syria, which has kept its borders with Lebanon closed since May 8. Syrian leaders have said they would not reopen the frontiers until they are satisfied that Lebanon is giving the guerrillas fair treatment.

The Lebanese government crisis stemmed basically from the resignation of former Premier Saeb Salam 21 hours after the Israeli raid on Beirut April 10. In the raid, the Israelis killed three guerrilla leaders.

A government formed by Amin Hafez, 47, lasted from April 25 to June 14, but never received a confidence vote in parliament to confirm it in office.

It was during Hafez' term that the army clashed with guerrillas in the first half of May.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Sweat Glands Most Important In Cases Of Heat Exhaustion

Heat exhaustion is suspected whenever a person develops headache and becomes faint on a hot day. The skin is flushed and the body becomes drenched in perspiration. If these symptoms occur, go into the shade, or better, into a cool or air-conditioned room.

This syndrome is more common in women, especially those not acclimated to the rise in temperature. Take it easy until the body becomes accustomed to warm weather. This usually takes two or three days.

THE PROCESS involves many organs, but the behavior of our sweat glands is most important. Perspiration contains salt and the loss of too much plays a role in heat prostration and heat cramps. However, as the body adjusts to excessive heat, tests show that the salt content of sweat becomes less and less. The compound is conserved to prevent heat disturbances.

Heat exhaustion ensues when the body is unable to produce enough evaporative cooling to maintain the normal body temperature. This is not a breakdown of the mechanism as occurs in heat stroke.

THE OUTSIDE temperature and humidity are too high, the individual is working too hard, or is wearing heavy clothes that do not allow sweat to evaporate. The loss of too much salt and water also plays a role.

When a person collapses on a hot day, heat exhaustion is suspected if the skin is flushed and drenched in perspiration. (The skin is hot, dry, and pale in the more serious heat stroke.)

Place the victim in a cool environment, remove some of the clothing, sponge with cool water, or turn on the fan. Do not try to make him drink water until he is conscious and able to swallow. Salt can be added to the liquid when available.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, CA. 94902.

SPEEDING GROWTH

V. J. writes: I am a 15-year-old boy who is 5 feet 4 inches and weighs 100 pounds. Everyone keeps telling me how small I am. Should I be taller for my age? I dream about being tall like my best friend. Both my parents are about 5 feet 11. Is there any possible way for me to speed up my growth? Should I eat more?

REPLY

Be patient. Growth can be speeded up but it might lead to side effects that will make you wish you never tried it.

Many boys do not have their major growth spurt until they are in their late teens. Since both your parents are tall, you should follow suit.

JUMPY EYE

B. G. writes: Can a jumpy eye be treated? I've had this for a year and if it keeps up, I'll be a nervous wreck.

REPLY

Find the cause of the irritation, such as poor vision or infection in the eyes, nose, or sinuses. In some instances, twitching comes from too much stimulation from coffee, tea, or tobacco. If it is a tic, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on habit tics.

SAILOR'S TWITCH

R. S. writes: My daughter is dating a Navy boy of 18. He seems healthy, but his nose and mouth twitch all the time. Can anything be done to cure this annoying condition?

REPLY

Cure depends upon the cause. Is he nervous or allergic? Does his mouth twitch because the area is dry or irritated? If he has a tic, the condition may be difficult to cure.

Bicycle Racers Mugged In Park

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five persons competing in a championship bicycle race were attacked and beaten in Central Park yesterday by youths who made off with four of the cyclists' expensive 10-speed racing bikes.

The attacks apparently were carried out by members of the same gang, some of whom used boards, knives and chains to beat and threaten their victims while their confederates disappeared with the stolen bicycles.

In two incidents, three 14-year-old Long Island boys were knocked from their bikes and forced into bushes where they were held captive for 45 minutes while two youths rode off with their bikes, valued at $450.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed bids or proposals will be received by the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District at its mailing address, P.O. Box 9000, Presidio Station, San Francisco, California 94129, or by delivery to its office at the Administration Building, Toll Plaza, Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco, California, until 2:00 P.M. on Wednesday, 8 August, 1973, at which time bids will be publicly opened and read, for the following:

CONTRACT 73-B
BUS MAINTENANCE FACILITY
SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA

The work consists, in general, of constructing a maintenance building, an administration building, and landscaping.

Bids shall be submitted on District's "PROPOSAL" which shall not be removed from the bound Bid Document. The bound set shall be enclosed in a District furnished envelope, sealed and plainly marked with the bidder's name.

Bids must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bidder's bond, as described in the Contract Documents, which shall be forfeited to the District if the successful bidder fails or refuses to enter into a contract awarded him.

Bids will be examined and reported to the Board of Directors of the District. The Board of Directors reserves the right to reject any and all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bid or in the bidding procedure. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of forty-five (45) days after the date of opening of the bids. Each bidder will be notified of award, if award is made.

This contract is subject to a financial assistance contract between the District and the U.S. Department of Transportation. Any name appearing on the Comptroller General's list of ineligible contractors for federally financed and assisted construction is not an eligible bidder.

The attention of bidders is directed to those requirements of the Specifications concerning equal opportunity for employment of contractor's personnel.

The attention of bidders is further directed to the requirements of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the U.S. Department of Labor, which requirements shall apply to all work to be done under this contract.

Specifications, Contract Drawings, Proposals, Bonds and Contracts may be inspected and obtained at the Office of the Secretary of the District, Toll Plaza, Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco, California.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS CALLING FOR BIDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin Community College District of Marin County, California, acting by and through its Governing Board, hereinafter referred to as the District, will receive up to, but not later than 3:00 o'clock P.M., P.D.S.T. of the Thirty-first day of July, 1973, sealed bids for the award of a contract for construction of Phase One of Indian Valley Colleges, Novato, California, consisting of Classroom Buildings of Inner College "A" and Inner College "B", the Administration Building, the Book Store, Corporation Yard, Power Plants Numbers 1, 2 and 3, Basketball, Volleyball and Tennis Courts and their equipment, concrete and asphaltic concrete paving, concrete retaining walls, electrical, gas and water distribution systems, sewerage and storm water drainage systems, and fencing.

All bids shall be made on a bid form furnished by the District. Bids shall be received in the Board Room, Office Center 160 of District at College of Marin, Kentfield, California 94904, and shall be opened and publicly read aloud at the above stated time and place.

Each bid shall conform and be responsive to the contract documents prepared by Neptune and Thomas Associates, Architects, 1560 West Colorado Boulevard, Pasadena, California 91105, copies of which are now on file in the Office of the Director of Planning of the District, Office Center Room 180.

Sets of Drawings and Specifications are available for General Contractors from Marin Builders Exchange, 110 Belvedere, San Rafael, California 94901, 456-3233, where same may be examined and sets obtained upon deposit of $250 per set, which deposit will be refunded upon the return of such copies in good condition within five days after bids are opened. Each General Contractor may obtain two sets.

PARTIAL SETS of Drawings for Subcontractors must be requested of Neptune and Thomas, (213) 255-1401, but will be issued directly from Modern Blueprint Company, 1661 East Colorado, Pasadena, California, who will charge the Subcontractor directly for cost of printing. Neptune and Thomas must give Modern Blueprint Co. a verbal order for release of prints to Subcontractors. Neptune and Thomas will supply to Subcontractors, sections of specifications at printing cost of $1.00 per section. No deposit will be required on partial sets of drawings or specifications.

Each bid shall be accompanied by the security referred to in the contract documents and shall also include a list of proposed subcontractors.

The District reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bids or in the bidding.

Bidders are hereby notified that, pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code of the State of California, Marin Community College District has ascertained the general prevailing rates of hourly wages and rates for legal holidays and overtime work in the locality where this work is to be performed for each craft or type of workmen or mechanic needed to execute the contract which will be awarded to the successful bidder. The prevailing rates so determined by the District Board are on file with the District.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the contract is awarded, and upon any subcontractor under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates to all workmen employed by them in the execution of the contract.

All bidders must be contractors properly licensed to perform said work.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening of bids.

SUMMONS
No. 66688

vs.
GLORIA HENRY, Administratrix of the Estate of FRANCES CLARK, deceased, the Heirs and Devisees of SAMUEL CLARK, Deceased, and all other persons unknown claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the Complaint adverse to Plaintiffs' ownership, or any cloud upon Plaintiffs' title thereto, Defendants.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

To all persons claiming any interest in, or lien upon, the real property herein described or any part thereof, Defendents, greeting:

You are hereby notified to appear and answer the Complaint of the herein named Plaintiffs filed with the Clerk of the above-entitled Court and County, within three months after the first publication of this Summons, and to set forth what interest or lien, if any, you have in or upon that certain real property or any part thereof, situated in the City of Bolinas, County of Marin, State of California, particularly described as follows:

"Commencing on the western side of the Bolinas-Olema Road 235.96 feet South of the junction of the center line of Gregorio's Creek and the western side of said Bolinas-Olema Road; thence 104.28 feet south along said western side of said Road; thence South 76° 45' West 208.56 feet; thence north 13°15' West 104.28 feet; thence north 76°45' east 208.56 feet to the point of beginning."

And you are hereby notified that, unless you so appear and answer, the Plaintiffs will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint, to-wit: That it be adjudged that the Plaintiffs are the owners of said property in fee simple absolute; that their title to said property be established and quieted; that the Court ascertain and determine all estates, rights, titles, interests and claims in and to said property, and every part thereof, whether the same be legal or equitable, present or future, vested or contingent, and whether the same consists of mortgages or liens of any description; that Plaintiffs have such other and further relief as may be meet in the premises.

You may seek the advice of an attorney on any matter connected with the Complaint or this Summons. Such attorney should be consulted within the time limit stated in this Summons for filing a written pleading to the Complaint.

MORE THAN A BUILDING — As the Supreme Court closed its 1972-73 term in June, the question remained: Is the Tribunal a truly Nixon court? President Nixon has let it be known that he did not like the outcome of many of the decisions during the past term.

The New Nixon Spokesman

By COURTNEY R. SHELDON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SAN CELMENTE — The most visible spokesman for President Nixon is a onetime jet pilot who voted for Adlai E. Stevenson Jr., when "it was in the vogue in college."

These are not, assuredly, the qualifications that led to tabbing of White House deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren to be a front man in these days of mangled credibility.

The lean, articulate, amiable Warren comes from a daily-newspaper-executive background and four years of White House public-relations experience.

From now on, it is anticipated, he will be seen much more often at the briefing podium than White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The embattled Ziegler has been awarded a new eminence, that of being an assistant to the President, too.

Less than a year ago, Warren was considering leaving the White House. "I really think I would like to run a newspaper," the former assistant managing editor of the San Diego Union said in an interview.

What kept him in the White House? The crisis of Watergate, without doubt, and "Ron asked me to stay. I feel a great devotion to Ron. I felt I could help him."

Warren's concept of his job is not different than that of most press secretaries: "My loyalty is to the President. If I do my job correctly, the public will be served."

Almost daily Warren faces a briefing room filled with jostling correspondents who feel vital information is being withheld from the public, and that President Nixon is the main one who can change the situation.

What part can Warren play in reversing the tide? The assets that White House correspondents mention most are his knowledge of the news profession and a thought process which hangs together.

"He is a more artful dodger than Ziegler," says one veteran correspondent.

Newsmen frequently pointedly ask him if he is seeing the President. He replies with a frank "yes" or "no." Until Ziegler was switched to other duties, Warren was laden mainly with the mechanics of the White House news operation.

Now, He says, "I concern myself . . . more with issues."

After a bruising briefing with newsmen, he says he goes over in his own mind how he handled questions and sometimes asks himself: "Why didn't I say it another way."

He doesn't carry away the emotionalism of some of the collisions, he says. "Emotion carried to an extreme . . . impedes the job of getting the facts."

Does he feel he is well briefed by White House officials before he faces newsmen? Is he told exactly what to tell newsmen?

"The way I operate is to present them (White Huse officials) with a perceived situation and say what are the facts. I go to the President and say this has been raised, how do we proceed?"

Since 1956, Warren says he has voted Republican in presidential elections. He first became "an avid supporter" of Nixon in the California gubernatorial election in 1962. He was a registered Democrat while in college.

The deputy press secretary doesn't see as much as he would like of his pretty wife, Euphemia, whom he calls "Phemie," and his two children, Gerald (Ben), 6, and Euphemia, 4.

Warren, 42, has been a fast riser from the day he won the competition for the editorship of the University of Nebraska daily newspaper while still a junior. He was graduated with a BA in journalism in 1952.

In summer at college he worked on the Lincoln Star. Then he spent four years in the Navy's air force. He soared to the city editorship of the San Diego Union in five years.

At the San Diego Union, Warren became city editor by appointment of Herbert G. Klein, who was editor. Klein is the departing director of communications of the Nixon administration.

But Warren and Ziegler were acquainted from California days and it was another mutual friend who recommended Warren for his present job, he says.

Totie Fields Better After Car Accident

NEW YORK (UPI) — Totie Fields' condition improved yesterday and her agent said he was hopeful the popular comedienne could leave the hospital by Friday.

Miss Fields, 40, has been in Polyclinic Hospital with a collapsed left lung and three broken ribs since a midtown auto accident Thursday night.

Does The Court Bow To Nixon?

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — The end of the Supreme Court's 1972-73 term in June showed President Nixon's four appointees in control — and yet the outcome of all the cases last term obviously could not have been to the President's liking.

Voting as a bloc, the Nixon appointees put new curbs on obscenity, cut back on the "one man, one vote" principle and refused to upset the traditional state method of financing public schools through property taxes.

These decisions fit into the view of the President and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger that the federal courts should not grab power away from the states.

At the same time, in a detailed opinion by Associate Justice Harry A. Blackman, the Court invalidated most state antiabortion laws in such a way as to allow abortions even in the last trimester of pregnancy if the health of a mother is endangered.

President Nixon had expressed disapproval of extremely liberal abortion practices and had instructed military hospitals to follow the laws of the state in which they are located.

He also had committed himself to aiding parochial schools, particularly in the form of tax credits. But the court stoutly resisted New York's and Pennsylvania's efforts to channel public money into hard-pressed parochial schools, whether by tax credits, tuition reimbursements, or payments for building maitenance.

The past term was the first full term for Associate Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist, who took their seats Jan. 7, 1972. They joined the Chief Justice and Justice Blackmun, who came in 1970, to vote together in more than two-thirds of the 160 cases decided by written opinion.

Of this two-thirds, the Burger quartet controlled the outcome of all but one case.

They were able to do so because Associate Justice Byron R. White almost always sided with them and frequently Associate Justice Potter Stewart did, too.

Dissenters in case after case involving the old conflict of government authority against individual freedom were Associate Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., and Thurgood Marshall. They consistently voted for the individual during retired Chief Justice Earl Warren's tenure, when the individual usually won.

Justice White's support of many of President Nixon's views is somewhat ironic, since he was appointed by President John F. Kennedy, the President's successful opponent in 1960.

Justice Rehnquist emerged as perhaps the most conservative of all the nine justices. He broke the four-man pattern more often than any of the others (the chief justice never broke it), often voting for more government control than any of the other three.

For instance, he thought the court swung too wide when it struck down the system of "mayor's courts" under which a village mayor doubles as a judge and raises revenue by the fines he collects.

He dissented from the abortion decision and from another landmark women's rights ruling that gave women members of the military the same dependency benefits as men.

Justice Rehnquist also spoke for a five-man majority when the court refused to curb undercover agents' practice of helping in the commission of a crime.

"It is only when the government's deception actually implants the criminal design in the mind of the defendant that the defense of entrapment comes into play," he said.

Justice Powell appears as a moderate conservative somewhat in the pattern of the late Justice John M. Harlan. He is not wont to write caustic comments about the views of his brethren.

Justice Powell spoke for the court when it vetoed aid to parochial schools and when it crushed the movement to upset the property tax method of financing public schools. He also urged the court to consider treating all big city schools the same, whether North or South.

In the numerous criminal cases spread over the term, the regrain of Douglas-Brennan-Marshall dissenting was familiar. Justice Douglas broke with the majority 75 times and Justices Brennan and Marshall 49 times.

The court over their dissent, for instance, broadened the power of law enforcement officials to search suspects. It ruled that when a person not in custody consents to a police search the state need not prove at his trial that he knew he had a right to refuse.

Of this decision, Justice Brennan commented: "It wholly escapes me how our citizens can meaningfully be said to have waived something as precious as a constitutional guarantee without ever being aware of its existence."

On the other hand, everything wasn't rigid "law and order."

The court ruled that if an accused is denied a speedy trial the error cannot be corrected by cutting down his sentence — the charges must be dismissed entirely.

And it struck down a state "alibi rule" that required a defendant to disclose ahead of trial the names of his alibi witnesses. The court said the defendant must be allowed to ask the prosecution for its witnesses also.

Billie Jean King Is Wimbledon Triple Champion

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — It began in turmoil and controversy. It lacked sparkle, like flat champagne. It ran overtime and ended in anticlimax.

Wimbledon, 1973, pulled near-record crowds as if nothing were amiss. But by the time Billie Jean King served the final point Sunday, the word for the 87th All-England Lawn Tennis championships was "strange."

But not for Billie Jean King. She made the tournament her own.

That last ball the 29-year-old champion from Hilton Head, S.C., served was a winner. It brought her her third title, a triple she also pulled off in 1967.

She won her fifth women's singles title Saturday in straight sets over Chris Evert, the 18-year-old tennis whiz from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the first All-American Wimbledon final since 1957.

She won the women's doubles for the ninth time, teaming as four times before with Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, and downing the woman she partnered to last year's victory, Betty Stove of Holland, who played this year with France's soft-touch artist, Francoise Durr.

Then Mrs. King wrapped up the mixed doubles title for the third time, paired as in 1967 and 1971 with Owen Davidson of Australia.

What made this Wimbledon strange was not the women, whose top names and well-matched play helped run tournament attendance figures to the second-highest ever, 299,742.

It was the pre-tournament boycott announcement by 73 members of the Association of Tennis Professionals, the game's top men, which turned Wimbledon into the ghost tournament which ended in ghostly fashion Sunday.

Despite the thronging crowds, despite the patriotic cheers for third-seeded Roger Taylor and the teen-age hearts throbbing for the 17-year-old Swedish sensation, Bjoern Borg, and for Romania's Ilie Nastase, the absence of the biggest names in tennis took the tournament's backbone away.

Outside of Borg, there were no new sensations among all the new faces. The tournament produced too few upsets and too much bafflement at the unfamiliar names. The familiar zip and tingle of excitement was missing too often.

Nastase, top-seeded when his fellow ATP members pulled out, was bounced at the end of the tournament's first week by Alex Mayer, an unseeded and unheralded American from Mount Freedom, N.J.

Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia and Alex Metreveli of Russia plodded methodically and unsensationally through the rest of the field, setting up the first all-Iron Curtain final in Wimbledon's history. The championship match was an anti-climax, with Kodes winning over a dispirted-looking Metreveli in straight sets.

Nastase paired with Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., to win the men's doubles in a five-set grind against John Cooper and 39-year-old Neale Fraser of Australia.

HELPS GIANTS WIN

'Mac' Unhappy With Benching

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Willie McCovey isn't Reggie Jackson.

That is to say the San Francisco Giants slugger does a better job of hiding his feelings than does the Oakland A's star.

What the two have in common, though, is a communication problem with their respective managers.

Whereas Jackson exploded last week because of what he called management's lack of concern for players' feelings, McCovey is keeping his cool, although it's pretty obvious he doesn't see eye to eye with Giants skipper Charlie Fox.

Fox benched McCovey for the last five games because of a lack of hitting, using in his place rookie Gary Thomasson. That didn't sit well with the big slugger but he never said a word until after helping the Giants to a 5-4 victory Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

McCovey got into Sunday's game only after Garry Maddox was hit on the head with a pitch by Rick Wise. Then he singled three straight times, scored a run and drove in two and even hustled from first to third on a hit to medium right.

"After 13 years I don't feel I have to prove anything," McCovey said. "If anyone around here doesn't think I can do the job they can go and ask the opposition and see what they have to say."

McCovey said he doesn't mind sitting out a game here and there but five games seems a little out of line. Still that doesn't bother him as much as the fact Fox never came to him and told him he was going to be benched.

"All of a sudden I'm a substitute," said McCovey, who despite a batting average of .246, has hit 14 homers and driven in 37 runs. "What's frustrating is that I have to talk to newsmen to find out what's going on.

"Even so, I'm not going to complain. I'd rather not talk about this at all and the only reason I am is because the question has been put to me. I've never complained once in all the other years and I'm not going to start now. That's not me."

The Giants are off today, then play the Chicago Cubs Tuesday night. Rick Reuschel will pitch for the Cubs with Ron Bryant going for the Giants. Fox says he isn't sure McCovey will start against Reuschel.

And there the matter lies today.

CARDENAL BOOTS ONE

Jose Cardenal (left) of the Chicago Cubs looked like he was taking a kick at San Diego second baseman Rich Morales yesterday, but in reality Jose's footwork proved to be faulty. He broke up a double play in the fifth inning by knocking the ball out of Morales' hand, but shortstop Derrel Thomas picked it up and tagged him out. The host Padres won, 4-3. Williams' Contract Extended

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Gene Tenace has gone from goat to hero while Manager Dick Williams and the coaching staff of the Oakland A's are savoring their new security blankets.

Making up for grounding into a triple play Saturday, Tenace stroked a leadoff homer in the 10th inning Sunday to give the world champions a comeback 6-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. That enabled the A's, who are off today, to take three-of-four from the Orioles.

ENDS SLUMP

The homer was Tenace's 14th and he also singled.

Prior to the game, A's owner Charles O. Finley told Williams he was extending his contract through the 1975 season, along with the contracts of all of the A's coaches through 1974.

Williams is the 10th manager signed by Finley since he bought the A's but the first to work for more than one year without being fired. Williams was hired in 1971.

BLAST

The move came three days after All Star outfielder Reggie Jackson blasted the A's coaches for being over-critical and insensitive to the needs and feelings of players.

However, Finley insisted his decision to extend the contracts of the coaching staff was not prompted by Jackson's outburst.

Sal Bando came within inches of hitting his second homer of the game Sunday when his line drive into leftfield was caught by a fan in the first row, resulting in a ground-rule double. He had hit his 16th homer leading off the fifth.

LEAD

Down 4-2, the A's scored three runs in the ninth to take a 5-4 lead. Bert Campaneris led off with a single, his fourth hit, and went to third on Bando's double.

Reliever Grant Jackson then gave up an infield single to Jackson that scored Campaneris. Bob Reynolds came on and gave up a single to Deron Johnson to score two more runs.

The Orioles tied the score at 5-5 in the bottom of the ninth off reliever Paul Lindblad. Rollie Fingers came on to notch his first victory against five losses while hurling the final 1 1-3 innings.

Follmer Triumphs In Can-Am Race

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — George Follmer would have been glad to see Mark Donohue enter the pits once, but two times was more than Follmer could hope for.

Yet that's what happened to a bitterly disappointed Donohue in the deciding second heat Sunday of the $75,000 Canadian American Challenge Cup series race at Road Atlanta.

The two pit stops to fix a leaky gas cap in the cockpit of Donohue's Roger Penske Porsche early in the race gave Follmer more than a one lap lead and Donohue never quite made up the lost time.

Follmer won with an average speed of 117.05 miles an hour in the Porsche 917 owned by Bobby Rinzler of Atlanta—more than 50 seconds ahead of Donohue.

Jody Scheckter finished third in a Porsche and David Hobbs, driving a McLaren, was fourth in the second race this year of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series.

Follmer, who won this race last year and also took the 1972 series, said he was worried about Donohue at first when the sandy-haired Pennsylvanian whizzed past Hobbs and then Scheckter in a frantic effort to make up for the time lost.

Donohue had finished first in the 40-lap, first heat Saturday with Follmer second, and the two leaders thus began Sunday's race one lap ahead in the 16-car field for the remaining 50 laps. Donohue finally closed Follmer's lead to one lap with only a few minutes remaining, but Follmer said afterward that by the beginning of the final goround he was no longer worried.

"I didn't bother to race that last lap," the Arcadia, Calif., driver said. "I just slowed to conserve fuel. Mark is a strong competitor all the way— extremely fast—but I felt comfortable toward the end. My car ran beautifully, cool and nice, but it's a little harder for the driver here in Atlanta," he said, referring to the 90- degree heat.

Obviously glad about Donohue's two forced stops, Follmer said, "I hadn't really counted on two of them."

Follmer, who collected $15,000 for his first place finish, now goes to the next competition in Watkins Glen tied with teammate Charlie Kemp at 20 points in the Can-Am series.

Donohue, who posted the fastest lap with 122.74 m.p.h., earned 15 points for his first start at Road Atlanta, giving him a series total so far of 19.

Harry Ingle of Charlotte, N. C., won the preliminary Formula Super Vee race Sunday in his Volkswagen-powered Royale with a speed of 98.94 m.p.h. Wink Bancroft of Newport Beach, Calif., and Bob Williams of Santa Monica, Calif., finished second and third respectively, both driving Lola T320s.

Two drivers who failed to complete the double-heat Carling Can-Am were Mario Andretti and Jackie Oliver. Andretti pulled his McLaren out before the first heat with oil pressure problems and Oliver, also with engine trouble in his Black Shadow, elected not to run in the second heat.

2 Marin Yachts Leading

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Improbable and Tenacity, two yachts owned and skippered by Marinites, led their respective classes Sunday as the Transpacific Yacht Race neared the one-third mark.

Improbable, a 42-foot sloop belonging to David W. Allen of Belvedere and sailing out of the San Francisco Yacht Club in the same city, was the leader in Class B.

Tenacity, the Cal 39 sloop of Rolfe Croker of Belvedere, registered out of the St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco, held the lead in Class C.

Overall leader was the 73-foot Windward Passage, the favorite and course record holder, which moved to within 1,517 nautical miles of the destination at Diamond Head. The course, which began in Los Angeles, is 2,225 miles long. The 60 yachts in the field were spread out over 221 miles of ocean, with rain falling and winds at eight to 10 knots.

Following Windward Passage, skippered by Mark Johnson of New York, were Ragtime, Robon, Ondine and Blackfin. Robon was considered the Class A leader.

Stockton Is Winner In Milwaukee Golf

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dave Stockton believes when you're hot, your're hot, and that's why after his $26,000 Greater Milwaukee Open victory Sunday he said he expects to win another golf tourney "very shortly."

"I knew what I wanted to do today," the 31-year-old Bernardino, Calif., golfer said. "I wanted to go out there and blow 'em off the map."

It wasn't quite that easy as Homero Blancas and Hubie Green made a determined effort in the final 18 to catch up before falling short by one stroke apiece.

Stockton shot a 73—his only round over par in the tourney — to finish at 276, 12 under par. Most of his subpar golf came in the second round when he fired a sizzling nine under 63 for a course record and the second lowest card on the tour this year.

Blancas and Green each closed with 68 for an 11 under 277. Bob Goalby, who led the first round with a 65 and trailed Stockton by only two strokes going into the final round blew his chance with a triple bogey

Miss Kilgore Wins In National Tourney

BURLINGAME — Playing together for just the second time, Bee Kilgore of Tiburon teamed with Carrie Meyer of Indianapolis, Ind. here yesterday to win the girls' 18 doubles at the National Junior Hardcourt Championships Peninsula Tennis Club.

The second-seeded Misses Kilgore and Meyer combined to upset the top-seeded duo of Kathy May and Sue Boyle of San Diego, 7-5, 6-4, in a nip and tuck match for the championship. Carrie came to California last week to compete in the California State Junior Championships at San Jose.

She did not have a partner when she got to San Jose, so Carrie teamed up with Bee for the first time. They did much better than could be expected under the circumstances, going all the way to the finals before they were defeated by Susan Harry of La Jolla and Susan Wright of Fullerton, 7-6, 6-7, 6-0.

Italians Angered By Deaths At Track

ROME (UPI) — Italian newspapers today demanded a ban on motorcycle racing on the super-fast Monza track where mass collisions have claimed five lives in seven weeks.

Three young Italian amateurs died Sunday in a crash on the same curve where Finnish ace Jarno Saarinen and Italy's Renzo Pasolini were killed May 20. Motorcyclists complained at Saturday's trials that the curve was too risky because they could not slow down sufficiently to take it safely after building up to speeds of 135 to 145 m.p.h. on the straightaway.

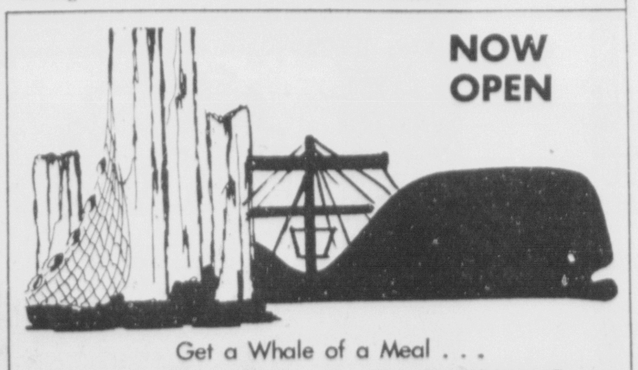

"Why don't we dare to call it murder?" the newspaper La Stampa of Turin asked today under a bannerline: "A tragedy that should have been avoided."

It said the course was identical to the one on which Saarinen and Pasolini died, safety precaustions were identical or poorer and the asphalt was in worse condition.

"Making one mistake is a thing that can happen.... Repeating an error of this kind is a crime," La Stampa said.

It said it was "simply disgusting to learn that organizers wanted to resume racing at all costs in quest of who knows

Holiday Wins DiMag Loop Slugfest

Joe Giordani's fourth hit, a solo home run with one out in the 11th inning, gave Holiday Magic a hectic 13-12 victory over Kelleher Lumber yesterday in a Joe DiMaggio League baseball game.

In other action, Villa Builders beat Travers-Perry, 6-1; Italian Club blanked Bank of Marin, 4-0; Rohnert Park topped Annex Motors, 7-4; and Toby's Truckers stopped Sebastopol, 5-2.

Giordani's homer was one of four round-trippers and six extra-base hits belted in the long struggle. Kelleher jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the second inning, but Holiday retaliated with a six-run second.

Tom Cronin of Toby's saw his bid for a no-hitter ruined by a 12-foot dribble single in the sixth inning, but still turned back Sebastopol with a one-hit effort, striking out 14. Terry Ryan hit a two-run triple in the first inning for Toby's.

Rob Long of Italian Club walloped a tremendous two-run homer to the base of the football scoreboard at Redwood High in the first inning, giving pitcher Ed Anderson all the runs he needed. Anderson doled out four hits and fanned nine.

Bob Louie and Bill Olson got Villa moving with back-to-back doubles in the first inning, and John Bulleri added three hits and two runs batted in. Three Villa pitchers combined for a two-hitter.

Mary Lou Crocker Wins 1st Ladies Golf Tourney

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

GRAND ISLAND, N.Y. — Mary Lou Crocker, who had never finished better than third before, knocked five strokes off par Sunday at Windy River Oaks Golf Club to win the $5,250 first prize in the $35,000 Ladies Professional Golfers Association Marc Equity Classic with a nine-under total of 210.

Mrs. Crocker was tied for the lead with Betty Burfeindt of Canaan, N.Y., after Saturday's second round. However, Miss Burfeindt finished with a 74 for a 216 total, tied for fifth.

Jerilyn Britz, of Las Cruzes, N.M., won one million trading stamps, worth $2,500, by coming closest to the pin on the 160-yard, par-three, 17th hole. She came within two feet, nine inches on her tee shot.

Mrs. Crocker, 28, finished third in the Heritage Classic in Southbury, Conn. two weeks ago.

U.S. Trackmen In Munich For Two-Day Meet

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — The U.S. track and field team flew into the olympic city today for a two-day triple meet against West Germany and Switzerland next Wednesday and Thursday.

The event will be the first on a four-week European and North African tour highlighted by the traditional dual meeting against Russia at Minsk July 23 and 24.

The Americans will also take on Italy at Turin July 17 and 18 and wind up their tour at Dakar, Senegal Aug. 4 and 5.

The group, arriving directly from New York, included 88 atheletes. Several track stars, however, had been touring Europe on their own for several weeks and joined the team at Munich.

Head coach Jim Bush said his squad was probably one of the youngest ever traveling Europe.

LOS ANGELES — UCLA athletic director J. D. Morgan said Sunday allegations by a former Bruin wrestler that he received passing credit for classes he did not attend would be investigated but that the entire situation in which others reportedly benefited come as a "total suprise."

"The university will proceed to investigate these accusations immediately," Morgan said. "But the entire situation comes as a total surprise to me."

The accusations came from Peter J. Lutz, 26, who said in an application for unemployment insurance that he received credit for daytime classes at the same time he was working a fulltime day shift from May to October last year.

Baseball

DES MOINES, Iowa — Iowa Oaks manager Joe Sparks said Sunday he expected former Cy Young Award winner Denny McLain to leave for Shreveport, La., of the Texas League today.

McLain reportedly has talked with Oaks owner Ray Johnston, who also owns the Class A team at Shreveport, about going there for more work. The 29-year-old right-handed pitcher is 1-4 with Iowa of the American Association with a 7.55 earned run average in 31 innings.

MONTREAL — The Montreal Expos Sunday announced they were purchasing the contract of Larry Lintz from Peninsula, Va., of the International League to fill in for injured Tim Foli.

Auto Racing

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Benny Parsons and Chevrolet were the big winners in Sunday's Volunteer 500 stock car race at Bristol International Speedway.

Parsons scored an easy seven-lap victory and collected $6,500, while the first five finishers all drove Chevrolets. The victory also was the fifth straight at Bristol for Chevrolet.

2 Dolphin Safetymen Unsigned

MIAMI (UPI) — All-pro safetymen Dick Anderson and Jake Scott say they are "far apart" in their contract negotiations with the Miami Dolphins and will not report to training camp Wednesday unless they negotiate a suitable salary with the world champion team's management.

If the two defensive stars boycott the camp, it could create a furor like the one last season when running backs Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick staged a two-week camp boycott that cost them fines totaling $2,800 each.

Anderson and Scott are among 16 veterans of the Super Bowl champions who still have not signed contract.

"We both certainly want to play," Anderson said. "I'd like to be in camp and I'm sure Jake would. I don't like it any more than the next guy."

Both Anderson and Scott are doing their negotiating without an agent. Scott is doing his talking by telephone from his ranch in Colorado.

"We don't want to create any problems," Anderson said. "But we have to get across our point."

Dolphins coach Don Shula said he hoped Anderson and Scott iron out their contract problems before they are scheduled to report to camp Wednesday to begin preparations for the gaem against the college all stars.

Sleepless Nights Begin As Aaron Pursues Mark

By MILTON RICHMAN
(UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's 4 in the morning, a time when most people are sound asleep, and Hank Aaron should be also, but he's not.

He's up, wide awake.

He lies there motionless in bed, listening to the soft monotonous hum of the air conditioner in his hotel room because there really isn't anything else for him to do.

This doesn't happen to Hank Aaron every night, but it happens to him enough and what makes it seem more often is that it never used to happen to him at all. He'd put his head on the pillow and in five minutes he'd be sleeping like a baby.

That was before Babe Ruth.

That was before he was getting the pressure from all sides the way he's getting it now. Most of the pressure comes when he's off the field. Playing the game often is the easiest part of it.

The demands made on Hank Aaron these days, particularly when the Atlanta Braves visit such cities as Los Angeles, Chicago and this one, are the type some might describe as subtle. No matter what they are, these pressures have a way of becoming so heavy, so mind-blurring and body-fatiguing, that no human can possibly be subjected to them constantly and still keep his composure.

Babe Ruth couldn't.

Roger Maris didn't.

Hank Aaron has, so far, but he has paid the price emotionally. Now that he's within 19 home runs of shattering Ruth's golden all-time record — he smashed his 695th and 696th homers in a 4-2 win against the Mets Sunday —Aaron finds the price is going up.

"I can imagine what it'll be later on," he says.

It is bad enough now.

Everybody wants a crack at the Braves' even-dispositioned slugger. The newspaper people want to talk with him; the magazine people; the TV people and the radio people, not to mention all the kids and adults who want the signature of the man who's on his way to wiping out baseball's most notable record.

Rival ballplayers and groundskeepers around the league now want their pictures taken with Atlanta's 39-year-old superstar. Complete strangers come up to him, throw an arm around his shoulder and tell an accomplice, "Okay, go ahead and shoot!"

So what, you say. It only takes a minute.

But multiply these minutes and they start adding up. The worst part of it is that a fellow like Hank Aaron never really learned how to say no. That's why he's wide awake sometimes, simply lying there in bed at 3 or 4 in the morning.

"What causes that?" says Hank Aaron, trying to furnish a reason why he can't always sleep through the night the way he once did. "I don't know. Maybe it's because you're constantly getting bugged. It's hard to say what's it due to. All I know is that you get up, you don't know what time it is, and all you do is lay there and stare at the ceiling."

Is the whole thing worth it?

"I really don't know," he says. "If I go to bed half berserk, it's not."

Basically, Hank Aaron is a loner. Occasionally you'll find him yakking in the clubhouse with someone like Ralph Garr or Dusty Baker, but they are considerably younger, and he does not run with them off the ball field. Aaron doesn't really run with anybody after working hours. On the road, he usually goes back to his hotel room, orders up a bite to eat, watches TV a little, then bolts the door and goes to sleep. Or tries to, anyway.

What really wears down Hank Aaron now in his 20th season with the Braves, is the drudgery of the day-to-day routine, none of which is alleviated by his assault on Ruth's record. If anything it has become more pronounced, and with the media constantly seeking him out as was the case with Roger Maris, the continued attention becomes increasingly difficult to endure.

"Every day, every day, the same thing," says Aaron, not angrily or resentfully but somewhat resignedly. "I could put it on tape and hand it out. I know what the questions are."

So does Eddie Mathews, the Braves' manager who played with Aaron for 13 years. Says Mathews:

"I'm gonna have cards printed up — 'no, I do not see any change in Hank Aaron.'"

With it all, Aaron is not complaining.

His mail, which included some racial abuse earlier this season, has been better, and he wishes his .240 batting average was, also.

What about his life in general?

"It's all right, I guess," he says. "If I could just relax a little bit. If I could just get away one day and go fishing. You know how it is being in this position: you're happy to be in it, but you're constantly reminded. The telephone rings, rings and rings. If you cut if ott, it could be the kids (Aaron's four children). You never know. So you leave it on, and all it does all the time is ring, ring, ring. . . ."

Knicks Lose Sacramento Twin Bill

SACRAMENTO — The C.L. Moore Knickerbockers of Novato lost a Sacramento Rural League semi-pro baseball doubleheader to the Sacramento Falcons yesterday at Sacramento City College, 6-4 and 6-5.

The Knicks stranded seven runners and had four thrown out on the basepaths (three at home plate) in the first game. Kevin Brant went three for four with a run-scoring double in the first inning.

Jay Suder tripled, Jim Thompson doubled and Bill Busher singled with two out in the fourth to boost the Knicks' lead to 5-1 in the nightcap, but the Falcons rallied and scored the game-winner on an infield error in the fifth.

N.L. ROUNDUP

Aaron Blasting At Record Pace

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

And so at last Hank Aaron has hammered down the once seemingly insurmountable odds and is on a pace that would carry him to an all-time record of 715 home runs this season.

The Atlanta Braves' slugger and most baseball experts have been figuring that he would finish this season with about 705 homers and would top Babe Ruth's career mark of 714 early next year.

But Aaron's two homers in a 4-2 victory over the New York Mets Sunday gave him a total of 23 in Atlanta's 88 games and a career total of 696. The same pace during the remainder of the season would give Hank 19 more homers and a career total of exactly 715.

A crowd of 33,017 at New York, seeing Aaron for the last time this season, cheered as he connected for a solo homer in the fourth inning and a two-run shot which gave the Braves a 4-1 lead in the sixth. Both homers were off former Atlanta teammate George Stone and both sailed about 350 feet over a 30-foot-high fence.

Western clubs scored a clean sweep over Eastern teams as Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 3-2 in 12 innings, San Francisco shaded St. Louis 5-4, Houston beat Montreal 9-7, San Diego topped Chicago 4-2 and Cincinnati blanked Philadelphia 4-0.

Phil Niekro pitched an eight hitter for Atlanta to raise his record to 9-4. Dusty Baker also homered for the Braves, who dealt Stone his fourth loss against four wins.

The Dodgers swept their three-game series with the Pirates when Willie Davis homered off reliever Dave Giusti in the 12th after Pittsburgh tied the score in the ninth on Manny Sanguillen's sacrifice fly. Pete Richert, who pitched one hitless innning, won his second game while Giusti suffered his first loss.

Tommy Helms' two-run single capped a three-run ninth inning outburst which lifted the Astros over the Expos. Houston tied the score on singles by Roger Metzger, Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson. Jerry Reuss picked up his 11th win in relief while Mike Marshall, Montreal's ace reliever who is having something of an in and out season, suffered his sixth setback.

Dave Roberts scored the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning at San Diego when Dwain Anderson laid down a two-strike squeeze bunt. The run batted in was the first of the year for Anderson, who entered the game as an infield substitute. Randy Jones pitched a four-hitter for his second victory while Burt Hooton lost his seventh game for the Cubs.

Jack Billingham pitched a four-hitter for his 12th victory for the Reds, who dealt Wayne Twitchell his third loss. Johnny Bench delivered the key blow for Cincinnati, a two-run single in the third inning.

MONZA

"Monza Kills again—this cannot go on," bannered Rome's Corriere dello Sport.

It said organizers should have realized the track on which Pasolini and Saarinen died was too dangerous for "junior racers, less experienced than professionals, and in some cases mere beginners, on big motorcycles capable of reaching top speeds similar to those of grand prix bikes."

Milan's La Gazzetta dello Sport said the track, mainly designed for car racing, "as it is, can be adequate for races with very slow vehicles which pose little danger, not for high speed motorcycles and cars."

The newspaper said two proposed variants which would have slowed down competitors were removed by organizers of Sunday's race.

"The fact is that the Monza track is entirely ringed by guard rails and whoever makes a mistake has no way out: impact is certain," La Gazzetta said. "At this point, it is absurd to consider as a sport a competition in which the smallest mistake is paid through death. Monza, for motorcycles, must be abolished."

The newspaper said Renato Galtrucco, one of Sunday's victims, was left fatally injured on the track for 18 minutes before an ambulance arrived. It asked if speedier aid could have saved his life.

Novato Nine Loses Twice

Novato American Legion Post 540 absorbed two District 5 baseball defeats over the weekend, losing Saturday to Vallejo, 7-4, and yesterday to Napa, 11-5.

Tom Conklin hit a three-run home run for Novato in Saturday's game, and Stan Conte and Jeff Rubino added two hits each. Yesterday, Tom Seacrist and Mike Robertson had two hits apiece.

Napa scored eight unearned runs in the fifth inning yesterday, aided by three walks, two hit batsmen and an error.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

LEE VS. DECKER TONIGHT

Former Marin and Sonoma County pitching stars Bill Lee and Joe Decker will face each other for the first time in major league competition tonight in Minnesota.

Lee, a Terra Linda High School graduate, will be pitching for the pennant contending Boston Red Sox, who are just two games behind the New York Yankees in the American League East. Moved into the starting rotation in May, Lee has fashioned a 10-3 mark this season.

Decker, a product of Petaluma High School, has a 3-3 mark for the fourth place Twins and set an American League seasonal high with a 15-strikeout performance against the Chicago White Sox last month.

Lee Trevino Saws Away On Clubs

TROON, Scotland (UPI) — Lee Trevino reckons his third consecutive British Open title is all sewn up two days before the first ball is struck but the way he is treating his clubs, someone might wonder.

Trevino says the windy 7,064 yard par-72 Troon old course is made for his low hitting game but after two days of practice he felt something was wrong.

To the alarm of his British manager Derrick Pillage, he snatched Pillage's clubs from his room and began sawing buts off them.

"Go buy yourself a new set," said Trevino, sawing away. "It doesn't matter what they cost, just send me the bill."

Trevino had decided that his own clubs were too stiff, he said, and in order to hit lower he needed a softer shaft. Pillage's australian clubs were just what he needed —except they were an inch and a half too long.

Trevino has slimmed down to 14 pounds less than when he won last year at Muirfield, and this year broke with his tradition of late-arrivals by giving himself six days of practice on the west Scottish course.

It will be only his second visit to Troon. In a pro-am event 10 years ago, he finished 10 strokes off Christy O'Connor's winning 135 but came off the course with a predicton which seemed funnier then than now.

Sugar Ray Seals Wins A Decision

In another fight here Saturday night, "Indian Yaqui" Lopez of Stockton, Calif., stopped Oregon's Dave Rogers in the fifth round.

A.L. ROUNDUP

Change Of Pace Good For Singer

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A change of scenery and a change of pace has made Bill Singer one of baseball's winningest pitchers and has kept the California Angels within striking distance of first place in the American League West.

Singer, who came to the Angels from the Los Angeles Dodgers in the Frank Robinson deal during the off-season, has adapted quite readily to the American League. He was the winning pitcher in a 10-4 first game victory over the Cleveland Indians in a doubleheader sweep Sunday and his 14 victories against only four defeats are second only to Wilbur Wood for the major league lead in victories.

The past two seasons have been a disaster for Singer, who won 20 games with the Dodgers in 1969. Singer was primarily a fastball pitcher but after developing several physical ailments — including hepatitis, pulled muscles and two broken fingers (the latter of which required an operation that shortened the first finger on his throwing arm)—he slumped to consecutive 10-17 and 6-16 seasons with the Dodgers.

But after lifting weights and heavy running, Singer happily reports his fastball is back. But the 29-year old right-hander also claims to have added a change-up, a pitch his opponents describe as a spitter.

The double victory moved California to within two games of the division-leading Oakland A's in the AL West. Richie Scheinblum drilled a two-run homer in the 10th inning the Angels a 5-3 victory in the second game and a doubleheader sweep. Bob Oliver's three-run homer sparked the Angels in the opener.

In other American League games Milwaukee swept a doubleheader from Texas 6-4 and 7-3, New York shut out Minnesota 7-0, Detroit blanked Kansas City 3-0, Boston ripped Chicago 11-2 after losing 6-1 and Oakland nipped Baltimore 6-5 in 10 innings.

George Scott collected three hits, including a home run, and drove in two runs in the nightcap as Milwaukee swept Texas in their doubleheader. The Brewers took the opener on a three-run homer by John Briggs in the first inning and a two-run blast by Dave May.

Mel Stottlemyre hurled a four-hitter and Roy White and Thurman Munson each hit home runs as the Yankees defeated Minnesota. Stottlemyre picked up his 11th victory in 18 decisions as he beat the Twins for the third time this season.

Aurelio Rodriguez, Willie Horton and Mickey Stanley delivered run-scoring hits as the Tigers blanked Kansas City.

Bob Montgomery smashed a grand slam home run in the top of ths810th, highlighting a nine-run uprising as the Red Sox defeated Chicago in the second game afte dropping the opener to Steve Stone.

In the first game, Stone had a 2-0 lead in the opening frame on Carlos May's eighth home run. The White Sox increased the lead to 3-0 in the fourth on Buddy Bradford's third homer and then scored three more runs in the fifth on a run-scoring double by May and another on a double by Ken Henderson.

and finished at 279.

"This was a very big win for me," Stockton said. "And you can expect another one very shortly because when I get going, I keep going for a while."

The top prize raised his earnint to $75,727 this year, surpassing the $66,342 he won for all of 1972. He hadn't won a tournament since August, 1971 in Massachusetts and his best finish this year was second at Houston, one stroke behind leading money winner Bruce Crampton.

The check moved him from 29th to 13th place on the pro tour money list. None of the top 13 money winners was entered here. Most of them chose to take the week off to prepare for the more prestigious British Open in Scotland this week.

Blancas and Green received $12,025 apiece from $130,000 purse. Blancas' check moved him into 15th place on the list with a $72,207 total.

"I expected to win and I played that way," said Stockton."

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

Plunkett, Mates To Open Practice

Plunkett, entering his third pro season, underwent surgery early in February to repair cartilage damage.

He and 26 other select veterans join 40 rookies today when the Patriots open two-a-day practice sessions at the University of Massachusetts.

Plunkett first injured the knee while playing college football at Stanford University and the young quarterback, the Rookie of the Year in the American Football Conference in 1971, hurt the knee again last fall.

Two Days Of Rest Is Fine For Stone

The doctor in this case is Chicago White Sox pitching coach Johnny Sain.

Stone picked up his fourth win Sunday by beating Boston 6-1 in the front end of a doubleheader. The Red Sox won the second game 11-2.

Victimized all season by some sloppy defensive play and lack of hitting, Stone turned in his finest performance since coming from the San Francisco Giants.

He said that pitching with two days rest "has got me in a position where I know I have to work more often but I'm willing to do it because I think it's best for me.

"Johnny Sain asked me the other day if I could pitch with two days rest and I told him that he didn't have to ask. I would rather work more often because it doesn't give me as much time to worry about the next game.

Stone admitted he got into trouble earlier in the season because he started experimenting with a slider. and at the same time "I rejected my curve ball because I needed another pitch to go along with my fast ball. I found out much to my embarrassment that I was not getting the ball over and consequently was falling behind on every hitter.

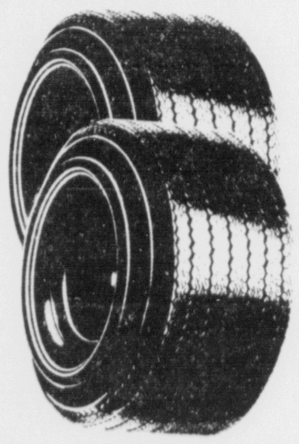

"I made up my mind against Boston, to go back to my curve and it sure worked out. They got five singles and I struck out seven. My curve ball kept the Boston hitters off balance.

"With two days' rest now I think I'll be a better pitcher and it isn't optimism that makes me say that, its the confidence that manager Chuck Tanner has placed in me."

Crash Won't Stop The Blue Angels

LAKE CHARLES, La. (UPI) — The flight commander of the U.S. Navy Blue Angels today said yesterday's near fatal crash of one of their pilots would slightly alter this week's air show in the Bahamas, but not postpone it.

Lt. Cmdr. Skip Umstead said the precision flying team could operate with five jets instead of the usual six.

Fire Departments Told To Integrate

By JACK WAUGH
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An old enclave of segregation — the local fire department — is falling under heavy attack.

Traditionally a minority fire fighter has been about as rare in a big-city fire department as a blue fire engine.

There is still such a scarcity that an official of the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control has called it a "national disgrace."

But all that may be changing. In early June a federal judge in Los Angeles ruled that from now on 40 per cent of all firemen hired by the county must be black and Mexican-American. Twenty per cent will be black and 20 per cent Chicanos until minority representation reaches 29 per cent of the county's 1,850-man force. Now there are only 16 black firemen and 44 other minorities in the county fire department.

Washington, D.C., a city over 70 per cent black, has a fire-fighting force that is only 25 per cent black. And the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has taken the fire department here to court on charges of discriminatory hiring practices. Another suit has been filed in New York City, where there are only 600 minority fire fighters — 510 of them black — in a force of 13,932 men.

In most other big cities minority personnel in the fire departments also come in purely token amounts.

In San Francisco there are 1,700 fire fighters, and only 25 of them are minority. In Houston it is 98 out of 2,000, in Boston 21 out of 2,000, in Chicago 196 out of 4,594, in Seattle 60 out of 900, in Los Angeles city 179 out of 3,049. In the South the figures are even more askew. In Miami there are two blacks in a force of 654. In Jackson, Miss., there is one black fireman out of 320. In Birmingham, Ala., there is one black in a force of 528.

A rare few big cities have turned themselves around and tried to erase such out-of-joint statistics without an order from a judge.

Twenty years ago El Paso, Tex., had no minority-group fire fighters. Now 49 per cent of its force of 394 are Mexican-Americans.

Washington, D.C., despite its low percentage of black firemen, has just become the first city to name a black fire chief. But even that went down hard. The appointment was bitterly fought — then criticized — by white firemen in the force.

Some experts cite this nationwide scarcity of minority firemen as a chief reason that many fire-fighting units going into slums and ghettos to put out fires themselves get fired on. Many firemen across the country have been killed and wounded.

The National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control, in its two-year study of the fire problems in the country, concluded that "our fire departments are correctly called the 'last white man's country club.'"

Out of its study it has shaped legislation which, if passed, would set aside funds to help local fire departments train firemen. And only fire departments that have adopted an effective and affirmative program to employ and promote minority fire fighters will get any money.

The commission, among others, hopes that the legislation, plus the pressure now being leveled from the courts, will cause fire wagons clanging down big-city streets in the future to have an array of minorities riding on them.

Dog Control Plan Due Study

A stricter dog control ordinance will be considered by the San Anselmo City Council at a meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The proposal would require dogs to be on leashes rather than simply requiring dogs to be under the control of a responsible person.

The council also will consider appointments to the library board, parks and recreation commission and streets and traffic committee.

Tormenting Rectal Itch Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Promptly Relieved

In many cases Preparation H gives prompt, temporary relief from such pain and itching and actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients showed this to be true in many cases. In fact, many doctors, themselves, use Preparation H® or recommend it for their families. Preparation H ointment or suppositories.

College Gives Cross-Cultural Education

By SELMA PORITZKY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

COLUMBIA, MD. — Forty-seven students from 10 different countries opened tiny Dag Hammarskjold College last September. They came from all over the world to try out the school's unique plan for cross-cultural education.

For eight months the college's Alpha class ate, studied, and played in an international environment. No separate splinter groups existed here. Instead, as Sweden's Lars Molde described this stay, "The way we confronted each other every day, there was no chance to run away, so we had to deal with each other."

Dealing with one another here meant living with people whose backgrounds ranged from Peruvian luxurious to African primitive.

Student Oscar Vinata explained, "I never even made a bed before coming here." His family in Peru has always had servants. In contrast, Martin Abankwa told of first having to make a fire in order to be able to cook a meal in his Ghana home.

Students like Martin and Oscar lived six to a townhouse while at the school.

The college's first-year program offered its Alpha group politics, urbanization, education, and similar liberal-arts subjects. The one-year plan will be repeated again this fall.

When the college adopts its four-year schedule in 1974, students will be required to devote two semesters to studying their own countries before going on to specialize in other cultures.

There were, of course, other innovations. For example, in January the campus moved to New York for a month's United Nations seminar. This was followed by overseas travel. Some went to Europe to continue studies of the UN committees. Others moved in with Japanese families for a close look at life in Japan. Still others went to Africa and South America.

The school reunited in March at its home location in Columbia, Md. This new city was chosen as the college's base because it adds still another dimension.

The city, located midway between Washington and Baltimore, was designed to avoid the pitfalls of suburban and urban sprawl. Since many of Dag Hammarskjold's students study urbanization, they often use the area as a laboratory.

Columbia has been hospitable. A number of its citizens have opened their doors to undergraduates. The school often uses the city's facilities and plans to avoid building expensive duplications.

The feeling was that Dag Hammarskjold did jut what its founder, Dr. Robert McCan, hoped. Young people came from all over to learn to live together, to understand each other, and to respect each other.

Dr. McCan conceived the idea of a cross-cultural college during World War II, when he decided the world desperately needed to develop an international consciousness to solve its differences.

His plan has drawn supporters from all over. There's social worker Thelma Rutherford, who raises money for the school by selling candy from the back of her car.

Sens. Mark O. Hatfield and Charles McC. Mathias Jr., and editor Norman Cousins, serve on the board of trustees. Together with Dr. McCan, they see Dag Hammarskjold as a means of providing meaningful education for peace and understanding.

In practical terms, Tran Van Dinh, a professor and member of the board of trustees, views the college as one that simultaneously attempts to present a worldwide focus while trying to reinforce knowledge and understanding of the students' own backgrounds.

Prof. Tran Van Dinh pointed out that in the past the United States has had many foreign nationals in its universities, only to permit some of them to segregate into national cliques.

Dag Hammarskjold works to prevent this separation and alienation not only with its multinational accommodations, but also in the classroom.

BOB LOBERTINI
THE ORIGINAL FEARLESS FORECASTER

Accurate, unequivocal weather predictions using barometers, thermometers, anemometers —and woolly worms.

One day in the midwest 17 years ago, Bob Lobertini predicted snow. It was 72° at the time, and Bob immediately became the laughing stock of town. Then it snowed 7 inches. And he immediately became "The Fearless Forecaster." Bob has had that title ever since, and has been making predictions like that ever since. Unpredictable predictions that are sometimes seemingly foolhardy yet over 90% accurate.

How does he do it? By using all the latest scientific devices and woolly worms.

"You take woolly worms," Bob says. "See those stripes? They'll tell you what kind of weather we're going to have this winter."

You might smile tolerantly at Bob and his woolly worms until you learn that he is a member of the American Meteorological Society, the National Geophysical Union and American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Will it snow in downtown San Francisco tomorrow? Watch Bob Lobertini and his woolly worms tonight at 6, 7, and 11 pm.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Annual Report Was Good, But Shares Drop From Old Error

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have owned shares in Peabody Galion (NYSE) for two years. The annual report was wonderful, everything had increased, so why do the shares keep decreasing in price? — C.E.

A. Almost simultaneously with a secondary share offering, a brokerage report critical of the quality of Peabody's earnings received wide circulation. Refutation by Peabody of several factual errors in the report prompted the brokerage firm to issue a corrected version. Nevertheless, the harm was done and the shares have lacked support since. In the first half of fiscal 1973 to end Sept. 30, sales rose 28 per cent and net advanced 26 per cent. Based on full-year estimates of $1.25 a share, Peabody is currently trading at 16 times the earnings, well below the 5-year average of 31 times. In view of the company's strong 35 per cent average growth rate for the last five years, the shares appear undervalued.

Acquisitions have played an important role in both the company's growth rate and in broadening its capabilities to all areas of pollution control. Divisions which were owned in 1969, last year contributed only 22 per cent to revenues, while companies acquired and pooled in 1970-72 accounted for the balance. In 1972 these original segments increased earnings at approximately the same rate as the newer divisions. During the past year and a half Peabody reduced short-term debt substantially while increasing long-term debt and shareholders' equity. As of February 1973, debt to equity ratio was 24 per cent to 76 per cent, a very favorable balance. Hold.

Q. I am interested in investing in several no-load mutual funds. My broker does not have addresses so that I may send for the various prospectuses. How may I obtain these? — R.M.

A. If you would send a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with your request to this column, I would be happy to send a list by return mail. Meantime you might check the financial pages of your newspaper for advertisements placed by no-loads. There are usually several such ads daily in the financial media.

Market Is Cautious At Opening Bell

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices slipped today in light trading on the New York Stock exchange, as traders remained cautious in the face of the attack on the dollar abroad.

The dollar started out strong on foreign markets today; then retreated in the absence of evidence that the United States would take support measures.

Emery Industries was the most active issse, off ½ at 8 on 97,800 shares.

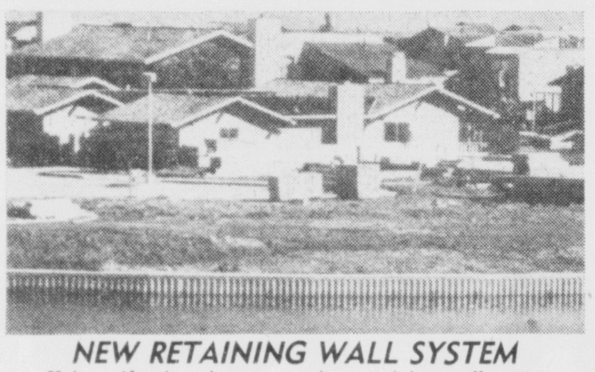

Prices declined slightly in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. Syntex was the most active issue, off 1 ⅜ at 88 ⅛ on 48,700 shares.

Gold mining issues on the Big Board were lower. The price of the metal generally eased abroad. Dome Mines lost 1 and Campbell Red Lake ⅞.

Glamors were mixed. Xerox lost 2 ¾, Avon Products 1 ¼ and Upjohn 1.

Oils also were mixed. Getty lost 1 ½.

NEW RETAINING WALL SYSTEM

Kaiser Aluminum's new marine retaining wall system called Shore-All has been installed along the lagoons of Foster City, a totally planned community on San Francisco Bay. Basic element of the system is a special corrosion-resistant corrupgated bulkhead formed from aluminum sheet that has been proven structurally durable through years of use as highway culvert. Shore-All has been installed in 19 states and has withstood Gulf Coast hurricanes, lake flooding in the Northwest, and ground freezing along the Missouri River.

Two Banks Plan Branches At Courthouse Square Building

Bank of America and California Canadian Bank plan to open branch offices in the Courthouse Square office buildings under construction at Fourth and A Streets in downtown San Rafael. The new branches are subject to state approval.

The San Rafael law firm of Bagley, Bianchi, and Sheeks, headed by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, will also move into the new Courthouse Square when the $6 million project is completed next April by McKeon Development of Sacramento.

California Canadian Bank, which has a San Rafael office at 888 Fourth Street, will occupy the ground floor of the eight-story office building at Courthouse Square. Manager of the San Rafael branch is Ray Varano.

Bank of America branch, now at Fifth and B, plans to move into a two-story structure adjacent to the eight-story office building.

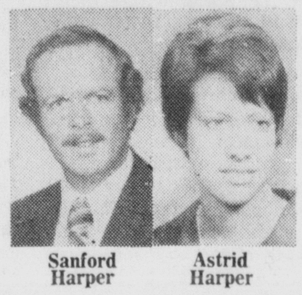

DANE-RITE, a new Scandinavian furniture store, just opened at 216 Greenfield Avenue in San Anselmo, next to Braverman's home furnishers.

Dane-Rite, owned by Juergen and Karin Frost of Greenbrae, carries a complete line of furniture as well as lamps, rugs, pewter giftwares, Arabia dishware from Finland, Iittala glassware from Finland, and other gift items.

SANFORD and ASTRID HARPER of Mill Valley are the Sanford Harper — Astrid Harper

new owners of Pine Tree Candies, located in the Northpoint Shopping Center, 350 Bay Street, San Francisco.

The Harpers took over this month from previous owners, Kenneth and Claudia Woods, neighbors of the Harpers in Mill Valley.

Candymaker Ralph Morris, who has been with Pine Tree Candies for five years, will continue working at the store for the new owners. Candy is made fresh daily right on the premises.

Mrs. Harper will run the candy business, while Harper continues as sales representative with American Auto Glass Association, covering Marin, Sonoma and Napa Counties.

THE SKI SAFE Company, headed by William A. Cancilla of Corte Madera, has leased space at 26 Medway Road No. 13 in San Rafael for storage and maintenance of coin-operated ski check racks. The lease was arranged by William Hoey Company.

Cancilla invented the coin operated ski racks and has been supplying them to ski resorts throughout the country and in Canada for the past 15 years.

Other leases arranged by Hoey Company included these:

GOURMET FRANCE Inc., headquartered in Los Angeles, got warehouse space at 26 Medway Road, No. 6, for storage and distribution of imported canned goods.

SUNSHINE MANUFACTURING and Import Co. Inc. of 95 Belvedere Street got additional warehouse space at 50 Tiburon Street for the manufacturing of cosmetics.

LUDWIG-LEVITAN Inc. of San Francisco leased space in suite 354 of the La Plaza Building, 4340 Redwood Highway, Northgate Industrial Park. Ludwig-Levitan is a manufacturer's representative dealing in food service equipment.

HAROLD MICHAEL, general contractor, opened an office at 74-G Hamilton Drive, Hamilton Industrial Park.

TWELVE REALTORS and real estate associates from Marin attended committee and board of directors meetings of the California Real Estate Association in Monterey last month, President William A. Lewis of the Marin Board of Realtors announced.

The 12 were Lewis, Bruce M. Wrisley, Hugh G. Marchant, Dorothy Oczkus, Frank Hanses, Robert A. Roumiguiere, Jerrold Hickok, Donald A. Beacock, Joseph Wright, Jane Fairchild, William J. Bush, and Daniel Deedy.

More than 1,500 realtors of the 69,000-member state association participated in the meeting.

PAUL S. MAMALAKIS of San Rafael was named bodily injury supervisor in the San Francisco district for California State Automobile Association.

Mamalakis began his career with the CSAA in 1963 as a claims representative in the Richmond district. After a series of advances, he became assistant bodily injury supervisor in 1972.
